BEVERLY STUDENTS ARE #### GOING PLACES

he headline says it all. Beverly students are going places. What sets the community at Beverly apart from that of any other high school is not the name but the people. The blending of different cultures along with a unique sense of pride make Beverly Hills High School more than a place for learning.

The facilities of the campus provide an opportunity for students to experience first hand a broad range of activities from athletics to drama and journalism to art. When the Beverly senior graduates, he has been able to obtain extracurricular background in any number of different activities.

Although some students may be sleeping in their period one classes, and teachers may be trying to get stimulated by their third cup of coffee, the school atmosphere becomes more exciting as the day progresses. The challenges of the academic world are endless once inside the halls of the school. Along with the pressures of A.P. and honors courses, the preparation for the college application process begins from day one of the freshman year. This motivation to succeed has brought Beverly graduates fame in the political, economic, and entertainment fields.

As one would do prior to any long journey, there is important information to be discovered before departing. To find out exactly what Beverly Hills High School has to offer one must examine the people and situations of Beverly — Know Before You Go.

CATCH A GLIMPSE OF LOCAL COLOR

n Friday afternoons, the biggest worry was often how the weekend was going to be spent. With so many different people, the one word which all Beverly students could be classified as are teenagers.

Assumptions of glamour and prestige are far from the reality of the school. What the Norman does on the weekends is exactly that of any other teenager in America — recover. No doubt, some prepare for the next week's worries, but most students could be found in Westwood, shopping in one of the malls, or trying desperately to maintain their summer tan. Others worked part-time or if nothing else sat in front of the television, tuning into the sounds of MTV.

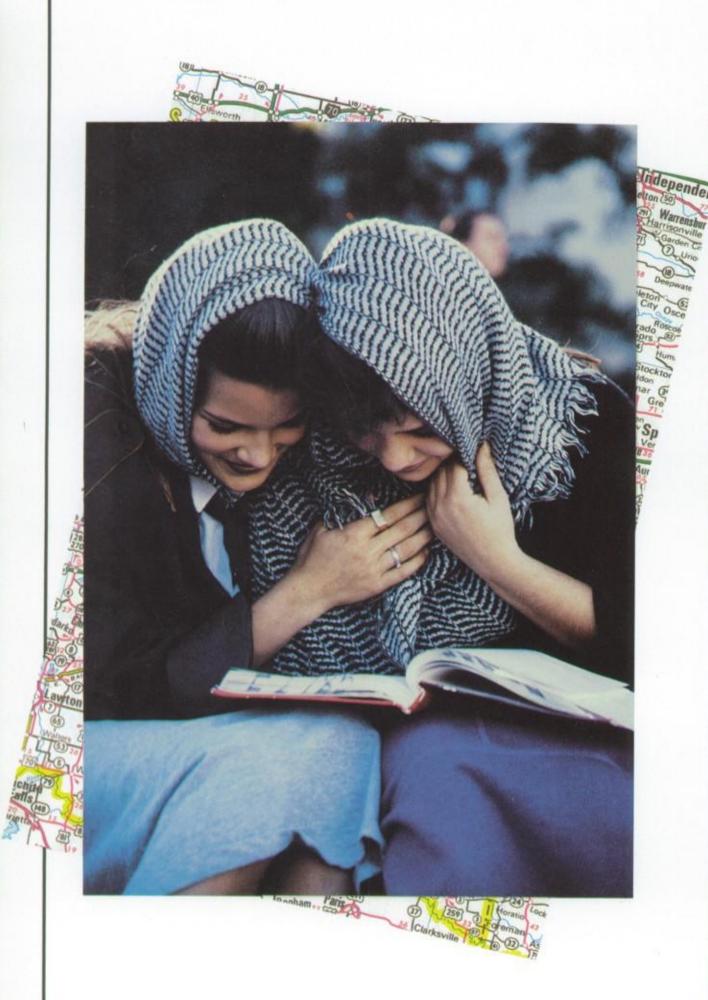

Ask any second semester senior and he'll tell you the most important aspect of Beverly is the social scene and just plain having fun. On the other hand, catch an overworked second semester junior and you'll get quite a different answer. Whatever the case the diversity of the students provides an ideal opportunity for friendships and growth.

A PLACE TO STUDY AND EXPLORE

uring the work-week, Beverly was a place to learn. Learning about iambic pentameter, balancing equations, or learning about oneself. Students better prepared themselves for the world outside Beverly Hills.

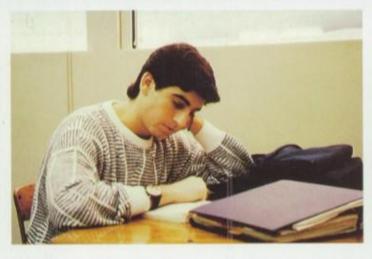

Exploring different fields made for an easier transition between the high school and college environment. The challenges of demanding coursework kept students moving in the right direction towards their final destination — graduation.

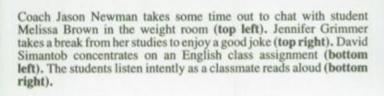

Academics, as in recent years, served as the most valuable asset of Beverly. The educational process provided the first of many steps on the long journey which allowed people to find their individual road to success.

WHEN THE NATIVES GET RESTLESS

chool spirit was on the upswing as ASB and athletic activities broke attendance records. Homecoming, Hello Day, Grease, and Albion Street were all popular events.

Whether on or off the field, spirits were high when Beverly's football team tied for first place in its league. Community activities raised financial support for the school district and demonstrated their commitment to maintaining the quality level of education.

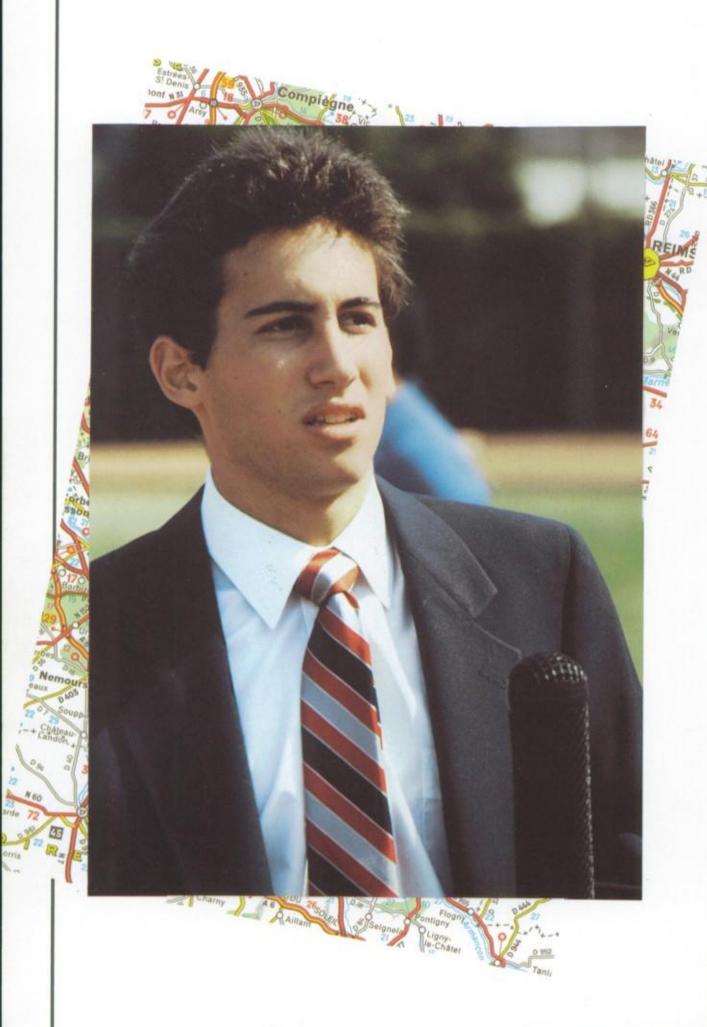

While the school week was reserved for studying, having a good time on the weekends was high on the list of priorities for most students.

ELECTIVES LEAD IN DIFFERENT DIRECTIONS

different things to different people. Working on a ceramic jar until it reaches perfection, spending countless hours rehearsing for a play, or keeping in shape for next week's game. Whatever the activity, Beverly students faced obstacles which prepared them to rise up and meet new challenges.

Popular electives such as broadcast journalism, computer science and robotics were a blending of modern technological advances and old-fashioned teaching methods. For young politicians, ASB provided an excellent forum for learning the tricks of government.

Varied electives helped to serve as a creative outlet, whereby students were able to take advantage of a great freedom for experimentation.

GETTING THERE IS HALF THE FUN

s one begins the exciting task of finding out what Beverly is all about, the journey will lead in many different directions. The choices of each student and the results of those decisions will definitely show that Beverly students are going places.

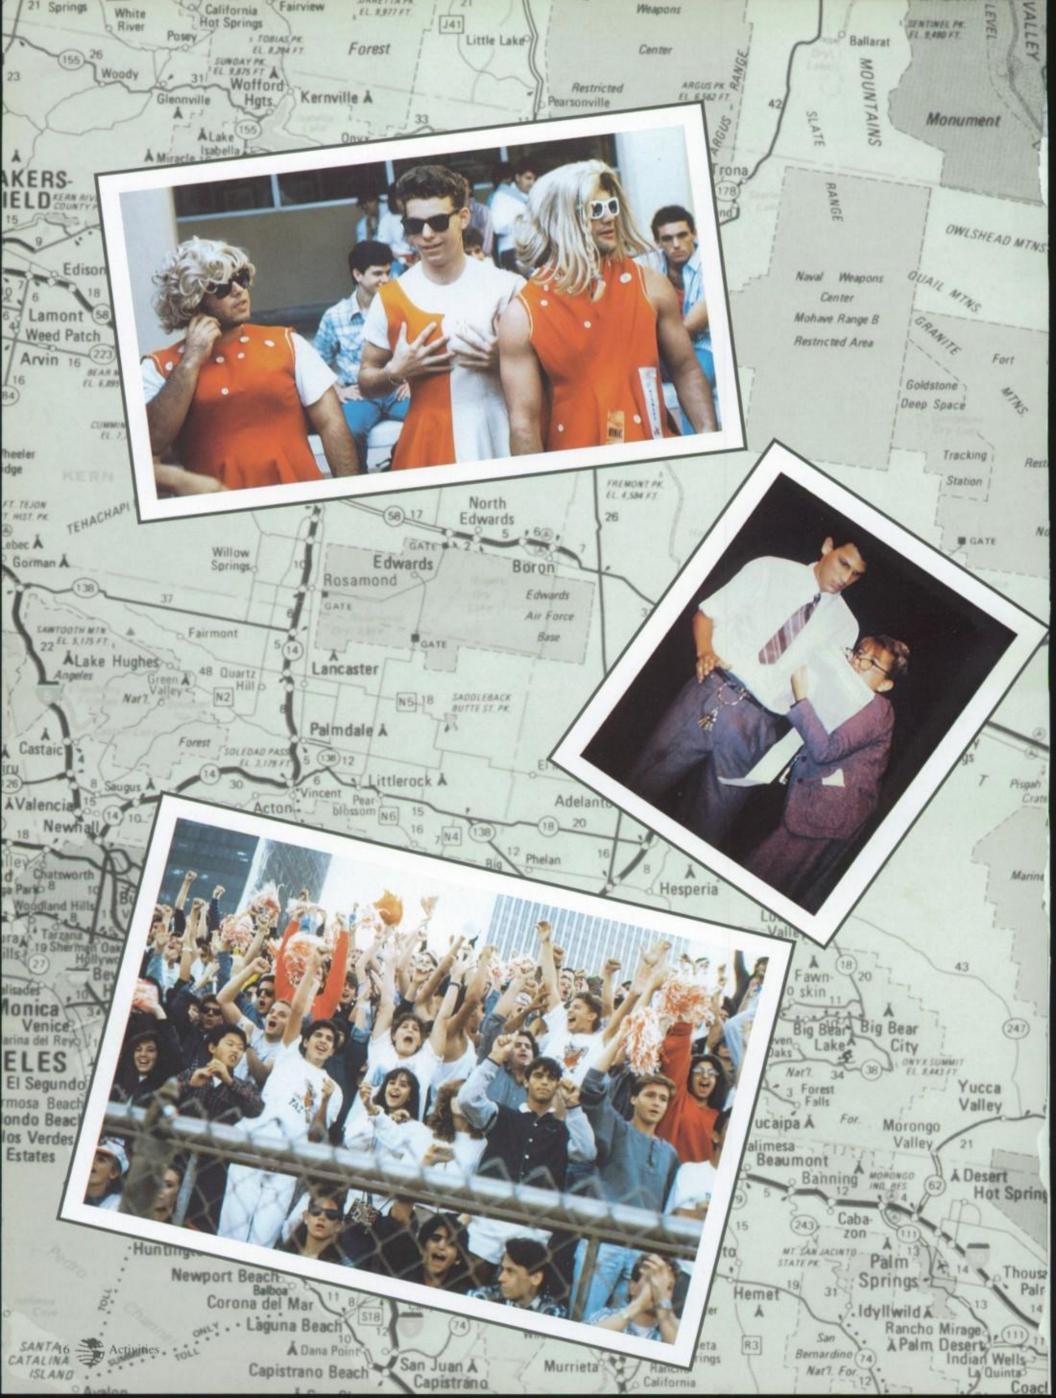

If the saying "Getting there is half the fun" holds true, then the other half lies in discovering the satisfaction of achieving ones goals along with the benefits that go along with it.

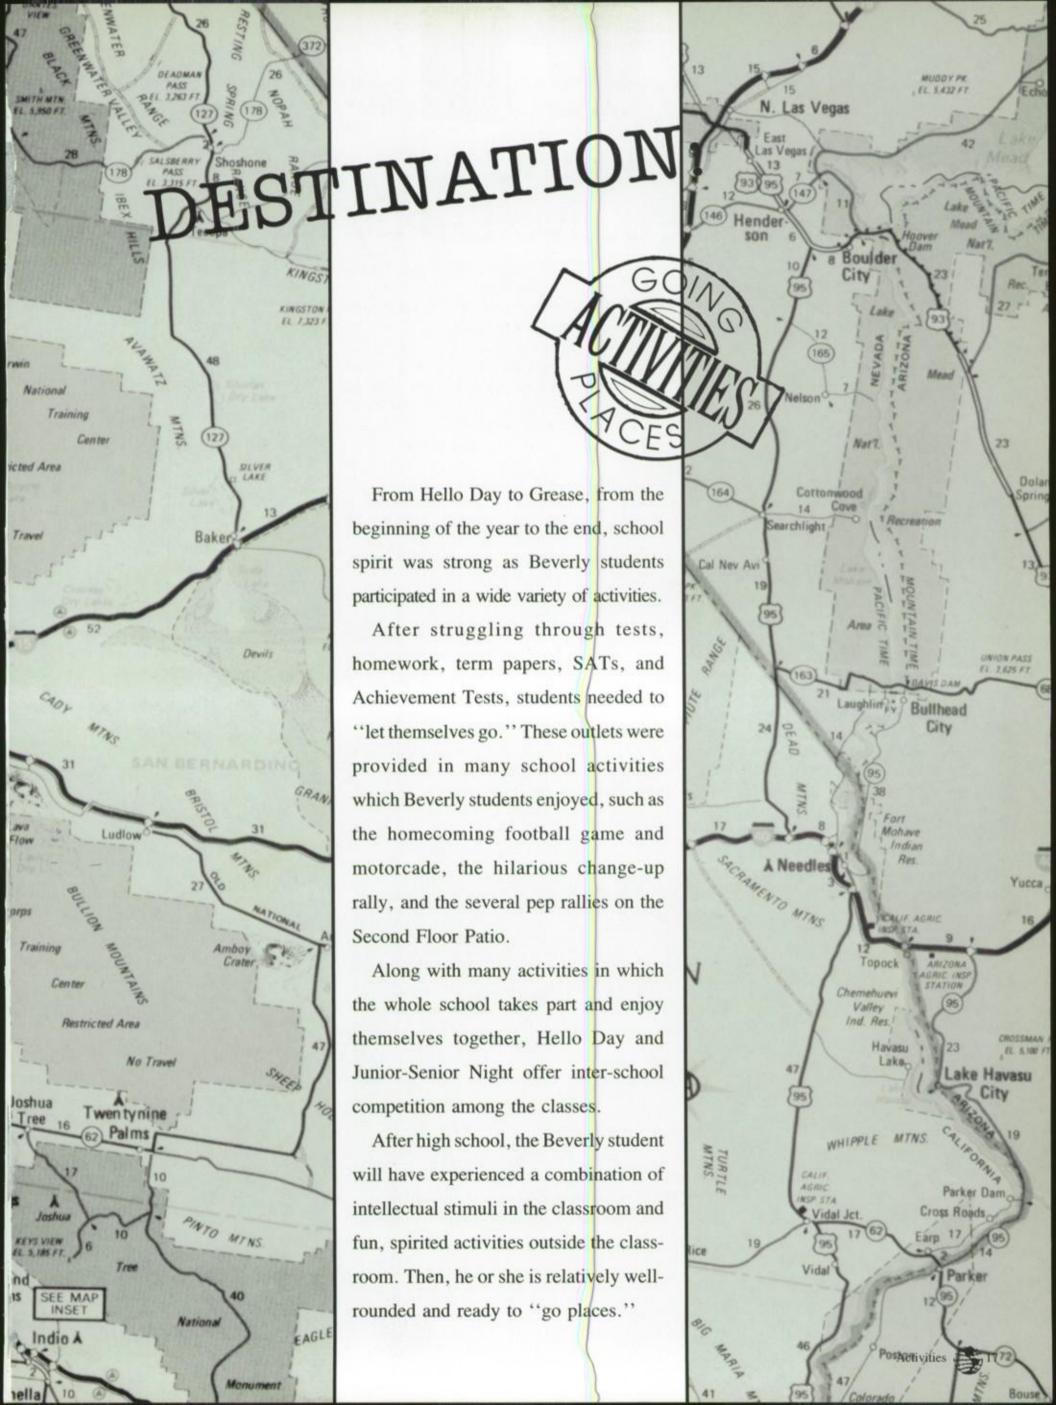

There is only one Beverly Hills, and only one Beverly Hills High School. The students, faculty, and staff that make up the school are unique as the city, both a one-of-akind.

The pages that follow should serve as a guide to the voyage which will some day act as a source of inspiration to continue going places.

HELLO DAY

Seniors 'fly' high to win second consecutive Lenny

And the winner is . . . The Class of '87.

For the second consecutive time, the Class of '87 proved that they are the top at Hello Day. With a team headed by chief writer Teddy Fern, director Jason Tomarken, and musicians Sam Gabbay, Jordan Fishman, and Abe Askenazi, "We're Seniors, We Don't Need A Title," successfully parodied the film "The Fly."

This time the experiment turned "cool" Senior Marty, played by Dean Shapiro, into a nerdy Freshman, Cory Freundel. Shocked and disillusioned, Marty's girlfriend, played by Julie Heimler, sang to him "Don't Stand So Close To Me." Finally everything worked out and Marty, with his peers, graduated singing "Say Goodbye To Beverly." "Our class gave Hello Day everything we had and it payed off," said lead character Dean Shapiro.

The Lenny Award is named in honor of Leonard Uhley, who wrote three award-winning skits. It is now in its 19th year.

Now in its second year, the Michael DeWitt Award is given to one student from each class whom the actors vote as contributing the most to their skit. This year's Michael DeWitt award went to senior Tomarken, junior Kyle Rosen, and sophomore Jody Katz.

The sophomore skit, directed by Katz and written by Lieba Faier, Denis Pepp, Andrea Bardack, and Leslie Winnick, told the story of a "Freshman in Wonderland." This twist of the popular children's story featured Jamie Luner as a freshman in love with a football player, Micah Hyman. In the end, the audience was left in a cloud of smoke: as Alice dreaming or was it real? Director Katz said, "The cast worked very hard and we are looking forward to next year's hopeful win."

With tye-dye shirts and flowers in their hair, the juniors presented their skit "Dare," written by Robert Rich and Adam Wohl. This parody of the musical "Hair" brought the audience back to 1985, a time when students were protesting the end of the "Age of Mod 70." Carl Levin played a new student who was exposed to Beverly by protestor Wendy Warschaw.

"Hello Day is a great opportunity to use a lot of different talents and this year was an inspiration for success next year," said Warschaw.

ASB advisor Elaine Falk observed, "Every class put in a lot of effort making this a highly successful and most enjoyable Hello Day."

FALL ACTIVITIES

Fall ASB activities spark new interest in students

With the falling of the leaves comes a variety of Fall school activities for all kinds of students.

Beverly's change-up rally was a real boost for school spirit. On Thursday, Nov. 13, varsity football players showed the cheerleaders how it's done by performing their own human pyramid on the second floor patio. Varsity football players changed places with cheerleaders and vice-versa. The football players were cheerleading skirts and tops. Members of the spirit squads and the band marched around campus urging students to come see the games.

"It's a very fun Beverly tradition which everyone enjoys, especially the big football players in their mini-skirts," said varsity cheerleader Sophia Rumanes.

To be in the "Spirit" of things, tons of cheering was heard as the cheerleaders dressed up on Halloween day in costumes ranging from a hockey player to a lion.

Two barbecues took place on Oct. 2 and Oct. 17 after home varsity football games and sold out immediately.

Over 100 hamburgers were served at each event.
KBEV provided an assortment of music while students waited in line for their hamburgers.

"The barbecues added to the success of the football season," said ASB President Evan Silver. Spirit was spread through the fall semester not only at Hello Day, Homecoming, and Club Week, but also with the Halloween grams, Hat Day, and the Classified Christmas Breakfast Party.

Students had the opportunity to treat their friends with a Halloween gram for 50 cents each. Students received a lollipop with a special Halloween message from a friend. Over 300 grams were sold.

To top off the week of Beverly's 45th annual Basketball Invitational Tournament, students wore their favorite hats at Hat Day, Friday, Dec. 12. One could find students wearing cowboy hats, top hats, straw hats, and various homemade hats.

ASB also provided for the Classified Christmas Breakfast Party. It was a breakfast for the classified staff at Beverly in appreciation for all the help they provided. Madrigals highlighted the event with their singing.

"I feel it is very important to give recognition to the classified staff because they give so much to our school," explained Madrigal President Cameron Silver.

"Activities were extremely spirited and had much more participation than ever before," said Senior Representative Laura Hornwood, in charge of afternoon activities. Fall activities were geared for all kinds of interests.

FALL PLAY

Performing Arts portray dramatic 'Elephant Man'

Directed by Dr. Bruce Hertford and performed in the Little Theater from Nov. 13-15 and Nov. 20-22 the "Elephant Man" was the story of John Merrick, a man suffering from neurofibromatosis, an incurable disorder affecting the nervous system and the skin.

Merrick, known in the play as the "Elephant Man," was portrayed by Jamison Newlander and his doctor, Dr. Frederick Treves, was played by Jason Tomarken. Other cast members included Nikki Dubin as Mrs. Kendall; Tiffany Boorn as Anne Treves; Josh Milrad as Treves' assistant, Carr Gomm; Natalie Sofer as Nurse Sandwich; and David Roth as Ross.

The story centered around a man struggling to survive physically as well as emotionally. It revealed how he dealt with society and, most importantly, it illustrated his determination to live his life to his fullest capabilities.

The play was put together with the aid of Chela Fiorini, student production coordinator, and Kris Cagan, assistant director. Fiorini observed, "The entire cast has worked extremely hard into producing a good show and I'm very proud of it."

The make-up, though an important part of the play, was not as dominant a factor as some would think; the "Elephant Man's" grotesque image was left more to the imagination. Jami Rubin, make-up director, explained, "The acting itself can portray the 'Elephant Man's' character more than the make-up can."

The set, put together by Craig Schlumbohm and crew, was authentic in typical 19th century style. Sound director Alex Castillo and his crew added to the atmosphere by using background music when appropriate and dramatizing a scene by using loud speakers to convey a thought.

The lighting, done by Robert Mestman, aided in changing the set between scenes by fading out the spot lights. It also dramatically contributed to the overall atmosphere of the play.

Standing ovations took place after every performance and a full house was present at each show.

As Tomarken summed it up, "We were able to prove that a cast and crew of many students could bring to life one of the most difficult plays that Beverly has done in a long time."

DAY IN THE PARK

'Day in the Park' raises $135,000 for local schools

Balloons and game booths covered Roxbury Park as parents and children of Beverly Hills played games, won prizes, ate food, listened to music, and enjoyed themselves.

This community event, "Down But Not Out in Beverly Hills," attracted approximately 12,000 people and lasted from 10:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 28.

According to Murray Fischer, one of the event's four main organizers, the carnival raised $135,000, exceeding the fundraising goal by about $20,000. On the day of the carnival, $66,000 was raised. The rest of the money came from 40 private sponsors who paid anywhere from $500 to $2,500. This money goes directly to the school district.

Co-sponsored by The Revenue Enhancement Committee, with Beverly student liaison Eric Feigenbaum, and the Beverly Hills Education Foundation, this day was dedicated to the past, present, and future children of Beverly Hills.

To start off this event, students of Beverly Hills participated in a parade. These people included Beverly's band, cheerleaders, and drill team, as well as representatives from all five Beverly Hills schools and a Brownie Troop.

Special attractions included jugglers, prize drawings, a dance contest, a bake sale, a silent auction, face painting, mimes, a karate show, and fire trucks. Also, the Beverly Hills Fireman's Association cooked hotdogs at their portable firehouse.

According to one parent, Tish Young, "It seemed as though everyone was on the same side at the carnival, having a good time to help and support our schools."

Members of Beverly's ASB and Beverly Hills teachers manned the more than 35 booths, including the popular mouse booth.

This booth, headed in part by Senior Class Representatives Michelle Gold and Joe Rosen, centered around a mouse. The object of the game was to get the mouse to run down the hole of the color bet on.

When asked why this booth attracted so many people, Gold stated, "It was like gambling."

Above the din of a typical fair, music, ranging from U2 to The Monkees, could be heard. The event was disc-jockeyed by Beverly sophomores Laura Levin and Eric Pincus. The two were asked to deejay the carnival in support of their community's schools.

ASB President Evan Silver called the entire afternoon an "absolute success."

This event raised money for local schools, as well as unified the entire community — teachers, students, parents, and administrators," he stated.

HOMECOMING MOTORCADE

Nominees gear up for Homecoming Motorcade

A thalftime, the score was 7-0 with Santa Monica High School leading. Nevertheless, Beverly students were still in high spirits when the fourth annual homecoming motorcade started with a bang!

With capacity crowds cheering from the bleachers, hundreds of multi-colored balloons were released to light up the sky. This was the beginning of an eagerly anticipated halftime.

To prepare for this event, the spirit squads had spent several hours each day these past months practicing their routine of perfectly timed movements. While members of the band played the song "Tequilla," drill team and spirit danced to the pulasting beat.

Drill team advisor Dixie Zovak stated, "I was really proud of the girls. It was wonderful to see them learn and polish all their movements in a short period of time and to perform them flawlessly. They looked fabulous."

The drill team ended its routine with the traditional rendition of the "high kick." In one long line, arm in arm, the girls kicked to the famous tune "That's Entertainment."

Members of the drill team and flag team welcomed the nominees for the Royal Court by standing on either side of the passing cars. As each car passed, the girls saluted the nominees. The nominees were driven in 19 different convertibles. They ranged from classics, such as two Mercedes and a Jaguar, to the present-driven Mustang convertible and ever-popular Volkswagen Cabriolet. The cars were driven by students, parents, and people in the community.

Vice-Principal Ben Bushman gave each candidate a T-shirt to wear while parading around the track. These T-shirts featured the school district's new copy-righted logo of Beverly Hills High School.

Senior president Eric Feigenbaum and senior representative Matt Feinstein were in charge of organizing this event.

"We wanted everything to look great so we spent a lot of time blowing balloons and decorating the field, track, and cars with streamers," said Feinstein.

The halftime festivities came to a climatic ending. The band played the Beverly Fight Song while the drill team and the spirit groups aroused the audience and prepared them for an exciting second half of football.

And excitement it was! Beverly's varsity football players made a strong comeback tying the score 10-10 and sharing the Ocean League championship with Santa Monica High School.

ASB advisor Elaine Falk concluded, "From the reaction of the crowd, it seemed that Motorcade '86 was enjoyed by all participants."

JUNIOR-SENIOR NIGHT

Taz overpowers Captain Caveman at Jr./Sr. Night

And the Class of '87 proved its seniority once again on Dec. 4! The approximate 85 participants used their strength, talent, coordination, and teamwork to crush the juniors in Junior-Senior Night, 80-50.

"No. Correction. This event is called Senior-Junior Night. What can I say except that we are awesome, period!" exclaimed Senior Class Eric Feigenbaum.

Junior-Senior Night is the annual battle between the two upperclasses. It traditionally takes place in the Swim-Gym.

The Senior Class was ahead of the juniors from the first serve in volleyball to the last heave in the boys' Tug-of-War.

Although the majority of races ended relatively closely, the Class of '87 captured titles in the volleyball tournament, dizzy bat race, toilet paper race, push ball competition, basketball shoot, potato sack race, and girls' Tugof-War.

The juniors, led by Co-Presidents Robert Rich and Jami Rubin, seemed equally spirited.

"Spiritually, we won! I feel we had a greater output from our crowd," Rich said.

The Class of '88 defeated the Class of '87 in such events as the pantyhose race, the balloon race, the boys' tug-of-war, the wheelbarrow race, and the new McDonald's relay.

Organizer of Junior-Senior Night, Sophomore Representative, Denise Pepp, stated, "We thought this race would be really fun. Everyone loves McD's and it (the race) is better than last year's pie-eating contest."

In the McDonalds race, the two participants on each team eat and swallow completely 16 Chicken McNuggets and, then, run around the Swim-Gym.

> The same process is repeated with one large french fries and one Big Mac.

> Besides their ability to fill their stomachs to capacity, both the classes showed their ultimate strength in the tug-of-war competitins.

The seniors proved to be the dominant force in the girls' tug-of-war. Two out of three wins were necessary to capture the victory.

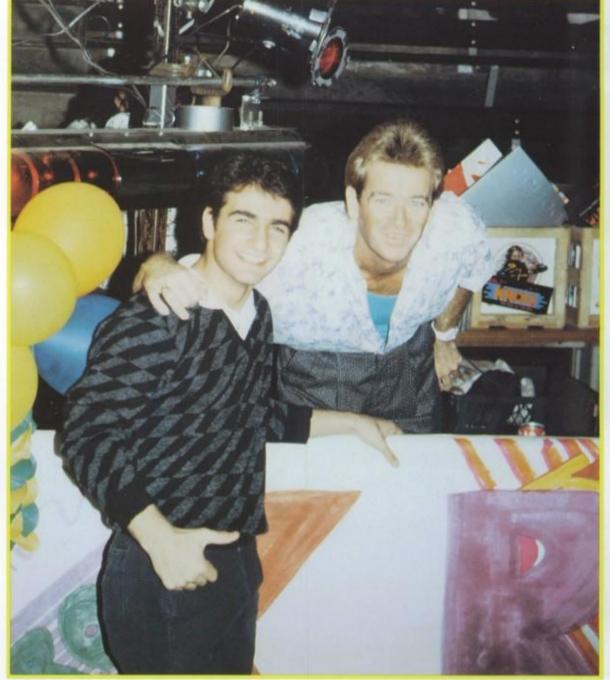

In the boys' tug-of-war, the juniors barely edged the seniors. Each class had one win before the Class of '88 finally beat the Class of

'87, again, after an arduous struggle.

Despite their loss in the above-mentioned final event, Senior Representative Joe Rosen remarked, "Overall, the juniors gave us a tough battle, but the Senior Class was too much to overcome!"

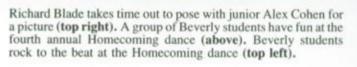

Said Feigenbaum, "The Class of '87 is the first class ever to win two Hello Days and two Junior-Senior Nights in a row!"

HOMECOMING DANCE

Students rock to the beat at annual Homecoming

The blaring music sounded throughout the Swim-Gym. Bold colored streamers and balloons decorated the dance floor. Bright red and blue lights flashed on and off. The dancing feet shook And the smiling faces showed the good students were having.

This was the site of the Homecoming dance held on Nov. 7. This dance, which ASB claims was its most successful ever, attracted an excess of 1,000 students.

"This is the best turnout we've had in five years. I've never seen so many students dancing on the dance floor in my entire experience as ASB advisor," said Elaine Falk.

KROQ's Richard Blade, and Video One host, deejayed the dance. He played music from hit groups such as, The Bangles, Depeche Mode, Beatles, Monkees, ABC, Otis Day and the Nights, Pet Shop Boys, and the B-52's.

However, the music and dancing stopped, and the lights would go on at half-hour intervals. This was when Blade would announce the 1986 Homecoming Court.

Gabriel Macht and Tasha Singletary represented the freshman class as prince and princess. The sophomores choose Michael Glazer as their prince, and Jody Katz for their princess. The junior court consisted of Lainie Kartoon for princess and Eyal Gamliel for prince. Senior princess was Gayle Licker and prince was Evan Silver.

Finally it was time for the students to find out who was to be their King and Queen. Head of last year's court, King Gregg Silver and Queen Leslie Paul, returned to present the winners with their flowers. The winners were Billy Koch and Jenny Krieger.

ASB president Evan Silver stated, "There were many major contributing factors for this dance being so successful. One is, Richard Blade was deejaying. Another was the mystique of finding out who won the Homecoming Court. And, also the chance to get together with school friends in a non-academic environment."

Blade did not feel that Beverly students live up to the usual negative stereotypes. "If the stereotype is of a group of really nice kids, then yes, its true. Everyone here seems to be really real," he said.

However, Blade observed, "The girls do live up to one stereotype. They are cute."

To sum up the overall view of the dance, Silver stated, "This dance will most likely set the standard that the rest of the ASB's should try to achieve."

CORONATION

Koch and Krieger head royal Homecoming Court

The band played. The entire spirit squad cheered. Members of the drill team saluted. And proud family and friends took pictures as the Royal Court made its way across the floor.

On the night of Dec. 8 before the first game of the Beverly Hills High School Invitational Basketball Tournament began, Homecoming Queen Jenny Krieger, King Billy Koch, and the prince and princess representing each class were officially crowned.

Gayle Licker and Evan Silver were chosen by the Senior Class as their princess and prince. The Class of '88 chose princess Lainie Kartoon and prince Eyal Gamliel. Jody Katz and Michael Glazer represented the Sophomore Class. To round off the court, freshmen Tasha Singletary and Gabriel Macht were princess and prince of their class.

The couples strolled arm-inarm to the center of the Swim-Gym floor, where the guys crowned the girls and the girls pinned boutineers on their escorts for the evening.

The court, then, took their seats in the flowerdecorated bleachers to watch the game.

Queen Krieger exclaimed, "It's a real honor to be Queen Krieger exclaimed, "It's a real honor to be nominated. I'm glad to be a part of it."

King Koch agreed and added, "I'm really happy, but in a way, it's sad. I'm a senior now and my Beverly days are almost up."

During the game, the drill team performed routines to such songs as "Louie, Louie," "How Will I Know," and "Tequila." Members of yell, song, and flag cheered throughout the game, especially at the end of the quarters and during time-outs.

New to the school and the Royal Court, Singletary stated, "I'm really honored to have been chosen. It (coronation) is different than what I expected."

Both Singletary and Macht enjoyed taking part in the tradition of the Royal Court.

Coronation has been a Beverly tradition for many years, but not until 1976, did the Royal Court include guys.

Gamliel said, "I'm very happy to be a part of the festivities. It's great."

Katz added, "It feels great! It's something I'll always remember about my high school days."

Two members of the court were not new additions. Krieger was sophomore princess and Licker was junior princess.

Licker commented, "It (being chosen for Homecoming princess) is an honor and a great way to end my senior year."

To add to the excitement of the evening, the Beverly Hills Normans were victorious over the Camarillo Scorpians, 58-51.

CLUBS

Clubs offer a myriad of activities, trips to students

What does bicycle riding, politics, and medicine have in common?

These are just a few of the activities offered by clubs at Beverly.

To promote membership in the clubs, the annual club week was held in October.

"It is the amount of student participation and school spirit that makes the clubs so successful," explained ASB vice-president Nicole White.

About 24 clubs and organizations were offered to students. Many of the clubs that have endured the test of time are the tennis, math, French honors, Hebrew, Spanish, German, outdoor adventure, and art clubs.

For numerous years, the Ski Club, sponsored by the Beverly Hills Recreation and Parks Dept., has been one of Beverly's largest organizations. Of the many ski trips planned, the one to Lake Tahoe had the most signups. Other outings went to Mammoth and Taos, New Mexico.

"One oftahe key reasons for the club's success is that whether a beginner or advanced skier, anyone can become involved," explained president David Simantob.

The Medical Club had guest lectures almost every two weeks. Dr. Kallus spoke about the studies of pediatrics, hemotology, oncology, and medical schools. Dr. Rosenblatt talked with students about his cancer research at UCLA. Also, a UCLA graduate of biochemistry, Kathy Kantardileff, lectured about her studies. Finally, Ronald Zinner, a child psychologist, discussed his specialty.

Of the new clubs formed, most were based on political ideals. The Young Republicans Club was organized to increase the political awareness of students. The club teaches students about voting and hopes to direct them towards a political faction.

"Even a single hair casts its own shadow," was the motto of the Political Idealists Club. Students met and discussed their beliefs concerning politics, philosophy and religion. They helped raise 100 lbs. of clothing for Ethiopian Jews, and raised money for the homeless and the poor. This non-partisan club hoped to help people become more aware of themselves.

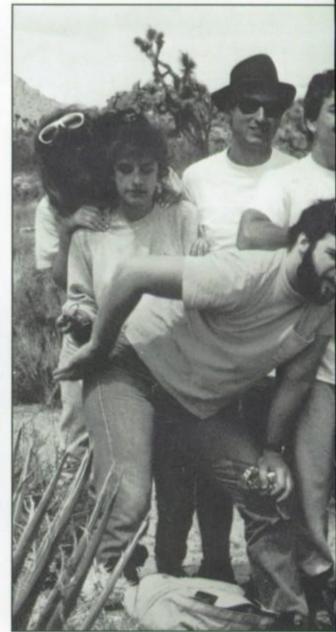

Another non-partisan club at Beverly was Junior Statesman of America. This organization gave students a feeling for government participation and modern political issues through conventions and debates. Club members Ricky Chizever and Peter Thodham won speaking awards at a fall convention at the LA Hilton on Nov. 22-23. Beverly's clubs offered students a variety of activities geared for a broad range of interests, giving everyone the opportunity to become involved.

ALBION STREET

Visit to Albion Street brings Christmas spirit

As 50 Beverly students visited the Albion Street Elementary School on Dec. 19, they were greeted by warm smiles, hugs, and a large welcoming sign.

Beverly students have traditionally gone to the East Los Angeles school for 46 years, bringing holiday spirit and gifts to the less fortunate children.

Following their arrival, the students divided into groups for the classroom visits, spending about 15 minutes in a classroom, as each group distributed gifts, sang Christmas carols, and made new friends. Presents included Playdough, Legos, and dolls. The purchasing of the gifts was made possible by a fundraiser directed by ASB representatives.

As soon as the recess bell rang, energetic students and children fled to the playground to play such games as handball, tetherball, four-square, and hopscotch. The children, full of energy, even let the Beverly students "take cuts" in line. Santa Claus, otherwise known as ASB President Evan Silver, attracted a crowd of excited children, all eager to tell him what they wanted for Christmas.

"It was a great experience to see the kids' reactions," said Silver.

Prior to the students' arrival, the Madrigals performed such songs as "The 12 Days of Christmas" and "Jingle Bells."

As Madrigal President Cameron Silver said, "We got a real warm response from the kids and they had a lot of fun singing along with us."

Responsible for organizing the visit to Albion Street was senior coordinator Kelly Borris and faculty sponsor Gwen Graham. Borris, who was involved with Albion Street for three years and was last year's junior coordinator, had a big responsibility, yet never doubted that the work was worth it.

> "The joy I got out of it was seeing the happiness on the kids' faces," expressed Borris.

> Assistant Principal Ruth Friedman explained the fact that the student participation level has risen considerably over the years. There was such a large turnout this year that the students had to be chosen out of a lottery. This year, students included two freshmen, three sophomores, 10 juniors, and 26 seniors, along with a few students from Watchtower and Broadcast Journalism. Friedman described the event as "a real people-to-people kind of activity in which a hand of friendship is extended."

Junior Co-President Jami Rubin expressed, "I feel that we got as much out of it as the children did and I was very fortunate to have been a part of this year's visit."

FALL ASB

Red Ribbon Week heads fall ASB's busy agenda

Red Ribbon Week, Hello Day, Junior-Senior Night. These were among the first semester activities in which ASB took a very active part.

The events were headed by ASB President Evan Silver, Vice-President Nicole White, and Secretary Steve Fischer.

ASB meets every day during sixth period. Silver sits in front of the class and leads the discussions. They talk about matters such as fund raisers, special activities, board meetings, and dances.

"Overall, fall ASB activities ran smoothly this year, Students needed to participate more in the activities, though. By doing so, students would take an active part in what ASB has to offer," Silver commented.

In October, ASB was busy getting events organized. These included barbecues, Hello Day, Halloween Grams, and Homecoming.

The week of Oct. 27 through Oct. 31 marked "Red Ribbon Week." The purpose of this week was to show the students and the community that there is a major problem with drugs. Teachers, administrators, and students all donned red ribbons attached to buttons reading "Just Say NO!"

"'Red Ribbon Week' brought the community together. Everyone agreed that drugs are a problem and kids need help in 'just saying no.' We worked together for a good cause," White observed.

After the week was over, the next project for ASB was Homecoming. ASB spent many hours deciding on the music, prices for admission, concessions, and decorations.

"Homecoming was a great success. This was the largest Homecoming dance turnout we've ever had. At first we thought we wouldn't have much support > from the students with just a DJ. But the tremendous turnout proved that the students have faith in ASB's planning fun and successful activities," stated Silver.

> "With all this activity going on, ASB had to work very hard. They got things done and they worked extremely well together. I am pleased with the way the events turned out," said Elaine Falk, ASB advisor.

> Every year selected students from ASB take off a day of school to visit the Albion Street school to celebrate the spirit of Christmas.

Referring to Albion Street, Silver said, "Being Santa Claus is something I really wanted to do, and now I had the chance. It made me feel really good to see how excited the kids got when they saw Santa Claus. Our visit really made their Christmas, and Santa Claus is a vital part of the Christmas spirit."

SPRING ASB

Second Semester ASB twists at '50s Sock Hop

out from other semesters by initiating a number of activities that will last such as Grad Night, Laser Tag, students vs. faculty competition and much, much more," said Eric Feigenbaum, ASB president, in the beginning of the semester.

A big event for the Spring ASB was the Sock Hop.
"The combined efforts and overwhelming participation of the Performing Arts Department can result in one of the biggest successes at Beverly," stated Feigenbaum.

This dance was a new idea. Not only was it a recreation of a '50s style Sock Hop, but was also a promotion for the spring musical, "Grease."

The Junior Welfare Drive was a big success. Some classes even reached the goal of a hundred dollars or more. The overall school goal was $1,200 and $1,500 was raised. The money raised was given to the United Way. The United Way then decided where the money would go.

Valentine Grams were profitable. This year they were 25¢ rather than 50¢.

"We made about $300 profit," said Nicole White. The Blood Drive was held March 19. About 150 students and teachers were expected to sign-up, which would make about 80 pints of blood.

The carnival was another popular activity. It was held May 1 on the front lawn. There was a wide variety of activities that kept students continually entertained and vigorously excited. Booths contained basically games and food.

A big new event for seniors was Beverly's first Grad Night. It was scheduled for June 12, the last day of finals for the class of 1987. Students were invited to spend a fun-filled evening from 11 p.m. to 5 in the morning

The students responsible for these events were ASB President Eric Feigenbaum, ASB Vice-President Corey Freundel, and ASB Secretary Matt Feinstein. The seniors were led by President Evan Silver and Vice-President Billy Koch. Heading the Junior Class were President Nina Weber and Vice-President Alex Cohen. The sophomores were President Denise Pepp and Vice-President Susan Rosen. Freshman president was Rose Lai and the vice-president was Bree Benton. The commissioners completed the leadership class. Also, English teacher Elaine Falk served as the guiding advisor for all of the aspects of student government.

"ASB worked efficiently together and I'm pleased with the way the events turned out," said Falk.

TOMA DAY

Dynamic anti-drug speech 'tomatizes' student body

avid Toma covered his eyes with a blindfold. "For years, everyone was doing this. Today, I'm going to speak your language. This morning I am going to tell you the truth about drugs, baby," Toma told Beverly students on "Toma Day," March 31.

No matter how his anti-drug message got across to students, whether it was through television monitors in the Little Theater or Swim-Gym, or live in the auditorium, Toma's speech seemed to affect most students as it was powerful and lasting.

For close to two and one-half hours, the entire student body watched Toma pace back and forth across the auditorium stage, sometimes shouting and sometimes whispering.

His message was clear: drugs and alcohol mean death and destruction for those who use them. Tomorrow is too late to stop.

Principal Sol Levine agreed with Toma, saying, "If you think the drug problem isn't a Beverly Hills problem; if you think the problem doesn't affect you because you're bright and articulate; you've got it all wrong."

Toma asked students what it was about him that was different from the other adults who'd warned them against drugs.

One student stood up and shouted, "You care about us. You love us!"

Toma Day Chairman Joe Rosen said, "Toma got through to a lot of people and hopefully this effect will help them make the right decision."

After Toma's presentation, students went back to classrooms and had a follow-up discussion in which they filled out questionaires and talked through hypothetical situations.

That night, Toma spoke to Beverly parents for another two and one-half hours. His advice to parents > was simple: love your children, communicate with them, and use common sense when dealing with

> The day of and the day following Toma's presentation, private counseling was offered by Toma himself, counselors, the Maple Center, and the Opportunity staff and students.

"I was surprised to hear that most of the students who came in to talk with us had personal problems, not drug-related ones. They were either depressed or lonely, felt isolated, or had problems with their parents." said Susan Kelleher, Peer Counseling director.

Regarding the Toma presentation, Kelleher stated, "It was fantastic. He accomplished exactly what we had hoped. He got students to think."

Toma ended his presentation by saying, "To each and every one of you: Stay well, good luck, God bless you all I love you so damn much!"

SOCK HOP

Beverly goes back in time with a fifties Sock Hop

On Friday, March 13, Beverly went back in time to poodle skirts and cherry cokes, as students "rocked around the clock" in the Swim-Gym.

The first of its kind, the Sock Hop aimed at promoting the Spring musical, "Grease." The combined efforts of both ASB and the Performing Arts Department was also a first. Assistant Principal Ben Bushman said, "It's very unique to have ASB and Performing Arts coordinating together."

On the day of the dance, spirited students dressed '50s style and a costume contest was held on the second floor patio, awarding $10 gift certificates to Tower Records for the two best-dressed students. Spirited Juniors Nina Weber and Valerie Morgan won the contest. A pep rally also took place at lunch in which cast members of "Grease" promoted the dance and the production.

Co-chairman Matt Feinstein said of the dance, "We were not in it to make a profit; we just wanted to break even and have a good time." Consequently, the dance broke more than even, with a turnout of 350 students.

The '50s feeling was alive in the Swim-Gym as turquoise, pink, and yellow balloons created a bright atmosphere. Posters of such '50s greats as James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, and Elvis Presley decorated the walls. The concession stand, decorated with graffiti, featured popcorn, cherry coke, and rootbeer.

Twisting and shouting, students danced to the music of such greats as The Supremes, Elvis Presley, and The Temptations. Music was provided by Bill Loveless and Manny Panchanko, two deejays from KRLA.

As co-chairperson Susan Rosen said, "KRLA is the top '50s station of the city."

Promoting the musical, the cast members of

"Grease" did two routines, "Summer Nights," and "We Go Together.'

Cast member Jami Rubin said, "It was a lot of fun seeing how everyone reacted to our performance and it seems like 'Grease' is going to be a big success."

Throughout the evening, various activities took place such as limbo contest, contributing to the authenticity of a '50s Sock Hop. The winners of this contest, also receiving $10 gift certificates to Tower Records, were sophomores Jennifer Rhinestein, Sarah Levy, and Zuri

Joe Rosen, senior representative said, "We succeeded in the promotion of 'Grease' and we hope the musical is as successful as the dance was.'

"It was very nostalgic. I had fun reliving my teenage years," said ASB advisor Elaine Falk.

The Fab Fifties are back!

Pink Cadillacs with tail fins, turquoise T-Birds with a spare tire, and the ever-popular Edsel. Crinolines, bowling shirts, bomber jackets and Keds. Elvis, Ben E. King, Jerry Lee Lewis and Buddy Holly. "Leave It To Beaver," "Ozzy and Harriet," "The Honeymooners" and "I Love Lucy." These entities are all trademarks of the '50s era.

By taking a walk down Melrose Avenue in West Hollywood, one can see all the vintage clothing, cars, furniture and accessories being sold.

Lexi Holz, a junior at Beverly, owns a '57 T-Bird. "I wanted a pink car and I thought the only normal cars from the '50s were the '57 T-Birds. I think the cars from the '50s are more unique."

In the past year, films that were set in the '50s such as "Peggy Sue Got Married" and "Stand By Me," not only had genuine locations and costumes, but the music also featured hits from the '50s.

In the '80s, Madonna's new image is very similar to that of Marilyn Monroe of the '50s. In her first music video "Material Girl," Madonna wore a Monroe gown and danced in a set from "How to Marry A Millionaire," a film featuring Monroe. James Dean is another popular teen idol that teenaged girls still swoon over.

On television, there has been a revived interest in '50s TV shows. Some characters, such as the Beaver, have become so popular, their faces can be seen on buttons, posters and T-shirts.

The Beverly Performing Arts Department chose to present "Grease," a popular musical comedy set at a high school during the '50s era, as the Spring Musical.

Science teacher Adrian Bal said, "The kids from the '50s are very similar to the ones today. They're prosperous, directed, have definite goals and are success oriented. They were very down to earth."

Laurel Spellman, a Beverly senior, added, "The 50s were very carefree. There were few worries, and it was just a fun time period."

The most evident revival is in the renewed popularity of '50s style cafes. Larry Parker's is a '50s diner in Beverly Hills. The coffee shop was first built in 1947 and it still has the same interior. Both the atmosphere and menu are reminiscent of the era. It includes cream pies, hamburgers, shakes, cherry cokes and egg creams.

"Business is up 50% due to the '50 revival," stated Larry Parker.

Another '50s cafe is Johnny Rockets on Melrose. There they serve burgers, fries and cokes and have mini jukeboxes at the counters. Other fast food places are treating customers to service by roller skating car hops.

These burger joints are probably visited more for the atmosphere than for the food.

"When I go out with my friends to have a good time, we usually go to Johnny Rockets. At the counters we sing along with the music and talk to people sitting near us. The atmosphere is just real comfortable and fun," said senior Valerie Sobel.

Though all this '50s nostalgia brings back memories for parents, to their children growing up in the '80s it's new. Who knows, maybe in the year 2010, there will be a '70s revival. And people will again wear bell bottoms and Korkees, and rock to disco music. But, let's hope not.

SPRING MUSICAL

Beverly stage struck by 'Greased Lightning' bolt

A fter many laborious rehearsals, hours of mending costumes, and careful hanging of sets, the Performing Arts Department presented the musical "Grease."

Like many other popular musicals, "Grease" is the typical story of "boy meets girl; boy and girl break-up; boy and girl make-up," but with a twist.

"Grease" takes the audience back to Rydell High School during the fun-filled '50s when girls wore poodle skirts and guys wore jeans, white tee-shirts, and leather jackets.

The two leads, Danny, played by Jason Tomarken, and Sandy, played by Coryn Keating, meet each other during the summer. Unexpectedly, both turn up at Rydell, but the romantic flames of the summer cease to exist. Sandy's next-door neighbor, Frenchy, portrayed by Raquel Jaffe, introduces her to the evercool Pink Ladies, who include Rizzo (Marni Lewis), Marty (Nikki Dubin), Jane (Renee Dorn), and Louise (Jill Fischer).

On the other side, Danny and his buddies are Burger Palace Boys, each with a personality entirely his own. Travis Fine heads the Palace Boys as Kenickie, as well as Doody (Will Schwartz), Roger (Darrien Henning), Sonny (Payman Danielpour), and Eddy (Greg Kontzer).

After several occurrences, Sandy and Danny finally fall back into love and the large ensemble cast close the show with their exciting rendition of "We go together." "Grease" played a five day run, starting March 25 to cheering, full audiences.

Tomarken remarked, "Grease' is an unusual show to do compared with that of other musicals because the actors are actually able to play characters who are in reality their own age."

With the strong direction of Dr. Bruce Hertford, the conducting skills of Joel Pressman, the technical aspects of the show handled by David Mefford, and choreography by Mark Knowles, Hertford said, "The cast and crew handled themselves in an extremely professional manner and it really showed."

Pressman echoed his thoughts, adding, "As much fun as the music is, it is also very difficult, especially for the men because the range is so high, but I think we have some terrific voices in this large cast."

Keating said, "'Grease' was a great way to end my high school career and was loads of fun."

Lewis concluded, "It was a great experience working on such a high-energy show and the cast made it tremendously rewarding. 'Grease' was a terrific learning experience that I'll never forget." Members of the cast perform one of their hits, "Hand Jive" (top). Dance captains Marleigh Moscatel and Colin Yost end the cast's rendition of "You're the One That I Want" (top right). The entire cast of "Grease" gathers together for the finale (bottom).

BACKSTAGE

Stage crew of 'Grease' works behind the scenes

Musical, probably watched the dancers dance, the singers sing, and the actors and actresses act. But what they didn't see was all the hard work that went on behind the scenes before and during the show.

""Grease' could not have been as successful without the long hours that the techies put into the show," explained theater technician David Mefford.

Techies consist of students of the Stage Design and Production Class and members of the cast of "Grease." Under the direction of Mefford, approximately 30 members dedicated their time to working on the production.

Set director Dara Nunn said, "By being in stage crew, I see the amount of work that goes on backstage."

She added, "Compared to 'Peter Pan' last year, the set for 'Grease' is much smaller and much easier to work with."

Assistant stage manager Sarah Tomassi said, "We have so much more space backstage as opposed to last year." Only 10 students were running crew members, who work behind the scenes during the show and operate the pullies, sets, lights, curtains, and props. The sets for "Grease" were rented from the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera and, according to Mef-

They ranged from a burger palace to the Rydell High School gym to the beach to Kenickie's car.

The crew members worked long and hard in order to put the sets together in one afternoon. They were led by stage manager Robert Mestman and assistant Tomassi, student director Jake Freydont-Attie and assistant Kevin Krasne, set director Nunn and assistant Ariel Benarroch, and costume designer Nicole Smith.

> "Designing so many costumes is a very time-consuming job, but I feel a great sense of accomplishment doing it," stated Smith.

> Professional costume designer Pamela Mink explained, "There is a larger cast this year, and of course, that means more costumes. On top of that, some characters have as many as three or more changes during the show."

> The Performing Arts Department also hired a professional choreographer, Mark Knowles.

Knowles stated, "(The students') enthusiasm was high. Students picked up steps really well. We got a very good audience response." Mefford found it very enjoyable working with the students backstage.

He explained, "It is very rewarding to work so hard behind the scenes and see it pay off when 'Grease' is finally performed."

Beverly takes on the world

WISH YOU WERE HERE

"This is me standing in front of my three new friends in Mexico City." Junior Lisa Roth.

"This is me and my two brothers, Greg and David, trying to ride horses in the Napa Valley." Senior Kim Shephard.

"This is my sister Goli and I standing with the sailing crew of Club Med, Paradise Island." Senior Sam Gabbay.

"Here I am walking in a park in Rome. I'm smiling because I haven't found out that terrorists bombed the airport that I have just left." Senior Valerie Sobel.

"This is me waiting to catch a gondola by the Grand Canal in Venice, Italy." Junior Carl Levin.

"I'm freezing in Leningrad in front of a monument by the lake. (Henry Dersch's annual trip to Russia during winter vacation)." Senior Melinda Fogel

To relieve the stress from academic pressures, Beverly students often party during the weekends. But, that's just not enough. Students really need those long vacations to get away from it all.

Winter vacation comes at the exact point when students begin to dread waking up at 6:30 a.m., throwing on clothes, and heading to school. The two weeks of Christmas vacation provide students with a perfect opportunity to travel everywhere throughout this country, as well as in Europe.

Spring break is approximately 15 long weeks after winter vacation, and it may mean "fun-in-the-sun," swimming, getting a tan, and playing tennis. Or perhaps it's an opportunity to catch the last ski trip of the season.

Beverly students agree that winter vacation and spring break are well-needed and welldeserved holidays. But the ultimate three-month vacation takes place when finals are over, seniors graduate, and Beverly closes. Summer vacation proves to be the time to rest between years of Beverly or to prepare for college.

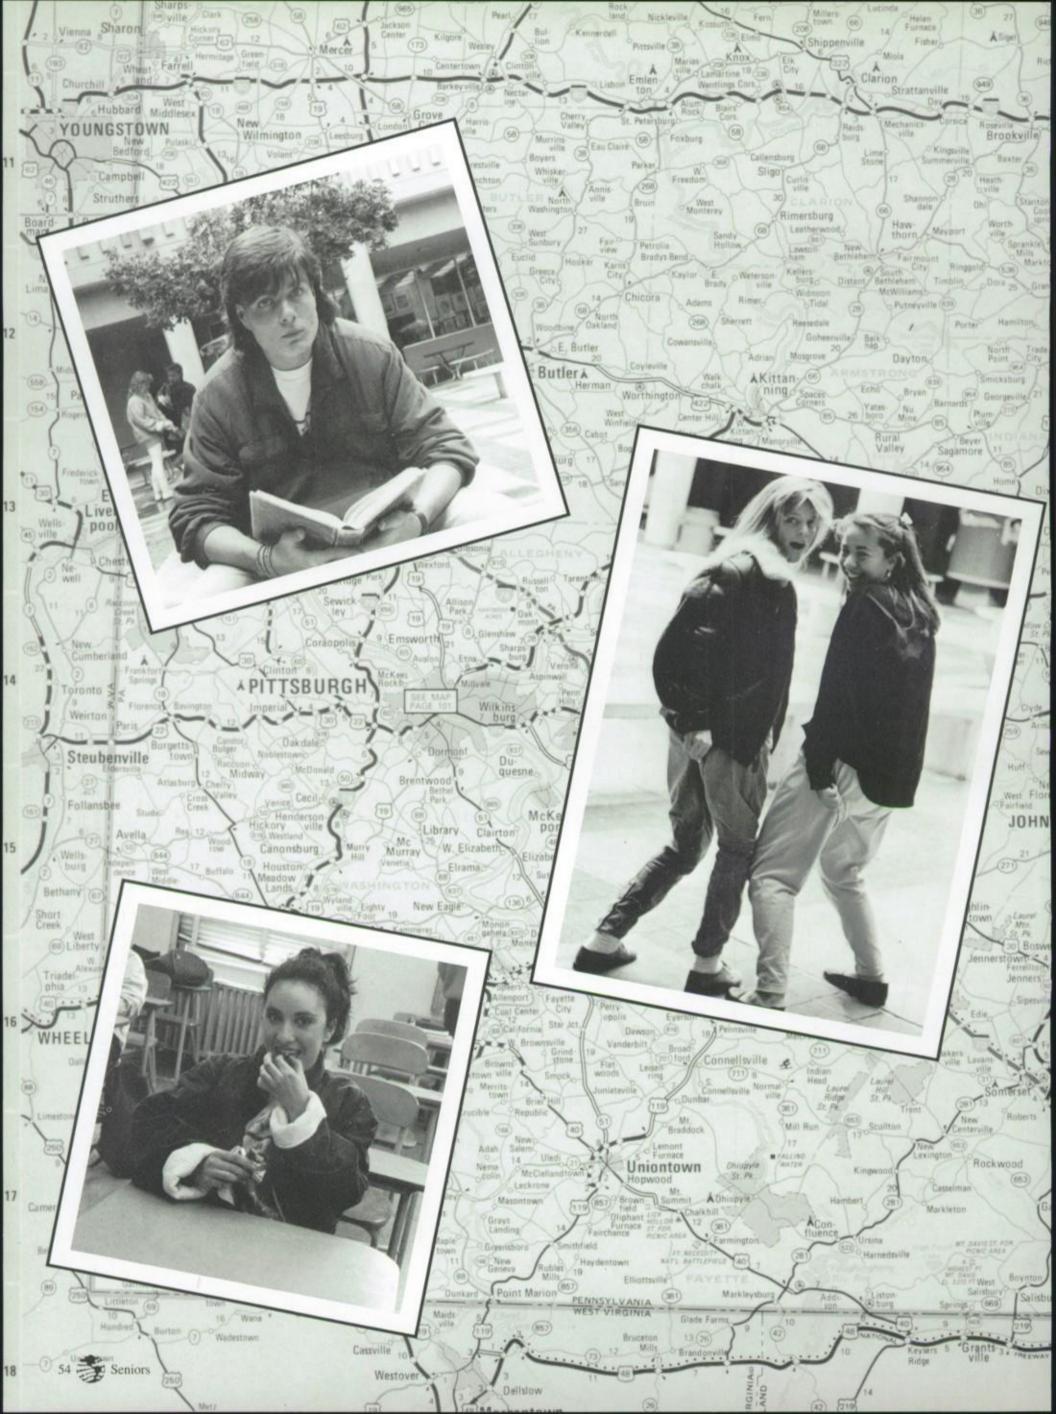

But, regardless of what Beverly students do for these vacations, they are definitely taking on the world and going places.

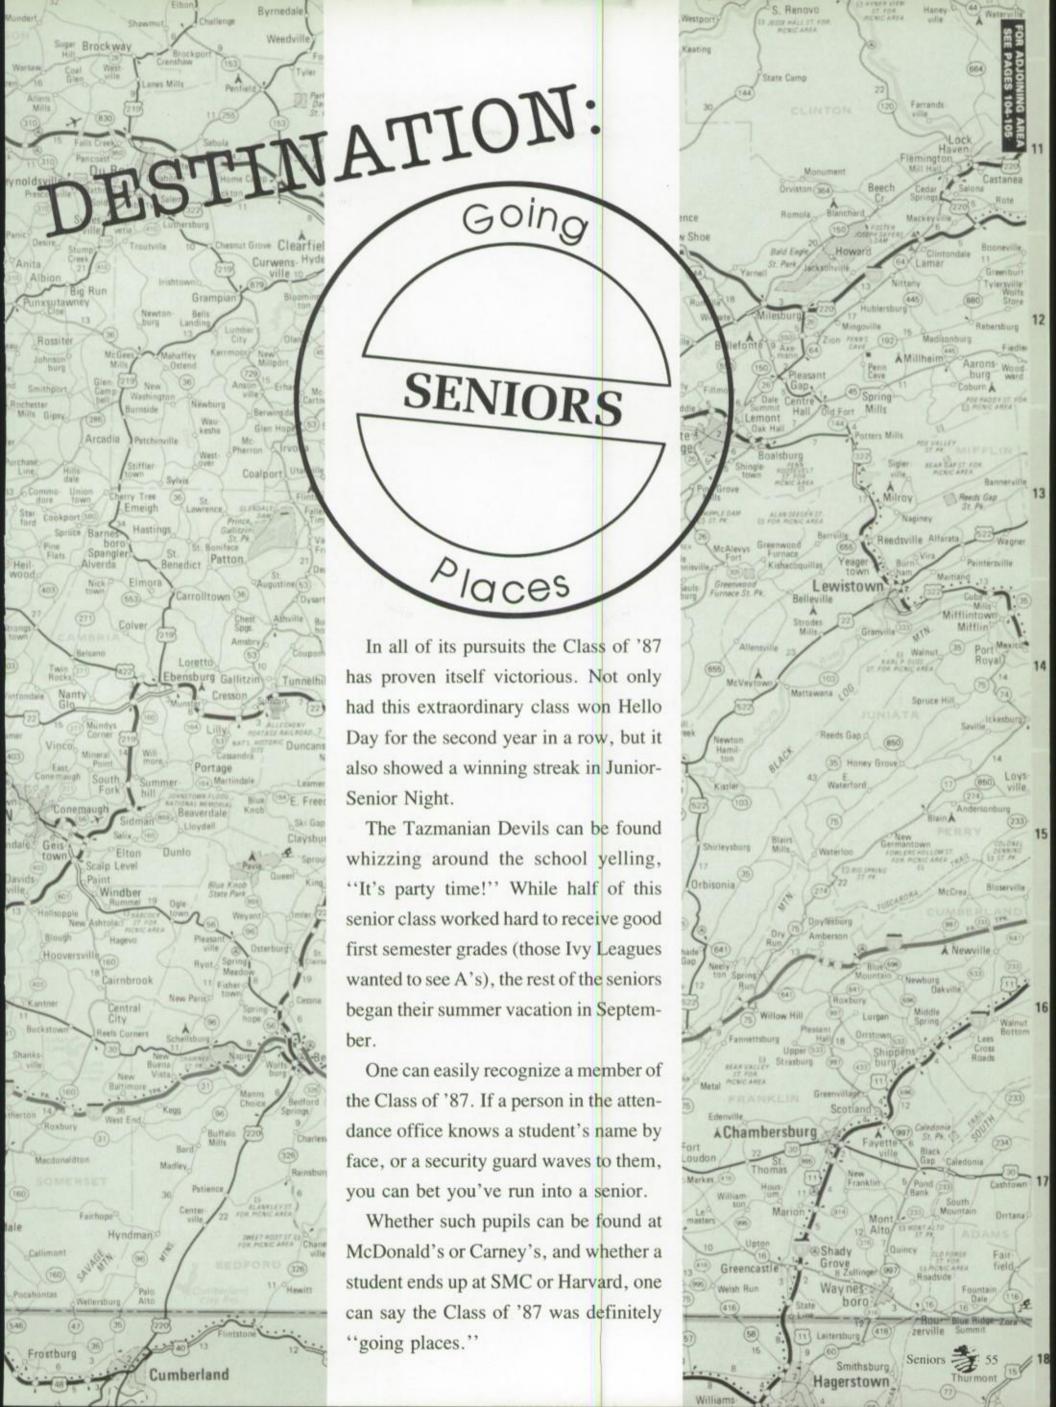

"I spent part of my summer vacation boating in Balboa with Tasha Advani, Kelly Johnson, and Laurel Spellman." Senior Camilla Grozian.

"I'm standing with Ronnie — a cut out poster in a shopping mall in Washington D.C." Senior Jordan Fishman.

Spanish Tour guide

Fast talking brings adventures in Spain

Ocean he went. During this past summer, Dean Shapiro was a tour guide for the International Studies Abroad Program in Spain. Students and faculty both stayed in dorms at the University of Madrid.

"This summer was not only rewarding, but it was also challenging. It was great to see other people have the same appreciation for Spanish artwork as I have," Shapiro added.

Shapiro was responsible for leading a group of 18 students through the extensive Prado Museum. The challenging part of the trip came from the fact that Shapiro has only been speaking Spanish for 2 years.

While students took courses on the language, guides, such as Shapiro, were required to take classes on Spanish literature and geography.

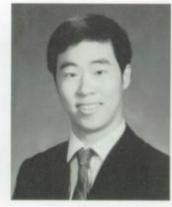

"I had so much fun this past summer that I would definitely recommend this program to anyone with a sense of adventure and a love for Spanish," Shapiro summed up.

Gymnastics champ rejects the Olympics

When gymnastics star Laura Hornwood, 18, was eight, she passed up a chance to train in New York for the 1984 Olympics.

"My family life and education were more important to me at the time," recalled the Beverly senior.

Since the age of six, Hornwood has been interested in gymnastics. During a competition, a gym club owner saw her perform, and impressed by her style, signed her up for his club called LASG.

Hornwood has had her share of injuries, including a broken leg and wrist and a sprained neck. Due to the leg and neck injuries, she had to refrain from gymnastic activity for two-and-a-half years.

During her four years on Beverly's gym team, Hornwood usually ranked as the school's best gymnast. She was in the Jewish Olympics in Detroit where she and her team competed against 80 other gymnasts and earned a bronze medal.

For the future, Hornwood says, "I hope to receive a scholarship in gymnastics and to compete on college teams."

Junior speed racer skis up to the top

Junior Adam Gooch is presently a down hill ski racer with the Mammoth Ski Club. Gooch has been skiing for seven years, but he has been racing seriously for only three years.

Being part of the ski club means working hard and putting in extra time. Since Gooch is in this club he gets special opportunities, one of which was a chance to be on the Junior Olympic team. Unfortunately, he did not get a chance to participate because of illness.

Gooch has tripled his racing results since he joined the team. He started off being ranked 360 in the nation for his age group and in only three years he has moved up to hold a position in the 30s. In 1986 Gooch won the "most improved" award out of the en-

"Winning the award was a big honor for me. All of the other members live in Mammoth so they have the advantage over me, yet sometimes they take it for granted and they might not work as hard," said Gooch. Because of Gooch's tremendous results, Atomic Ski Wear sponsors his training.

Young writer has future in TV world

Have you ever wondered how a television show is put together? Just ask Robert Rich.

"It's not easy (to put a show together)," said Rich. Over the summer, Rich worked as a production assistant at Paramount Studios.

"I basically was what you could call a runner, but I learned so much about the industry," Rich explains. He learned how to work on a television show and found it fascinating. Rich worked on the television show "Mac Gyver."

"I was interested in the way the show uses the mind over violence," he said. "Mac Gyver" cleverly thinks of a way to escape a situation as opposed to using violence.

He has presented some ideas to the producers and is currently in the process of writing a script with another fellow production assistant, in addition to being the author of this year's Hello Day script.

Rich was hired for the school year and will work in the summer, too. Who knows, the next episode of "Mac Gyver" could be the one Robert Rich wrote.

Foreign Adventure

Japanese life style is shocking change

Aki-Fuchi is the name of a high school in Japan. Sophomore Jeremy Kahn spent the first half of his freshman year in Japan as a student of the School Exchange Service.

Kahn noted, "After spending a year in a foreign country, one really gets a sense of the culture."

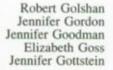

Kahn had to become accustomed to wearing slippers on school grounds, abiding by strict school rules, and following scheduled study sessions. On the other hand, Kahn found that Japan is becoming more Westernized.

"They are not only familiar with American music groups, but they also give their own music groups American names. For example, "Boy or Man" is a very popular Japanese rock group."

While Kahn only spoke a little Japanese before his trip, he was still required to take the same classes as a native: Japanese literature, language lab (in which Kahn tutored English) and geometry.

Kahn had some final words for anyone interested in studying abroad. "Go, definitely go!"

He's making it big!

Show business kid reaches for the top

He's got it! Noah Hathaway has got what it takes to make it big! Since the age of two, he has been involved in show business. "I wanted to be in the business, I asked to do it, and I love it," he said.

He has appeared on numerous commercials and on such television shows as "Battlestar Galactica," "Happy Days," "Mork and Mindy," and the sitcom "Together We stand" with Elliot Gould.

"I prefer doing movies to television," he said. He has also appeared in such movies as "Troll," "Best Friends" with Burt Reynolds and Goldie Hawn, and "The Never Ending Story."

Since the age of four, Hathaway has been dancing. "I love to dance," he said. "I prefer jazz because I can put out a lot of energy and it feels great!" he said. He is in a dance group with eight others called "Slight Touch." The group travels to different states to perform. "The feeling is great when I'm up on stage dancing and the audience is cheering," he said.

Hathaway said, "I want to be the best at whatever I can."

Amazing Magician

Magician has tricks up his sleeve

Roy Urman, a freshman has a different interest than most kids his age.

At the age of nine, he became interested in magic. While at a party, Urman spotted a friend performing magic tricks. The boy belonged to a magic club; Urman questioned him about his magical ability and was given a book to read.

"He told me where to buy tricks and taught me for a couple months and from then on I went on my own," stated Urman practices his hobby almost every day about twice a month performs in shows or at kids' parties.

Urman was asked by his mother's friend, president of the "Young Juniors Club," to perform in Israel.

Urman also performed in Israel at a bat-mitzvah and for kids who live on kibbutzes.

For the future, Urman says, "I plan to go to college and become a real estate lawyer. I will do magic as a hobby and to entertain friends.

Varsity team star

Freshman champion scores top on court

Hard work is the key to success. For Courtney Rose this can be considered an understatement.

Being the only freshman to make the varsity tennis team this year and playing No. 1 are just a few of her credentials.

"In general it is very difficult for a freshman to make the varsity team during the freshman year," said Coach Susan Stevens. "Courtney has been a wonderful addition to the team."

Rose placed 12th in the National Indoor Tournament in Detroit and she also made it to the finals of the Girls' USTA Tournament in Anaheim.

In the 1985-1986 season she ranked 20th in the nation in the 14-and-under age division as well as being ranked 12th in Southern California.

Rose says her "main goal is to be No. 1 in California and in the nation." Since last year she has moved up and held the number 10 position in the region. "In the future I hope to play professional tennis," Rose remarked.

Rose said, "I think this was a good year for the entire team. I also did well in individual competition." She has a difficult goal to achieve yet at the rate she is going it shouldn't be too long.

Scandals and epidemics sweep the US

It was the right time for Liberty and the wrong time for tyranny. It was a time of fear and a time when bad habits caught up with us. All in all, it was a period of progressivism, moderation, and deceleration.

The nightmare of nuclear disaster finally became a shocking reality when the worst occurred at a Soviet nuclear plant in Chernobyl. The fire released a radioactive cloud that spread far outside the Soviet Union. European officials began to monitor farm products for signs of contamination — as far as Tokyo. Thirty-one Soviets reportedly died in the reactor fire and the radiation may eventually cause at least 4,000 deaths.

The color yellow came to symbolize "People Power" when Corazon Aquino was elected the leader of the Philippines. Her opponent, Ferdinand Marcos, tried to rig the elections, but his failure to do so led to the end of 20 years of despotic rule. Marcos and his wife are currently in exile in Hawaii, while Aquino is left to face the crippled national economy, a widening guerilla war, and disloyal generals. But none of these challenges could undermine the exhilarating image of democracy triumphant.

Democracy was recognized in the United States, too, as the Statue of Liberty celebrated its 100th birthday after undergoing a $69 million renovation. The party was filled with Hollywood-style song and dances and the largest display of fireworks ever. Miss Liberty remains America's favorite icon, an enduring symbol of idealism, energy, and self-confidence.

What once was chic with the elite, became the symbol of failure: cocaine. The death of 22-year-old Len Bias riveted the nation's attention. Bias had been drafted by the Boston Celtics and had signed a $1.6 million deal to endorse sneakers, but misuse of cocaine took its toll. It was suddenly clear: cocaine, the glamour drug, could kill even the light user, striking at random. When crack, a cheap, highly addictive form of the drug, appeared, anger spread across the country. Congress passed a strong drug bill to educate and detour uses of drugs and First Lady Nancy Reagan spread her "Say No To Drugs" campaign. America finally believed that drugs weren't fun and games.

Drugs were not the only thing spreading. AIDS suddenly became an important factor in the lives of everyone. It was no longer the "gay disease," but rather a disease able to potentially strike both homosexuals and heterosexuals. The message was clear — if one was going to engage in any form of sex, it became a necessity to use a condom. Sales increased and women no longer feared humiliation by purchasing condoms. For the first time ever, advertisements for condoms appeared on national television.

"What did the president know and when did he know it?" Secret dealing with Iran and millions of dollars diverted to the contras became the biggest diplomatic disaster for Reagan. The president acknowledged that he had not been "fully informed" about his aides' activities in the sale of weapons to Iran in exchange for the release of hostages. Attorney Edwin Meese then delivered the bombshell discovery that up to $30 million in secret profits from the weapons deal had somehow been diverted to the support of Nicaraguan contras. The two men who seemed to know the most, former National Security Adviser John Poindexter and former staffer Oliver North, were taking the Fifth Amendment — and Reagan's credibility was in tatters. Consequently, Donald Regan, chief of staff, resigned and Howard Baker replaced him, due in part to pressures from First Lady Nancy Reagan. Whether or not Reagan will be able to gain the trust of Americans again was a burning question.

Reagan's unsuccessful summit meeting in Iceland with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev ended in an impasse on arms reduction, and did little to restore Reagan's credibility in his generally unsuccessful term (left). Vials of "crack," a highly potent form of cocaine, came to symbolize a deadly national problem (above).

Students seek out the latest hot spots

Nowhere to go? Nothing to do? Nowhere to eat? Students are always complaining that there is nothing to do in LA. But, if one really thinks about it, there is plenty to do — especially eat!!!

Ever-popular restaurants, such as Islands, The Cheesecake Factory, and Flakey Jakes, continued to attract the teenage crowd. Also, students could grab a quick bite to eat at fast-food restaurants and drive-thrus, such as Carl's Jr., McDonalds, Jack-in-the-Box, and Taco Bell.

One of the newest dining trends was that of Cajun and Creole cuisine. Restaurants such as Patout's or The Ritz that specialized in this Louisiana regional cuisine made popular such unusual dishes as blackened fish, chicken Lizzy, stuffed quail, and spicy shrimp creole. Japanese sushi moved over for the more popular Thai cuisine, but on the whole, diners were leaning toward something a little less exotic. More and more, people were going out for home cooking. As paradoxical as it sounds, people went to restaurants such as Yanks or to '50s style diners and coffee shops to eat good ol' American food: macaroni and cheese, chicken pot pie, BBQ ribs, and even meatloaf.

After wining and dining, it's time for dessert. How about Penguin's, Fantasia, or Heidi's? Frozen yogurt was the year's low-calorie and ow-fat answer to rich ice creams and Gelato. It's delicious whether eaten "au natural" or smothered in cookie crumbs, candies, fresh fruit or sauces. Too cold for frozen yogurt? People could go to Mrs. Fields for fresh, hot chocolate chip cookies; or to The Muffin Oven or All My Muffins to bite into a jumbo muffin packed with berries, fruits, nuts, and even vegetables. Sounds tempting — but too fattening? Try a water bar. The trendy water bar in Beverly Hills offered an exclusive selection of over 100 brands of international bottled waters, including the popular pure Hawaiian salt-free sparkling Artesian water.

With such a huge selection of different foods, how could people enjoy it all and keep their figures? Working out was still a major focus of the year. Memberships at health clubs, such as Family Fitness Center or Sports Connection offered opportunities to burn some calories and energy playing racquetball or using machines. Those less inclined to sweat could take advantage of the facilities to eat healthy snacks, meet friends, or people-watch.

After all that hard work, how could people show off that new physique? What better way than in new clothes. The trendiest stores included Champs, Anne Klein, MGA, and Fred Segal. For convenience in shopping, one could go to various malls such as the Beverly Center, the Westside Pavillion, and Century City and find many clothing stores as well as restaurants.

All dressed up, but no place to go? Students continued to flock to Melrose Avenue and Westwood to shop, eat, and buy records. If the records in Tower or Penny Lane weren't to the student's liking, he could record his own song at Recording Star in Westwood. He could sing to such tunes as those of Whitney Houston, Lionel Richie, the Beach Boys, Phil Collins, or Peter Gabriel. For $11.95, one could go into a sound-proof recording studio, put on headphones, and sing and record his own voice in lieu of that of the professional singer.

Students could listen to music and watch lights at the Laserium in the Griffith Park Observatory. Music by such groups as Pink Floyd, the Police, and Van Halen were played. For their viewing pleasure, students could rent video tapes at Tower Video or the Wherehouse and relax at home.

Don't want to relax at home? Try ice-skating at the Culver City Ice Rink. From 8:00 p.m.-10:30 p.m. or from 11 p.m.-1 a.m., enjoy ice-skating or just sit in the coffee shop.

Los Angeles is not such a boring place after all. There are many places to go and things to do. So, stop complaining and go out and have some fun!!!

ENTERTAINMENT

Entertainment thrives on public opinion

It was a sizzling year in Hollywood. Seen at movie theaters across the country were films of action, comedy and drama. It was a year to have fun, go out, or stay in. New television shows had people staying home more to catch their favorite sitcom, drama series, or even game show.

Sooner than you could say "G' day," "Crocodile Dundee" wrestled its way to No. 1 on America's charts. This adventure film starred Paul Hogan as Michael J. "Crocodile" Dundee, the only man to be attacked by a crocodile and not only survive, but kill the croc. The female reporter, played by Linda Kozlowski sent to get his story, also became his girlfriend in the film.

Another big film this year was "Top Gun," pulling in over $176 million. This top 10 sensation starred Tom Cruise soaring across the screen as the rebel Navy pilot, "Maverick." His co-star Kelly McGinnis, played his main love interest and advisor to the Navy classes.

"Platoon," which also fared well this year, starred Charlie Sheen. Heading for the top of the charts, director Oliver Stone brought his personal experiences to the screen with his original screenplay of "Platoon." "Platoon" was an American soldier's viewpoint of life on the warfront during the Vietnam War.

The Motion Picture Academy announced its nominations for the Oscars. Among the nominees were "A Room With a View," an adaptation of Forester's romantic novel of two people falling in love through Italy and England; as well as "Hannah and Her Sisters," Woody Allen's story of a woman and how her family intertwines with her life. The film "Children of a Lesser God" depicted the struggles in the relationship between a deaf woman, played by newcomer Marlee Matlin, and her hearing lover, played by William Hurt.

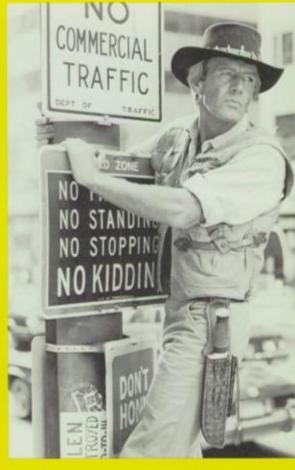

Still grabbing the attention of all TV viewers is the Thursday night line-up on NBC. "The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," "Cheers," and "Night Court" were sitcoms that constantly rated in the Neilson top five. "L.A. Law" was a new drama series out that had been earning the attention of a lot of T.V. viewers. Corwin Bernsen, a Beverly graduate, plays a divorce lawyer. The main plot of this series is the problems the lawyers face in personal and work life.

Big on the TV screen were talk shows. One star from "The Color Purple" came out with one, "The Oprah Winfrey Show." It has a similar format to "The Phil Donahue Show." Another woman giving the men of late night a run for their money was Joan Rivers, who came out in "Late Night with Joan Rivers."

Still an ever-popular game show is "Wheel of Fortune" with Vanna White and Pat Sajak entertaining contestants eager for a chance at winning. Also, if luck interests a person they should turn to the "Big Spin" and cross their fingers if they want to be the next multi-million dollar California lottery winner.

MUSIC

Past successes rock the year in music

From the evocative melodies of Paul Simon, to the outrageous rap of the Beastie Boys, this year has brought with it a wide variety of music. As the phonograph was the musical wonder of the '20s, the compact disc player is that of the '80s. Usually selling for the high price of $13, the compact disc holds the key to the future of the music world. The high quality sound of the compact disc can be heard in several ways: a portable player, car or home stereo, and can even be operated by remote control. Because of the compact disc, this year's music was heard with a greater sense of appreciation.

The year could be best summed up as the year of the comeback. Among the popular male artists were Paul Simon, Peter Gabriel, and Steve Winwood. Simon, formerly of the famous duo Simon and Garfunkel, won Album of the Year at the Grammy awards with his critically acclaimed album "Graceland." Many of Simon's songs featured exquisite rhythms and vocals of African musicians, all virtually unknown in the U.S. However, some critics felt Simon violated the United Nations cultural boycott against South Africa when he recorded part of the set in Johannesburg two years ago.

More than a decade after he bid farewell to Genesis, Peter Gabriel finally hit "big time" with the most commercially successful album of his solo career. Gabriel, with his hit album "So," including singles such as "Big Time," "Sledgehammer," and "In Your Eyes," and his innovative music videos, firmly established himself as a dominating force in the music business.

Steve Winwood, originally from smaller groups such as Blind Faith, Traffic, and The Spencer Davis Group, is also finally enjoying success with his debut album "Back in the High Life," featuring the single "Higher Love."

Among the female comeback artists on the charts again were Tina Turner, Barbra Streisand, and Madonna, each with one or more nominations for a Grammy award this year. Turner, best known for her spiked hair and great legs, has continued her revival in the music world with her hit album "Break Every Rule."

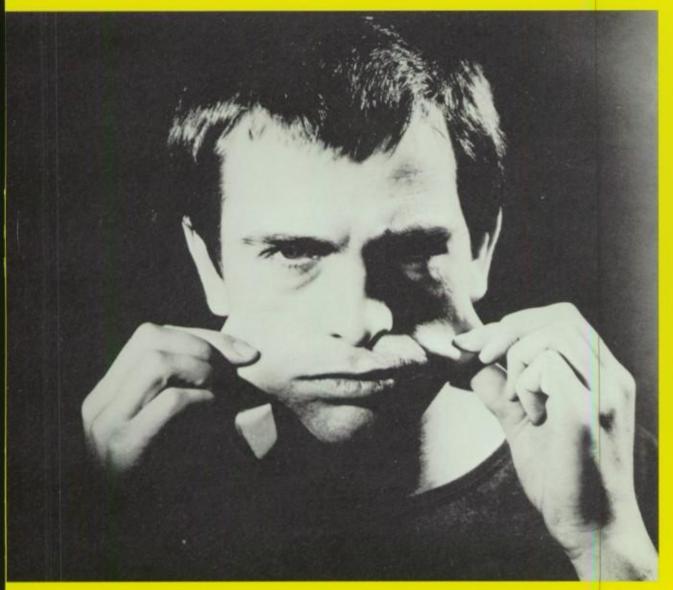

Another woman still going strong in a longlasting career, Streisand is back successful "The Broadway Album."

Years younger and quite different from the two preceeding women, Madonna is at it again with her most recent album "True Blue," featuring such hits as "Papa Don't Preach" and "Open Your Heart." Madonna, known for flaunting her body in skimpy clothing, has changed her image this year with a new look, evoking comparisons to Marilyn Monroe.

One of the most popular groups of the year was Genesis, with lead singer Phil Collins. Other popular artists were Whitney Houston, David Lee Roth, Anita Baker, Huey Lewis and The News, Robert Palmer, and Lionel Richie. Janet Jackson hit it big with her smashing album "Control." In the heavy metal category, Bon Jovi did exceedingly well and Van Halen, with new lead singer Sammy Hagar, was also popular. Artists such as Bruce Springsteen, The Police, and Billy Joel came out with longawaited collections of greatest hits. Run DMC, The Beastie Boys, and The Fat Boys are examples of the rapping style of music that is increasingly becoming popular. Some new groups which made a big impression were Bruce Hornsby and the Range and Simply Red.

This year brought many surprises; not only were there fresh new artists, but also many "oldies but goodies" rekindled their success.

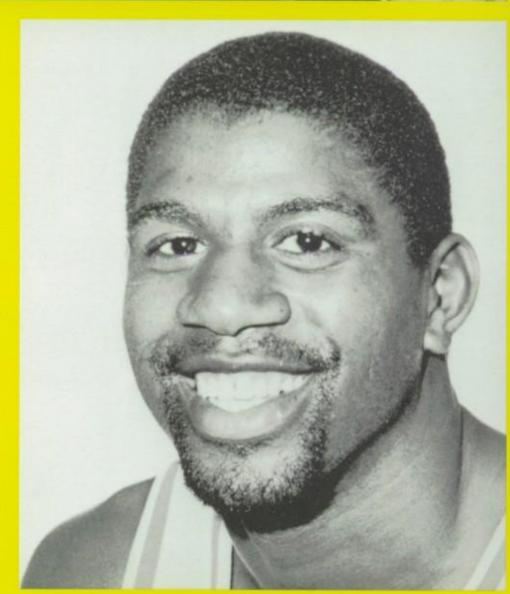

A mugging Peter Gabriel shows that he kept his sense of humor, even after his enormously popular album was overlooked at the Grammys (left). Barbra Streisand relaxes in the studio after recording her Broadway Album (right).

SPORTS

Veterans, newcomers triumph in sports

The year in sports proved to be one of champins, both new and old, comebacks, new eginings and farewells.

New York City enjoyed its finest year ever. he Giants grabbed their first Super Bowl by rushing the Broncos in Super Bowl XXI, 39-0. Led by their dominating defense and biglay offense, the Giants' Coach Bill Parcels was onstantly receiving the winning "Gatorade hower." Also, the Mets took the World Series y defeating the Boston Red Sox in six games. 'heir "never say die" spirit enabaled them to ome back in the ninth inning of game five.

Making his return to the spotlight, Bill hoemaker rode Ferdinand to a victory at the entucky Derby at age 55. At the Masters, Jack licklaus put on the green sportcoat once again at ge 46. In Australia, Dennis Connors' crew board The Stars and Stripes was able to take ack the America's Cup by defeating K III in our straight races. The Boston Celtics once again captured the NBA title by defeating the fying moves and thunderous slam dunks. Houston Rockets.

Comebacks were common throughout the sports world. Sugar Ray Leonard returned to the ring to fight middleweight champion Marvin Hagler in April. San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana made a miraculous comeback from a career-threatening back injury.

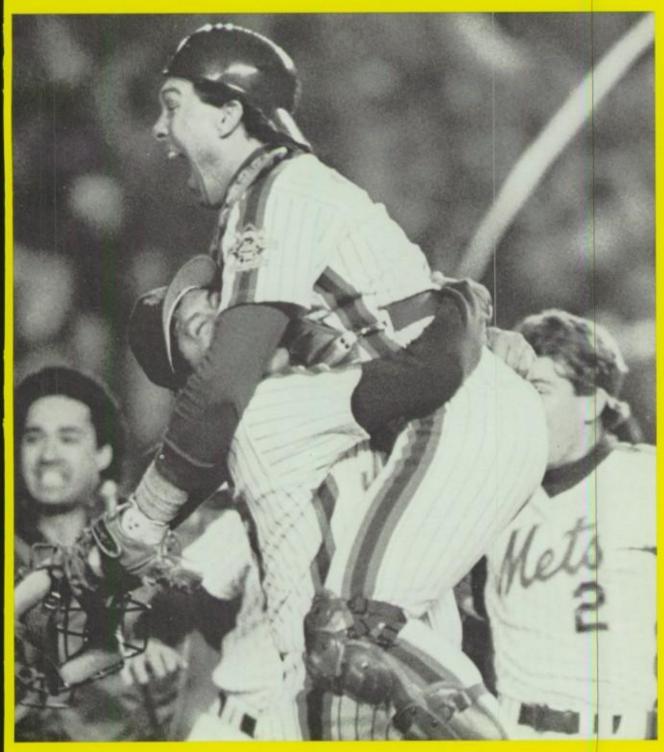

The sports world said goodbye to the retiring ambassador of basketball: Julius Erving. Everyone will miss Dr. J's heroics, on and off the court.

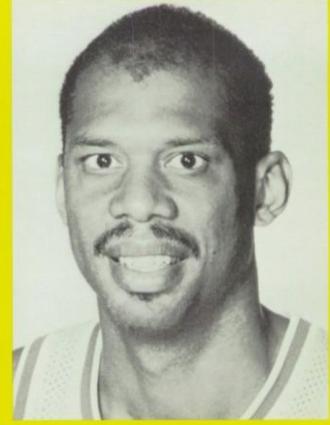

The youngsters of sports also made the headlines. "Iron" Mike Tyson became the youngest heavyweight champ ever at 20 years, four months. Roger Clemens threw his way to the Cy Young and MVP awards for the Boston Red Sox. Winning his second straight Wimbledon title at 19, Boris Becker emerged as one of the world's premier young players. In basketball, Michael Jordan amazed crowds with his electri-

In college athletics, the Penn State Nittany Lions became the national football champions by upsetting the Miami Hurricanes on Jan. 2. The Lions' powerful defense confused Miami's Heisman Trophy quarterback Vinny Testaverde into throwing five interceptions. The Arizona State Wildcats defeated the Michigan Wolverines at the Rose Bowl. The Louisville Cardinals defeated Duke University in the 1986 NCAA Finals. The Cardinals were led by freshman center Pervis Ellison.

No year goes by without its tragedies. Both Len Bias and Don Rogers were killed after a deadly overdose of cocaine. In Japan, American volleyball star Flo Hyman was struck down by a fatal heart attack.

If there was one word to describe the 1986-87 sports year: it would be "surprising."

OBITUARIES

Musical entertainer Benny Goodman entertained his audiences with his clarinet compositions (above). Singer Kate Smith became well known for her version of the song "God Bless America" (top right). Actor James Cgney may have had a tough image, but he gained recognition for his starring role in the movie "Yankee Doodle Dandy" (right). Among the 1,200 casualties in a toxic gas explosion near Lake Nios in Cameroon was a large group of cows (bottom middle). Comedian and actor Ted Knight was famous in the role of Ted Baxter on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show." Knight also starred in his own television series "Too Close for Comfort" and "The Ted Knight Show," respectively (right).

Lives of celebrities recall memories

It is difficult to live a year of glorious events without mourning the deaths of many memorable people.

Last year, movie actor James Cagney died on March 30. While he was known for his tough gangster roles in movies such as "White Heat" and "Public Enemy," Cagney also became famous for his portrayal of George M. Cohan in the musical motion picture "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Actor Ted Knight died of cancer on Aug. 26, at his home in Pacific Palisades. Though he played various comic roles in movies such as "Caddyshack," he was mostly known for his work in television. One of his most successful roles was that of Ted Baxter, a television anchorman on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show," for which Knight won two Emmy Awards. Most recently, he starred in the situation comedy "Too Close For Comfort." Knight's last series was "The Ted Knight Show."

At the age of 69, actor and singer Desi Arnaz died of cancer last fall in the arms of his (actress) daughter Lucy Arnaz. The humorous expressions of his Cuban accent will always be remembered on the syndicated television series "I Love Lucy."

On Nov. 29, a massive heart attack caused the death of debonair Cary Grant. While Grant can be seen in Hitchcock movies such as "North by Northwest" and "To Catch a Thief," he became famous for his good looks and suave mannerisms. Grant was 82 years old.

The deadly virus AIDS took the life of ingenious pianist Liberace. Not only was he an amusing entertainer, but Liberace also became well known for his flamboyant attire, his ostentatious jewelry, and his elegant candleabras.

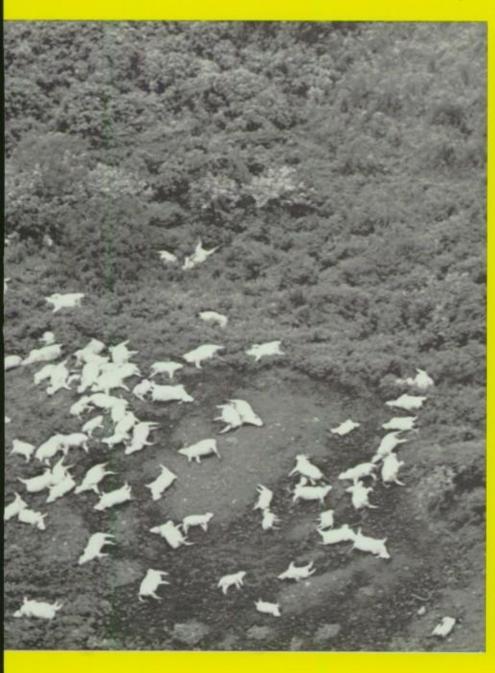

A major pioneer of the 1960s, pop artist Andy Warhol died on Feb. 23, of complications after gallbladder surgery in New York. First noted for his Campbell's soup cans in the early 1960s, Warhol continued designing the ad campaign images of other products. Another of his famous promotive ideas was the Brillo soap pads box. He was also known for his portraits of celebrities such as Marilyn Monroe and Elvis Presley, in which the same facial portrait would be seen in the checkerboard pattern. Not only was Warhol known for his unique art, but he could be considered a multi-media performer, for he made publications of tapes for artists and made films, his most famous being "Chelsen Girls Girls."

Theater and movie actor James Coco died this year of a heart attack. His quick wit and sarcasm brought smiles and laughter to all of his audiences nationwide. Coco became famous as Sanch Panza, a role in the Broadway musical and movie "Man of La Mancha."

On March 3, comedian and actor Danny Kaye died of a heart attack caused by complications of hepatitis. While Kay was featured in movies such as "Hans Christian Anderson" and "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," he became popular during his world tour for the United Nations Children's Fund in 1956. Kaye was 74 years old.

At the age of 75, clarinet player and bandleader Benny Goodman died at the end of last year. Goodman became the symbol of the "swing era" in jazz in the mid-1930s. He pioneered in the public presentation of interracial music groups introducing Teddy Wilson and Lionel Hampton. He was the first jazz soloist to be the subject of a full-length television program, "The Benny Goodman Show."

FASHION

Guys get into the long hair fashion as well. Ask Dean Shapiro (below). Students Dave Ross, Molly Corey, and Jennifer Silver show that you don't have to be trendy to be stylish (right). #### Style prevails over new fashion trends Fashion is always changing and each year marks the arrival and departure of numerous fashion trends. Let's venture back to September to examine this year's fashion trends.

To begin with, the new school year introduced us to two new styles of jackets. The fringed jackets and the large leather pilot jackets were seen regularly throughout the year. Coincidentally, both styles originated awhile before the jackets emanated as a Beverly phenomenon. Fringed jackets were sported by groups such as The Alarm and Simple Minds, while the movie "Top Gun" introduced the patch covered pilot jackets. Accompanying the arrival of the jackets was a new line of shirts that resembled the old Ton-Sur-Ton line. These shirts came in several colors (primarily pastels) and contained unusual phrases such as "Et Vous." Along with these shirts, over-sized sweaters of many colors and styles remained to be extremely trendy. Finally, to complete the outfit, a new type of pants emerged. These pants were unique in that they possess a crotch that descends almost to the floor. We were informed by many students that these pants provided great comfort and agility.

Shoes also play a vital role in the Beverly dress code. Leather boots, primarily fringed leather boots, were quite a hit this year. Girls enjoyed wearing them with anything from pants to shorts. This year proved to be the year of pointed shoes. The pointed shoes fetish actually emerged from more non-conforming groups of people (mods, punks, gothics, etc.) who purchased their shoes from stores on Melrose. However, copies of these shoes were being sold by malls everywhere thus making them "hot" in the fashion world. Humongous, unlaced high-tops have also re-emerged as a fashion sensation resulting from the popularity of rap music celebrities Run DMC and those darling little Beastie Boys.

As well as shoes, each new school year never fails to bring new items from the wonderful world of accessories. The accessory that has probably been the biggest success is the hair bow. Another trendy accessory was those small, leather purses that were worn across the body. One student claimed that those purses are very convenient. "They enable me to carry a few things without having to schlep a large purse." she said. This idea seemed to affect guys, who believed that wearing their book bags across their chests was the macho thing to do.

Speaking of macho images, Don Johnson created a craze with his stubbly appearance. On an average day, one could catch a glimpse of at least a few guys with a five o'clock shadow at twelve noon. Was it laziness or trendiness? Guys aren't the only ones who have acquired a new look, girls have also undergone a drastic change in appearance this past year. The style this year has been long hair and less make-up as opposed to shorter hair and heavy make-up.

That was where the 1986-87 year in fashion ended. Of course, this has also been a year of individuality as well as trendiness. Every school needs its eccentric people to add a special touch. Beverly's individuality can be seen through various groups such as mods, punks, skins, gothics and many more. It goes without saying that fashion is always present in many different ways and it always will be!

Community activities spark controversy

This was an eventful year in Beverly Hills. Along with the victories came the tragedies beyond anyone's control. It was a year when the community came together, whether to build a new library or to give people safe rides home.

The old library on Rexford was moved to a temporary location on Foothill Road for about 2½ years. The city is in the process of building a new library and Civic Center. They are doubling the size of the library.

"Good Evening. Arrive Alive Safe Rides Program. My name is ... Can I help you?" This is the friendly voice of a volunteer who talks to anyone who calls AR-ALIVE. This program was designed by concerned citizens in May 1986, to give students who are with someone drunk or are drunk themselves, a safe ride home by a Beverly Hills taxi cab with no questions asked. The volunteers were students and parents. Anyone could call them Friday or Saturday nights from 10 until 2 in the morning for a ride.

Late in June, a tragedy occurred on Rodeo Drive when Van Cleef and Arpels Jewelry Store was robbed by Steven Livaditis. While trying to escape, he took five store employees hostage. After the 13-hour siege, three out of the five people were killed, and Livaditis was arrested on three counts of murder, five of robbery, one of burglary and three of kidnapping.

During the Christmas season, Wilshire Boulevard was especially bright. This year, the city purchased new decorations that made the street look even brighter and prettier. Strings of lights were strung across the street in the form of people ice skating, houses, and snowmen. This replaced the old snowflakes. The lights gave an effect that they were moving. Also, on the decorated lamp posts were signs of "Seasons Greetings" and "Welcome to Beverly Hills."

The city also suffered a touch of sibling rivalry when Mayor Charlotte Spadaro suggested that Beverly Hills join with Cannes, France as sister cities. The Council was split on the idea, citing that France refused permission for American planes to cross French airspace on the way to the bombing of Libya that month. The ordinance passed and Cannes Mayor, Anne-Marie Dupuy, visited Beverly Hills and learned the ins and outs of Beverly Hills City government.

Another civic controversy occurred when a prominent Municipal Court judge was charged with waiving fines for over 200 parking tickets for his son and his son's friends.

Imagine this: Going into a restaurant and having no smoking whatsoever. The No Smoking Law, prohibiting smoking in all restaurants except for those in hotels or with bar areas, passed Restaurant owners thought it would damage business because smokers would go over the border to eat in a Los Angeles restaurant instead.

Proposition K was introduced to try to solve the huge school district budget deficit. Owners of every house or apartment would have to pay $270 per year to give to the district. But when the voting took place on March 3, it failed. The Proposition needed 66.6% to win but only received 59.9%. As a result, 40 teachers and classified workers received layoff notices.

Although years come and go, this year was filled with eventful activities. Some were helpfu and others were devastating to the community.

New Christmas decorations were a welcome change from the snowflakes of previous years, and a revenue draw from out of-town shoppers (left). Exclusive jewelry store Van Clee and Arpels was the sight of a startling tragedy (above).

Will you sign my yearbook?"

It happens every year. Just when you're convinced that you can't dredge up another witty and appropriate message to write in another yearbook, yet another person adds his yearbook to your ever-growing stack. How can you write something that is timely and reasonably personal, and, most importantly, how can you write it in the 25 seconds remaining before the tardy bell rings?

Your prayers have been answered. By simply selecting the appropriate responses of this simple "yearbook message form," you are assured the perfect personalized message to leave for any autograph hound that might come your way.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY BEVERLY!!

Over the past 60 years, Beverly has grown from a student body of 325 students in a building surrounded by grass fields and dirt roads, to a student population of more than 2,000 in what has possibly become the most romanticized city in the nation.

When Beverly Hills High School first opened its doors in 1927, Calvin Coolidge was president and prohibition was in effect, whereas today Republican Ronald Reagan is president and the students' conservative ideas are present. In 1987, the 60th anniversary of Beverly's opening, we are able to look back and see the noticeable differences.

Practicing weekly during the late 1920s and 1930s, the Beverly Hills High Bowling League participated in matches. The oil well issue was a big deal, considering the Board received royalties which averaged about $500 a month. The boys and girls gymnasiums were built because the Los Angeles Board of Education approved a plan for improvements to the extent of $150,000. In 1931, the enrollment of the school almost doubled to 1,800 students.

During the 40s, many Beverly students rushed to the aid of people in need during World War II. Several school organizations helped war orphans. The Girls' Athletic Association collected a dime a month from its members to send food, clothing and toys to a European orphan while the Home Economic Club sent five French orphans monthly boxes of food and clothes. As it expanded in its social consciousness, Beverly also expanded its territory by buying six acres of land west of Heath Avenue. The land was to be used as a parking lot, six tennis courts, a lunch area and a location for agricultural studies.

"Rock Around the Clock" was the 1950s motto, but did Beverly students partake in any fun, social activities? In 1951 students fought to prevent the closing down of the Norm Inn, a recreation room sponsored by an adult advisory board. Activities such as dances and movies were held regularly. Shutting it down was not an easy thing to do, but school officials proceeded with its closing due to lack of funds.

The yester years of the Beatles, the Monkees, and miniskirts are history, but those of us at Beverly can not forget the opening of the Business Education Building. This is where students were able to learn the essentials of typing, computers and business skills. A political organization started by Beverly students called USF (United Students For Freedom) was established in 1968. The purpose of this group was to show the American people that there were students who wish to find a better way to deal with hard times by hard work and no violence.

During the implementation of the new bell schedule called Mod-70, students were feeling "groovy." Why? Students had free mods and double mod classes. It was not strange to find students sitting on the patio during their free mods stringing love beads. The Board approved $8,500 in funds for the purchase of equipment for Beverly's newly formed radio station. The station was first broadcast in the cafeteria and patios. LSD and marijuana were both trends in 1967-1973 at Beverly, and the usage of these drugs was higher than in most other high schools. In 1975, the students' drug usage decreased tremendously.

Depression, rebellion, professionalism, and Beatlemania have all filled the crowded hallways at Beverly."

As we live through the '80s we can still see controversial issues. A new bell schedule has been implemented called Project-85. This program took away the freedom of free mods and double mods. Students go to classes which are held for 50 minutes everyday. Drastic cuts and changes have been made this past year due to lack of funds. Deficit spending was a familiar term with both the president of the United States and Beverly High. The Board had to send out layoff notices to the newest teachers and teachers of cut classes.

Perhaps the people most aware of the changes through the years are those peolpe who have been at Beverly since earlier years.

Assistant Principal Ruth Friedman retired this year after having been at Beverly for 21 years. When she accepted the position as school dean in 1965, the school was very different. Friedman remembers the separation of the girls from the boys. The school day was a traditional six period day with a mandatory dress code.

"In those days I knew students by sight. The big difference about kids from the '60s and today is that the students today are more relaxed. Today, students have come to a happy medium: they are interested in achieving for themselves as well as for their community," added Friedman.

Science teacher Adrian Bal, who has taught the longest in the district, sees a resemblance between the student of the 80s and the 50s. He said, "Teenagers of today seem to be more concerned with grades and college, compared to the 'laid back' attitude attitude of the 60s generation."

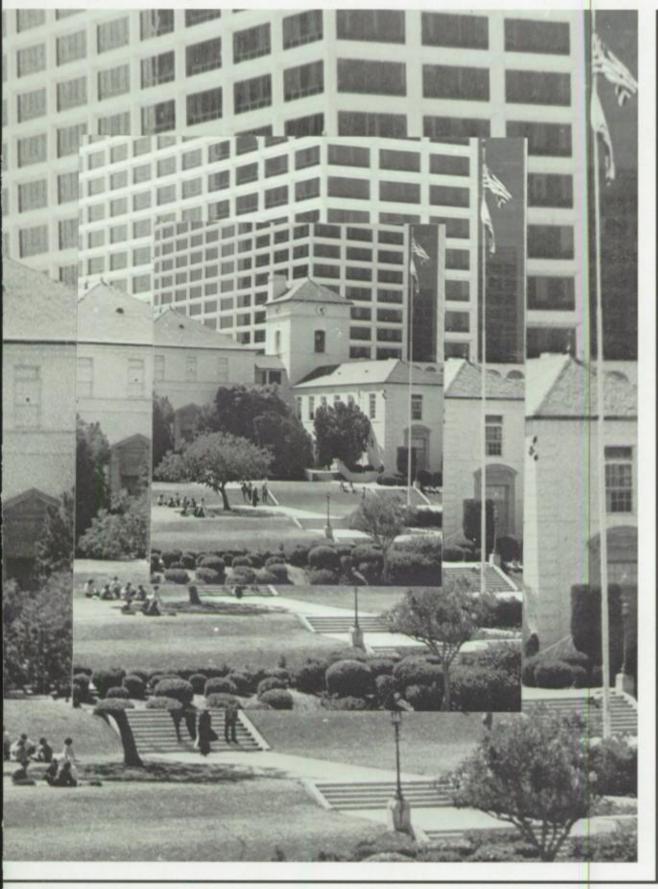

Reflecting back on his high school days, Performing Arts Chairman Joel Pressman remembers when he himself was a student at Beverly. He recalls sitting in a Latin class while watching Twentieth Century Fox film a Western in their lot behind Heath Avenue, just outside the window.

Depression, professionalism, rebellion, and Beatlemania have all filled the crowded hallways with a different variety each year. Students of today might not realize that what they do in their years at high school will be remembered, but it is quite the contrary. Future students will look back on our time as a different atmosphere from what they will know.

An aerial view of Beverly Hills shows how Beverly High has expanded from a large empty field in 1927 to a very urbanized city (above).

Still going strong after 60 years

950s: Facing their targets, the girls' archery team shows heir form as they "tackle" their stands.

1960s: Signaling the calls, softball players show their stuff during a season game.

1920s: Beverly's first football team celebrates its end of the first season in 1929 with a banquet. This tradition continues each year when any sports team finishes their season.

1930s: The boys' varsity basketball team played a winning season. They won every game up to the finals where they tied for first place with Van Nuys for the championship.

1940s: Four team members stand tall as they represent the varsity 1941 basketball team. Today, the girls' basketball team consists of at least 12 members.

1970s: In the '70s sit-ins were very popular and shown here are some Beverly students participating in a sit-in for world peace.

English, Mathematics, PE react to new state changes

ACADEMICS

"As colleges continuously raise their standards of admission, students must work harder to attend the school of their choice."

ife is not all fun and games. As colleges continuously raise their standards of admission, students must work harder to attend the school of their choice.

Beginning this year, the state has mandated certain requirements for each academic department. Beverly students can be found working hard in history, math, physical education, English, science, or foreign language.

ENGLISH

The students piled into their period four English class prepared to take their essay test. Yet, the topic seemed more narrow and descriptive and the students were forced to think about the answer.

This emphasis on thinking was exactly what the English Department, headed by chairman Roberta Beatty, intended as it took on a new style of education this year.

Beatty stated that the department was "revising the writing problems to reflect the UC tests and State of California exams."

The essay exams have changed from broad topics to more descriptive problems designed to perfect the student's thinking ability.

The Hart Law and sophomore proficiency exams changed accordingly.

"The Hart Law topic is more autobiographical and the sophomore competency test is based on a controversial issue," Beatty explained.

Earlier in the year, the department faced a tragedy with the death of David Cowan. An excellent and patient teacher, "he was everybody's friend," said Beatty.

Nancy Boraz replaced Cowan.

Student X was panting as he looked up at his teacher who smiled and said, "Three more to go." Although many students feel that the track is their enemy, they take advantage of the wide variety of programs offered by the PE Department.

Education Department, spoke of some of the with an air of confidence.

new policies they enacted.

"If a student is well enough to go to school, he's well enough to stretch and participate in modified activity," Leeds stated.

Also included in the new policies is the fact that unexcused absences may not be made up. Students must also be present two-thirds of the time, regardless of excuse, to pass the class.

This year, Beverly's athletic program has been chosen by the state to act as a model for other districts.

"We are involved in what is called a comprehensive health education program and we act as a role model for other schools," Leeds explained.

Alix Plum replaced Margaret McFadden in the PE department.

MATHEMATICS

Question: 17-(-2) = 15? If one answered yes to the above problem, he or she should spend more time in the Mathematics Department.

Headed by Larry Stees, the Math Department has also been affected by the new state require-

"Due to the new state math framework, we are starting to use concrete materials or manipulatives to introduce concepts," Stees stated.

This new process was implemented to help students obtain a better visual understanding of an idea as opposed to memorization.

This new process of education was most noticeable in AAT and Pre-Algebra. Pre-Algebra will be renamed Math A and it will be followed by Math B beginning next year. The use of computers was also introduced this year in AAT.

When speaking of departmental changes, Stees also explained that they were in the process of "rewriting the placement standards so as not to misplace an unprepared student."

Few teachers came or went this year in the Math Department. Lisa Craig left on sabbatical and her temporary replacement is Val Lodholm.

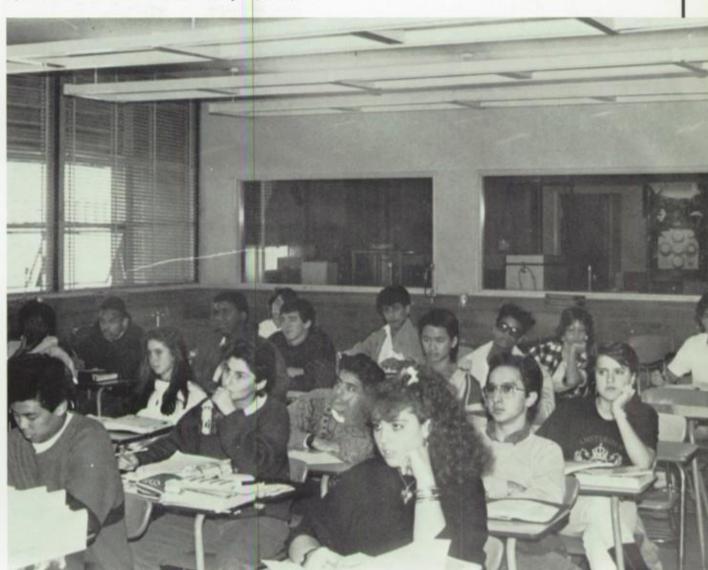

Hopefully, this new system will prove successful Margaret Leeds, chairman of the Physical and students will be able to say "17-(-2)=19"

State renews emphasis excellence in Academics

ACADEMICS

"Competing only in Spanish, Beverly students took first, second, and third places in the Harvard-Speak Off."

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Prefiero estudiar el español'' is what one Beverly student might be heard saying. Translated, his statement, "I prefer to study Spanish," is not the only opinion expressed by students. Be it Latin, French, Hebrew, German, or Spanish, the Foreign Language Department has the right stuff.

Dr. Alan Weiner, chairman of the department, described the changes the department faced earlier this year.

"We are putting a greater emphasis on communication skills in both speaking and writing," Weiner said.

He added that although this had been a policy before, it was now "an official step taken by the state."

But, do the students actually come to master the languages that they study?

Their abilities were shown off at the Harvard Speak-Off, a competition between all the major languages except Hebrew.

Beverly students were led by Lynne Shapiro, a Spanish teacher at Beverly. Competing only in Spanish, they took first, second, and third places from the many private and public schools involved.

Sanford Jacquard, a "longstanding" French teacher, joined the guidance department as a counselor. Pamela Klein, an experienced teacher, has joined the Foreign Language staff.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Student X stared at his final essay exam in his history class.

Describe the Social Studies Department. Back up your essay with specific information.

He thought for one minute and slowly began to write.

The Social Studies Department shifted to an "emphasis on basics," said chairman Richard Douglas as a result of new state requirements.

Douglas described a "more structured curriculum which has been changing." Included in the changes are the introduction of an A.P. Political Science class this year, a required semester of economics for seniors beginning for the class of 1988, and the fact that A.P. European History was offered to sophomores for the first time last year.

Proud of the department's honors and A.P. programs at Beverly, Douglas stated that there was an "emphasis on concentration or critical thinking skills."

Herbert Dodge and Mickey Freedman left on sabbatical and were replaced by Stuart Horowitz and Leland Sandler, respectively. The department also suffered with the passing of David Cowan.

Student X finished his essay, turned it in, and breathed a sigh of relief. He then went and picked up his next homework assignment.

SCIENCE

The Science Department was not structurally changed by the new state mandated requirements. It gave the department "a chance to clean up a couple of things," said chairman David Knowlton.

Knowlton replaced Ed Smith as department head this year as the latter suffered a stroke. Other departmental shifts included the addition of two experienced teachers. Ellen Ebert joined the staff as a chemistry teacher and Linda Lozes now teaches health education.

The only major structural change in the department was the revision of the Unified Science Program.

The sophomore class now was offered Biology Honors instead of a semester of chemistry and a semester of physics. The freshman biology program has been changed to Introduction to Physical Science.

Knowlton added that the Science Department was no longer worried about teaching earth sciences.

Knowlton concluded by saying that the Science Department was "consistent and just mushing along."

Hopefully, the departments, the teachers, and the students are mushing successfully in the right direction

Students display interest in high school electives

ELECTIVES

"Technology is growing rapidly, and our classes provide the students with knowledge for the future."

The electives at Beverly continued to provide students with enjoyment as well as education, as they have in the past. About two-thirds of the student body participated in either the Art, Technical Art, or Business Education Department.

Over 650 students took part in the classes provided by the Art Department, headed by Lyle Suter. This area included such courses as cartooning, life drawing, Studio Art AP, and ceramics.

"The art teachers are trying to create artistic judgment within the students, to develop taste and become more discriminating." said Suter. "We are continuing with the best art program there is. We have always produced winners in the art contests and will continue to do so," he added.

According to Suter, artistic talent will stay with a student forever. "It is something for enjoyment that will please you and last a lifetime."

The Technical Art Department enrolled over 600 students in classes including architecture, graphic arts, electronics, creative woods, stained glass, photography journalism, and Watchtower. It was also the second year in which the robotics class built their own robots as well as learned about the future and technology. "Technology is growing rapidly, and our classes provide the students with knowledge for the future," said Frank Mahan, chairman of the Technical Art Department.

Approximately 350 students participated in the classes provided by the Business Education Department. Headed by Carol Yacht, the department offered 16 classes for students interested in business. Among these were Introduction to Management, Keyboarding/Word Processing, Speedwriting, formerly ABC Shorthand, Money Management, Computer Ac-except it's more computerized,"

This was a program for students in which guest speakers gave lectures and the students went on field trips to learn more about the field of business.

Suter, Mahan, and Yacht all agreed that Beverly's electives give the students a chance to learn as well as have fun. Yacht added, "We are happy that so many students are taking advantage of the opportunities."

Highlights editors: Tabora and Zimmerman

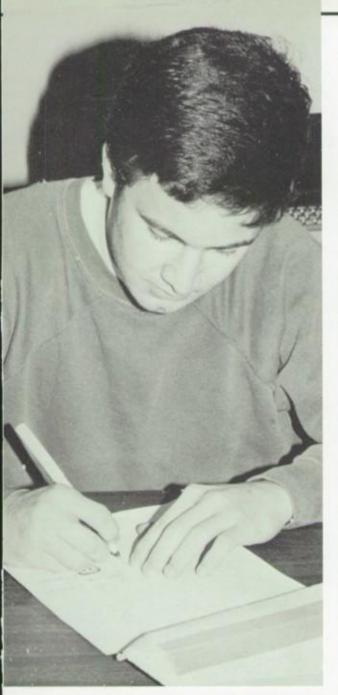

Becoming editor-in-chief of Highlights is a distant dream for some Beverly freshmen. It did come true for first semester editor David Zimmerman, and second semester editor Alyssa Tabora.

Zimmerman was editor as a junior. He is one of the few people that have been editor-in-chief as a first semester junior, but Zimmerman feels it wasn't as difficult as one might expect. "It worked out nicely. The second semester of junior year, you have term papers and first semester of senior year you have college applications. First semester is easier," he said.

Tabora on the other hand, was editor as a second semester senior. While other seniors were out having fun, Tabora worked in Room 253, or was off to UCLA to take copy to the type-setter.

"Highlights is an excellent newspaper. I'm glad I was a part of it and the staff did an excellent job," Zimmerman said.

Activities are 'Highlighted' by the school newspaper

HIGHLIGHTS

"Highlights has won many awards for its writing talents.

They have won first

Has anyone ever wondered how the newspaper "Highlights" got its name? Well, according to the 1929 Watchtower, "High" came from the hill upon which the high school is situated and the high ideals for which they stand. "Lights" stands for the illuminating influence of education.

The tradition of Highlights is carried out by each editor-in-chief. The editors who had the responsibility of producing a weekly newspaper were David Zimmerman (first semester) and Alyssa Tabora (second semester).

Their job included overseeing the assigning of stories, editing stories, driving to UCLA to drop off and pick up the stories for typesetting, and directing the camera-ready paste-up for the printer. What does it take to be an editor? "You need tolerance!" said Tabora. Gil Chesterton has been advisor of Highlights since 1970. "When you produce a weekly newspaper, the pressure is always on," he said.

Highlights has won many awards for its writing talents. They have won first place in the LA County "On Spot Write-Off" 13 times in the last 16 years. The newspaper has won an All-American award every year since 1970. "I am very proud of them. It means they put out a good paper and write well consistently, Chesterton said.

Samantha Klier, Hilary Okun, Alexandra Marchevsky, Sally Shultheiss, Karen Alexander, Venessa McClendon, Darren Seiden, Matt Roberts, Steven Lotwin, Tony Mayorkas, Tabora and Zimmerman served as page editors during the year. Every member of Highlights starts out as a Cub in the Beginning Journalism class.

"Highlights is an excellent newspaper. I'm glad I was on it and the staff did an excellent job," said Zimmerman.

Tabora had definite goals as being editor. "I want the paper to look better with more graphics. Also, with more stories that affect the students," she said.

"I never thought about editor-inchief until this year. It's a lot of fun and a great experience," said editor Tabora. Zimmerman also said, "It was a lot of work but fun and rewarding."

Being on Highlights has many pressures. "Getting stories and pictures in by the deadline," were a few that Chesterton mentioned.

Producing a paper is a lot of time, work, and effort.

"I hope the school realizes how hard they work," said Chesterton. "The staff has to be more dedicated than most extracurricular activities," replied Tabora.

Watchtower 'going places' with yearbook production

"The staff worked best yearbook possi-

Beverly Hills High School yearbook does not A just appear at the end of a school year. Hard work, time and a whole lot of fun, not to mention sweat, is used to incorporate a year's worth of activities, education and students into one book.

This year Carl Levin and Valerie Sobel led their staff in creating a yearbook consisting of 356 pages. This was the largest yearbook ever published in Beverly Hills High School's history. Overlooking the entire production was advisor Gil Chesterton.

"We have a lot of experience on our staff this year. Even our section editors are highly trained," stated Chesterton.

Without the help of the section editors, the yearbook would be difficult to complete. A section editor is a person who is responsible for training and looking over their staff while being instructed by the two editors. Seven of the staff members served as section editors. Leslie Adelman, academics editor;

During the summer months and the school year, the editors have attended various conventions to learn different yearbook techniques. These students were given the chance to talk to other staff members of different schools to seek new ideas for the yearbook.

Going Places. No, the yearbook staff was not lucky enough to travel during their Watchtower class, but rather incorporated the theme of "going places" into the yearbook.

"Going Places was chosen because of its double meaning. On the one hand, the idea of travel is involved. Graphically, travel is an excellent way to entice the reader into reading and looking at the yearbook. On the other hand, Beverly High is really a school of kids 'going places' in life," stated Sobel.

A yearbook is a very expensive book to publish. A great amount of the income comes from the sales of the yearbook. The second major part comes from advertising.

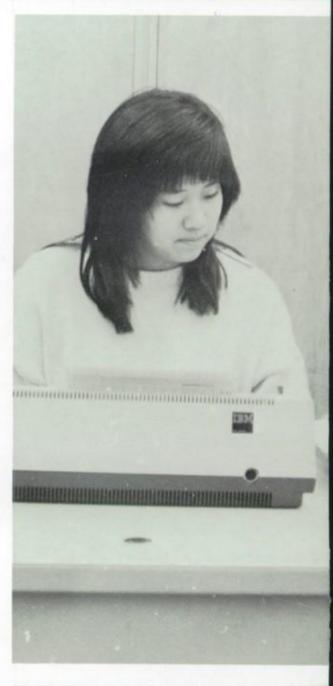

Chesterton observed, "One thing I am proud of is that we pay our own way. We have never had to ask for "This past year has been the most successful, all-

Broadcast class: hears Larry King Live

It's a wonderful profession. There's no one in broadcasting who doesn't love it," was the advice of Larry King to Beverly's Broadcast Journalism class. He is a CNN interviewer and host of a nationwide radio talk show.

How would a busy man like King find time to come to talk to this Beverly class? One night, on his radio talk show, Gita Amar called on the air and invited him to speak to her broadcast class when he came to LA.

King had lots of good advice for the class. "A person has to have four things no matter what job he has: a passion for what he does, an ability to experience what you do very well, a sense of humor, and a chip on your shoulder."

He added, "Experience in the field counts. You have the opportunity to explore yourself with the TV and radio stations on campus."

Lights, camera, action—it's The Norman Newservice

opportunity."

66 Roll record! Take bars! Stand by slate! Take tone! Quiet on the set!" The scene is the Media Center minutes before air time. The look of panic strikes the faces of the newscasters when they realize they are on the air.

These instructions are shouted by a director before the live taping of the 30-minute Norman Newservice television news program every Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Gil Chesterton, Broadcast Journalism teacher; Dave Stiles, TV Production teacher; Tasha Advani, Jennifer Kaufman, Greg Roth, producers; Melissa Roth and Eric Maman, associate producers; and Jonah Cuttner, director, have many important tasks to accomplish before each show comes around and a new week begins of the Norman Newservice. It is shown in Beverly Hills on cable television on Channel 26 daily along with other shows produced at Beverly.

"I would love to pursue a career in this field but I don't see myself in such a highly competitive market," Greg Roth said about pursuing a career in the broadcast field.

The producers have many responsibilities. They assign stories, edit copy, prepare the script, and essentially are the backbone of the Norman Newservice.

There are two teams of anchors, sportscasters, movie reviewers and interviewers (sports, news and feature). "It gives more people a chance to be on the show with two teams. They trade off each week," said Chesterton.

Greg Roth finds many things impressive about being in the class. "I love working with people in communication. I met many famous people, including Lionel Richie for 10 minutes. It was a lot of fun."

Any member of the Norman Newservice may experience many wonderful incidents, and others that are less to be desired. "Being on TV is great," said

> Brandi Wright, an anchor and a veteran of the Norman Newservice for three years. "The deadlines were terrible," responded Advani. "The fact that working your hardest to get a really good show and something goes totally wrong, is not the best feeling," Greg Roth observed.

> It takes a lot of effort to get the show running and when it does, Stiles said, "I sure get a kick when everything goes right because it is a spectacular program!"

> "This is a very professional quality program. Students in the class are hand-picked. We are one of the few high schools in the nation to have a weekly cable TV show. We are unique," Chesterton said.

"It is a great experience. We are so fortunate to have it," Advani replied. "A lot of people should take advantage of the opportunity."

Students get 'turned on' through media experience

MEDIA

"Media is a great experience in preparing for future jobs in communications and is very enjoyable!"

You watched the television shows and you listened to the live radio broadcasts, but you probably didn't know what really went on behind the doors of Room 289.

Telecommunications, television workshop, media tech. field production, and radio broadcasting were just a few of the courses offered by Beverly's media center.

"The center provides actual television and radio studios where the students are able to learn, with professional equipment, the major techniques in media," said Dave Stiles, supervisor of the media department. The students produced, directed, filmed, and starred in their own shows on Beverly's television station, Channel 26, carried on Group W Cable.

Among the TV shows produced by the students were "Norman Newservice," the high school's 30-minute weekly news show; "After Prime Time," starring Josh Luchs and Howard Shapiro, in which students acted out skits that they wrote; "How Hollywood Works," with Tasha Advani; "Face to Face," with Jenji Kohan; and "Student Spotlight," with Julie Heimler. Other programs were "The Julie and Randi Show," featuring seniors Heimler and Randi Michel; "Under Fire," with Richard Wilf and Ramsey Salem; and "In Focus," with Susan Epstein.

The media department also covered many schoolrelated activities. Coverage of home football games, school board meetings, school plays, and a five-hour live broadcast of Open House were just a few.

KBEV, the radio station, consisted of 14 disc jockeys who took on names such as "Mr. Suit," "Circle Limit," and "Love Rocket." Added to the radio studio this year were two compact disc players, which were considered a great asset to the station.

With a total of about 80 students, the center aired television shows from 1:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Between 3:30 and 6:30, the disc jockeys played music of their choice. All of this happened every weekday of the school year.

Stiles, a teacher at Beverly for 17 years, remarked on how inspired and devoted the students were to their work. "There's nothing more fun than working with students who have energy and enthusiasm," he said.

Junior Jeff Gitlin, a member of the Advanced Television Production class, regarded the courses provided by the media department as a great opportunity for students interested in media. Gitlin added, "It's a great experience in preparing for future jobs in communications and is also very enjoyable!"

TV, radio, film: Gitlin performs all

By the end of high school few students have definite career plans for the future. However, one student, Jeff Gitlin, knows precisely what profession he wants to break into. This is the field of media.

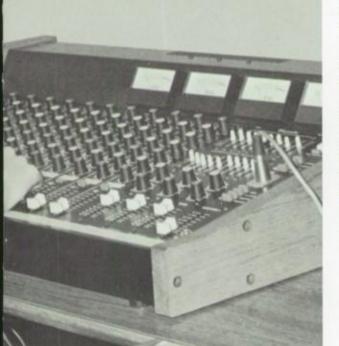

Gitlin, a junior who has worked in the media department for three years, directed seven television shows this year, including the "Norman Newservice." He also produced Beverly's live television coverage of home football games.

"I want to work in radio, television, and film, but my main goal is to become executive producer of NBC Sports," said Gitlin.

Not only has Gitlin directed many school shows, but has also covered several non-school related assignments including the Academy awards. There, he had the opportunity to film the event, which was shown on KBEV, as well as meet the stars. He also spent two summers at both Andover and Northwestern University's radio stations where he received further experience in radio broadcasting.

ramming as much knowledge as they could into their heads, the Academic Decathletes once again placed well in the competition. The team, led by coaches Jane Wortman and Bonnie Miller, placed third out of approximately 45 teams and 400 students in the state competition.

The team this year included Chen Dong, Alex Rapoport, Jordan Fishman, Jim Nivatpumin, Dori Berlin, Jacob Kotzubei, Cristina Osmena, Gary Brown, and Jenji Kohan.

Although the team did not do as well as it had in previous years, Wortman stated, "I think that we did well . . . The competition is getting extremely

However, the Decathletes performed superbly in the competition, grabbing up many awards.

Kotzubei finished second overall in language and literature and economics. Kohan placed second in history while Fishman was third in science. Also, Osmena and Berlin placed first and second overall in finals and to Sacramento. They can now proudly state that they were members of the 1987 Academic Decathlon Team.

Wortman was optimistic about next year's competition and she hopes that the team will recapture the gold medal.

Wortman concluded with an air of confidence by stating, "We will get them next year."

Applied Education means off-campus experience

APPLIED

EDUCATION

"I think that anything you do of an independent nature enables you to learn what the real world is all about."

In the high school, there are many ambitious and hard-working students. Some of them want to get a head start in a career that they hope to pursue, some want to obtain helpful work experience, and others merely hope to make a little money and receive school credit at the same time.

Where can these "ambitious students" go? The Applied Education Center, headed by Rhoda Sharp, provided over 100 students with the opportunity to work on and off-campus with professionals who prepare the students for the "real world."

Sharp stated that the Applied Education Center "acts as an umbrella" over a wide variety of related programs.

"I think that anything you do of an independent nature, anytime you work with adults, you are learning more of what the real world is all about," Sharp said. She concluded, "Any offcampus learning experience is a positive one for young people.

Included in the programs under the umbrella are Community Internship, Work Experience and the Regional Occupational Program, or ROP.

The Internship Program, headed by both Sharp and Mitzi Maltz, is a credit-only class which gives students hands-on training. The major difference between the Internship Program and the Work Experience Program is that "students are not paid for their work as interns, which is of at least five hours a week," Sharp mentioned.

There are many possibilities for the intern. With a long list of sponsors, students can be found working at NBC, CNN, Cedars-Sinai Hospital, law firms, and many other places.

Lillian Moghadam, an intern at the Century City Medical Center, enjoyed her job very much. "As I wish to become a plastic surgeon, my internship enables me to become familiar with this field of study."

The ROP program teaches "classes that directly lead to successful employability," Sharp stated. A student could obtain a job almost anywhere and there would be a class to instruct him. Students work in clothing stores, ice cream shops, and a variety of other places where they must have two or three hours per week of related instruc-

Do these students take their work seriously?

Lara Pepp, an intern at the Davidson and Choy PR firm, stated, "I am interested in the communications field, whether it be print, broadcast journalism, advertising or public relations. My internship gives me a chance to explore the possibilities of my future career."

Teen Problems? Volunteers lend an ear

Teenagers face a barrage of anxieties and pressures.

Fortunately, for those who need someone to talk to, there is Teen Line. For thousands of troubled youths, 855-HOPE has been a helpful option.

The program, headed by Dr. Elaine Leader, PhD., has been in operation for five and a half years and has received over 40,000 calls.

"We receive all types of calls and the problems range from relationships to rape," Leader said.

Jonah Borris, a junior at Beverly and a volunteer on the line, stated, "It is a rewarding experience to help people and well worth the extra time."

Teen Line is an extremely large commitment as students work from 6-10 pm once a week and must attend two meetings a month. The non-profit organization is also highly selective and members must pass a rigorous eight week training period.

So, for students who feel weighed down by problems, help is only a phone call away.

Peer Counseling: Kelleher joins program

It was once said that "nothing is permanent except change."

This year the Beverly Hills High School Peer Counseling Program underwent changes. Besides new Opportunity aides, a new director to the program was hired. Susan Kelleher replaced Dr. Judy Warren, who became a counselor, and organized this year's staff into a group of peer counselors.

Kelleher, who previously worked in the ROP and College Career Center, enjoys her new position.

"I have seen how peer counseling is beneficial. When both the counselor and counselee are interested in change, the process works beautifully," said Kelleher.

A new name for the service was stressed this year instead of the word "Opportunity."

"The name Beverly Hills High School Peer Counseling Program was stressed because this name explains exactly what the program involves," Kelleher expressed. "I feel this program will enable me to have a greater understanding towards students and will be beneficial for me as parent when my children are teens," added Kelleher.

Teens receive counseling through peer program

Remember your first day at Beverly Hills High School? To some new students the feelings of loneliness or newness is overwhelming. Many feelings or emotions are felt when changes, stress or problems occur in a young adult's life. But where can students go to receive the "opportunity" to be counseled for their problems?

Room 109 is the place to go. The name "Opportunity" has been heard throughout the school, but what exactly is it? It is another name of the Beverly Hills High School Peer Counseling Program, directed by Susan Kelleher. Kelleher, who is new to the Opportunity program this year, replaced Dr. Judy Warren. This program is in association with the Maple Center's staff of Marty Nislick, Stan Katz, and Harold Young, who helped train the peer counselors.

This program was offered every day, periods three to seven and during lunch. With trained peer counselors working with students, many students were able to discuss their feelings towards many subjects they normally could not talk about. Along with peer counseling, the opportunity aides were also able to tutor students if they needed it. Students are either referred to Opportunity by a counselor, teacher or self-referrals.

Senior Camilla Grozian commented, "I like Opportunity because it not only gives kids a chance to speak of their personal feelings or academic problems, but it gives us a chance to learn about ourselves."

These peer counselors were Beverly students who were trained extensively every Tuesday night for an hour-and-a-half along with lectures during lunchtime. Twenty-seven seniors and juniors were > picked from 50 applicants and were generally enthusiastic about the program.

> "I get satisfaction out of helping my peers and by doing this I subconsciously help myself," said junior Kim Mitru.

The students were first introduced on a weekend retreat at Hilltop Camp, where they underwent intense training which involved their personal lives.

"The weekend retreat was fun and was a good chance to meet the people in a different context," admitted Rena Dorph.

Out of this program usually comes a great deal of accomplishment. The counselors have helped students achieve better grades and feel better about themselves.

Ricky Chizever expressed, "It makes me feel good when I know that I've helped someone and made them happier."

student was walking down the hall when A suddenly he heard a melodious sound. He was transfixed by the beauty of the music and felt drawn to it. The harmony was emanating from room 190 and he soon found himself standing before the door that led into that room. He swang it open, and there before him were the Madrigals and Choir caroling and rejoicing in unison.

The Concert Choir and Madrigals are both under the supervision and direction of Joel Pressman, a graduate of Beverly Hills High School.

Pressman, the teacher, conductor, and vocal coach for the 42 member choir stated, "This year's Holiday Program was the best sounding in a couple of years." He added, "Out of all my classes, choir shows the most growth throughout the year. In September, it is a zoo. They really come a long way by June."

The choir is an opportunity for anyone who enjoys singing to join a class in this field. Some will remain at the choir level while others will move on to the more advanced Madrigals.

The 29 Madrigals, along with the Choir, had a very busy year. Every other year, the Madrigals compete against other schools in the Heritage David Frank.

The Madrigals meet every day during period six, but this is not their total practice time. Each section, be it soprano, alto, tenor, or bass has a rehearsal where they work an hour a week outside of school and this is usually without their instructor, Pressman.

Cameron Silver, president of the Madrigals, stated, "A lot of time and commitment is neded to participate in Madrigals. You have to know your own part because the music we sing is divided into several harmonies that corelate with the basic melody."

Pressman, commenting on both the Madrigals and Concert Choir, said, "There is a lot of separate talent, and it is my job to combine it into one performing entity."

Jazz Band, Orchestra 'tune up' for a big year

ORCHESTRA,

JAZZ BAND

"The jazz ensemble was made of very dedicated musicians.

This is the best jazz band we've had for some time at our school."

A midst the tuning of strings and the plucking of bows, a student wandering around the Performing Arts area might hear the sweet melody of the orchestra, the uplifting beat of the marching band, the rhythm of jazz band, of the first song in the beginning instruments.

These programs all were under the direction of Richard Farmer. He started the jazz band eight years ago. "First they practiced at lunch and then it became a class seven years ago," Farmer said.

The orchestra started when the school first began in 1928.

Both groups have changed tremendously since their inception. "The jazz band has become one of the most popular music groups on campus," Farmer replied. "This year there were new faced in the orchestra. I hope it grows larger and larger," responded Farmer.

Sixteen members of the jazz band began each day at 7:20 in the morning practicing period one. Farmer, the director of the orchestra, jazz band, beginning instruments, and marching band, said, "It's a good way to wake up in the morning and get on a right foot for the day."

The jazz band has written and performed music for Channel 26, performed at assemblies and lunch time concerts, and traveled to different Beverly Hills elementary schools. They also played at hotels and parties.

Chris Dawson, a trombone player in the jazz band, was able to accomplish a few things in the class. "The experience of actually improvising, musical exposure, and working with other musicians like myself I feel are most important."

The orchestra consisted of 12 people who performed at school concerts, assemblies, and different schools.

A member of the orchestra, violinist Phillip Chang, gave his reasons for joining the class. "I'm a musician. I like to get the opportunity to play an instrument and have people hear my work," he said.

A new idea was introduced by Farmer. He planned to produce a recording of all the members of each group, on one tape, starting with the jazz band. They performed contemporary, jazz and some big band music from the '40s. Farmer called the record that was given out to each student in the class "a professional quality recording."

Farmer applauded the orchestra. "This year's orchestra is made up mostly of new students. They have done an excellent job and have performed some challenging music."

"The jazz ensemble was made up of very dedicated musicians," stated Farmer. "This is the best jazz band we've had for some time at our school."

The lights dim. It is so quiet in the auditorium that one could hear the sounds of a pin drop. Backstage, nervous students give a last glance over the lines they know both backwards and forwards. Someone slowly walks out on stage and begins his performance.

One could find a scene like this only in a drama class. For those students not interested in performing arts, these few words might not mean very much.

However, for those involved, the word "drama" means hard work and fulfilling rewards.

Within the drama classes, there are many divisions. There are beginning, intermediate, and advanced classes.

"The students graduate to more difficult scenes as they progress," stated Dr. Bruce Hertford, a drama instructor. He added, "They may also work on the technical performing arts in addition to acting."

The students enrolled in the in the two festivals they perform in. These two being the Fall and Shakespeare Festival.

How true is the term "Drama Groupie?" Well, Hertford claimed that all involved in performing arts were alike in that they were attracted to the "social quality and atmosphere" that surrounded the department.

Junior Marleigh Moscatel stated, "I find the experience to be very fulfilling, especially when we perform well as a group."

> Many of the people who star in the musicals come from Advanced Drama classes such as the Musical Comedy and Theatre Workshops.

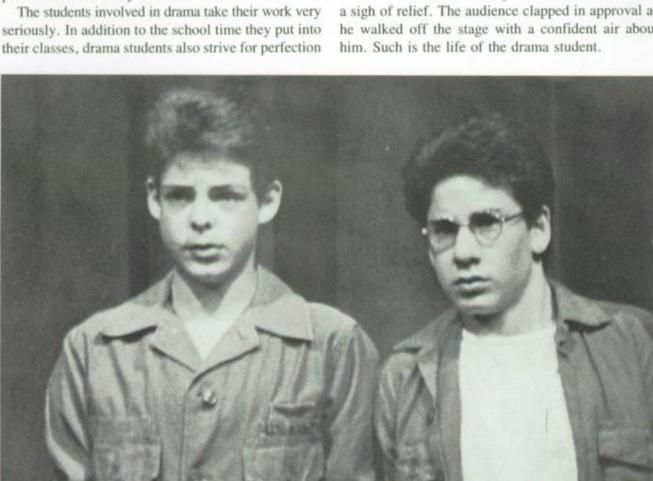

> For example, sophomore Payman Danielpour said that the experience he gained from his drama classes helped him land a lead role in the Spring musical "Grease."

Eileen Daniel replaced Nancy Fishman this year as a drama teacher and was "enthusiastic about teaching the ambitious group."

Hertford was very reluctant about using the word "star" when describing one of his students. Yet, who knows? The high school drama student of today could be the next Paul Newman or Robert Redford.

The student finished his performance and breathed a sigh of relief. The audience clapped in approval as he walked off the stage with a confident air about him. Such is the life of the drama student.

DEBATE

"It's almost the same as being on an athletic team, only instead of competing on the field

you compete through your mind."

Passing Room 172, you may hear what sounds like an argument. However, as you listen a little closer, you realize it's only Beverly's debate students quarreling over one of the many issues presented by the team throughout the year.

Approximately 75 students enrolled in either Public Speaking, an introduction to speechmaking, or Competitive Speaking, a more specialized class. Both were taught by Bill Hiatt, forensics director.

The team competed in several tournaments with other schools that belonged to the same league. "When not actually competing, the students work as individuals or in small groups in which they write speeches and practice their speaking skills," added Hiatt, teacher at Beverly for six year.

Though Hiatt claimed that all of the students were very good competitors, some of the most active were Sean Eskovitz, Matt Levinson, Steve Fisher, Adam Fein, and Robert Rich. "They go to tournaments and seem to consistently win," commented Hiatt.

Competitions were held locally, such as at Fairfax High School, as well as out of the Los Angeles area, such as at the University of California at Berkeley. Others took place at Bishop Montgomery High School, Westlake School, Cal State Fullerton, and the University of Southern California.

To many students, their experience from participating on the debate team has been very beneficial, not only in speech making, but also in subjects that require good speaking skills. "It was a lot of fun," said Robert Rich. "It helped me think logically and gave me confidence in everything I do."

According to Hiatt, the students that benefit most from the program are people who are shy. "This class gives them the opportunity to become more capable in speaking in front of an audience," said Hiatt.

Many of the students liked competing as a team. "It's like being on an athletic team, only you compete through the mind," said Rich.

Overall, the debate team did well during the year. They finished third in the Lincoln-Douglas Debates, and according to Hiatt, usually place first or second in the Sweepstakes category, an award given to the team with the best overall performance in a tournament.

Hiatt said that the students who participate in the class, most of whom are high academic achievers, participate for the satisfaction of doing it. He added, "I like seeing my students benefit from what they are learning."

Parter all tomorrow is another day . . . " ROCRASTINATION

"I'll do my math during English, my English during history, my history during art . . ."

This series of statements can be heard frequently throughout the halls of Beverly High. As we look at the life of a Beverly student this statement is found to be defined as procrastination.

Most Beverly students have many important skills: they study very hard, they read, they write . . . but they also procrastinate.

Procrastination is a way of life for the typical Beverly student. Students spend more time coming up with reasons not to do their homework than it takes to actually sit down to do the work.

"I often find myself watching TV or talking to my parents instead of studying. In the past few years I have realized that I'm a great artist because when I sit in front of a textbook something comes over me. A voice tells me to draw of doodle on my paper instead of study," junior David Frank admitted.

Since the beginning of time, procrastination has influenced young teens' abilities to achieve high grades (Beverly students are no exception). As the years go on, the workload increases and procrastination gets heavier, so the typical Beverly student puts off working on school work for something better to do. Television is always a better solution, or even grabbing a snack.

"The night before a test I am often found cleaning out my room five times over instead of studying. I tend to find myself waiting until 10 minutes before class to start studying for an exam," said sophomore Shari Rubin.

A typical Beverly student goes through a metamorphosis of procrastination. First, he or she will decide that to study means death. There are so many better things to do with his young teen life than to study. Second, a student will go about deciding how he will procrastinate. Step three is to call and confer with a friend about how their procrastination is going. Next, due to all the thought process on procrastination, eating is a must to re-establish one's energy level. Holding his food in his hand a student normally heads over to the television and rests for a while. Later, the closet calls out his name just before the student sits down to do work. By this time it is late in the evening, and this Beverly student has had an exhausting day. Last step: sleep. This ability is special, due to the fact that he is sleep ing without a guilty conscience, and remember ing that everything that was done during the evening was necessary.

Procrastination is sometimes taken on in different variations. Students are seen eating breakfast out. The average Beverly student wakes up by 7:45 a.m. and is seated at the Bagel Nosh around 8:15 a.m. While eating a bagel at the "Nosh," a Beverly student debates which periods "to put off."

What are the effects of procrastination? This depends on the case. If the case is mild and the student eventually gets around to doing the work than no harm is done. If this is a chronic case o procrastination, it can be detrimental to the students academic career. The end result to this habit-forming disease is "senioritis-lazititis."

"Seniors do not really procrastinate; they are merely lazy. After the replies are received fron colleges, who needs to worry about school anymore?" explained senior Susanne Salin.

To Beverly students, procrastination is an art and they are the Picassos of procrastination.

Your procrastinating has finally caught up with you. Now what? The Watchtower staff has come up with their top 15 excuses for not doing your homework. Try one of them out the next time your teacher asks . . .

Where is your homework?

- 15. My little sister ate it.
- 14. My dog (or cat) went to the bathroom on it.
- 13. We ran out of toilet paper in the house.
- 12. The furnace broke down and I had to burn my homework to keep from freezing to death.
- 11. My housekeeper threw it away.
- 10. I gave it to a friend, and his house caught on fire.
- 9. There was no food in the house so I ate it.
- 8. I used it to fill a hole in my shoe.
- 7. I answered the telephone and had to use it for scratch
- 6. My mom is on a high-fiber diet and she ate it.
- 5. I left it in my car, and someone broke in and stole it.
- 4. I did it, I swear, but I left it on the bedside of my poor, sick grandmother who I was helping and caring for all last night.
- 3. Moonlighting (or The Cosby Show) was on last night, so of course, you understand why I wasn't able to do it.
- I always do my homework, and the one time you collect it.I left it at home.
- 1. I didn't feel like doing it.

12:15 a.m. — Exhausted after a full night's work, Rebecca falls asleep at her typewriter. She will awake the next morning thinking what she has done was worth it.

Friedman retires as assistant principal

Beverly said goodbye to Assistant Principal Ruth Friedman as she retired after 21 years at the school.

Friedman has been at Beverly since September 1965, when she acted as dean of students, a job that included being ASB advisor. The following year she became the girls' vice-principal, and shortly thereafter Friedman became an assistant principal when the current four-house system was established.

Friedman will not be retiring to an empty life. She will be on an early retirement plan, which involves working with the school district approximately 33 days a year. Meanwhile, she has a bead business which she will be able to work on and ex-

During a 21-year period changes are bound to take place. The days of Friday night dances and sports nights are over and the two assistant principal idea is over.

Friedman stated, "Students are more relaxed today and they have many goals in their lives. Kids have come to a happy medium; they are interested in achieving for themselves as well as their community."

According to Principal Sol Levine, Beverly will miss her as well. "Mrs. Friedman has been one of the key administrators in Beverly Hills for many years, and her retirement will be a great loss to the district."

Beverly mourns loss of David Cowan

David Cowan, a highly respected teacher of social studies, English and special education, died of lymphatic cancer on Tuesday morning, November 4, 1986.

Cowan graduated from Beverly in 1959 and returned in 1966 to teach English. He received his BA in arts and sciences from UCLA and an MA from California State University, Los Angeles.

"Dave was everybody's friend," said Roberta Beatty, chairman of the English Department.

"He was an outstanding teacher," said Principal Sol Levine, "I had a lot of respect for him and I really liked the man."

Cowan was 45 years old when he passed military reserves. He was preparing for reserve commitment in San Diego last June

"He was an outstanding teacher. I away. Every summer he would serve in the had a lot of respect for him and I really liked the man," commented Principal Sol Levine.

when he was diagnosed as having cancer. Cowan was married on New Year's Day of 1986 to his second wife, Dale; he is survived by his son Jeremy, 16.

"He worked well with students who had any kind of disability," stated Levine. "He knew how to relate, he was sensitive, aware of the needs of the young people, and his love of learning was so obvious."

According to several students and members of the faculty, his classroom was fun as well as effective. Tony Mayorkas, who had Cowan his freshman year, said, "He was a funny and great guy. When I would have trouble in my school work he could help me in history, English, and algebra."

A gathering in memory of Cowan was held on Sunday, November 9, 1986 for faculty, friends, and members of the community.

What is your most memorable experience?

STUART LASHER: "One boy came to my period eight math class dressed like a girl. The funny part is that I was fooled for a minute."

ALI JASON: "A student once disrupted my class by nervously playing the drums on his desk. I thought I would go out of my mind."

FRANK MEMMER: "My assistant Lab Technician got caught in the planetarium ceiling. I heard this big crash, and all I saw were two legs sticking out of the ceiling."

MARGARET LEEDS: "Once I had to send a student to the P.E. showers because he smelled so bad. No one would sit near him. He said he had gone hunting and he ran into a skunk. The shower didn't help because his clothes were 'aged' as well."

DICK DOUGLAS: "One freshman got locked in a cupboard. I did not have the key, and neither did the vice-principal. We had to leave him there for three periods."

GIL CHESTERTON: "When I put on a video tape for my journalism class, it ran over into an 'adult' movie. I did not realize I had taped THAT by mistake."

VAL LODHOLM: "One of the most embarrassing moments during my teaching career was when my fly was open in class."

IRA MOSKOW: "One day a student threw up on my roll book. Also, a student once told me he could not go to class because he had a bad case of hemorrhoids."

Gridders capture Ocean League title

The varsity football team once again battled its way into the CIF playoffs. The team was coached by Dick Billingsley and Bill Stansbury. The only difference this year was that the Normans were the co-champions of the Ocean League. "It is unfortunate that the team did not succeed in defeating Mission Viejo in the CIF playoffs but we have a lot to be proud of this season," stated Coach Dick Billingsley.

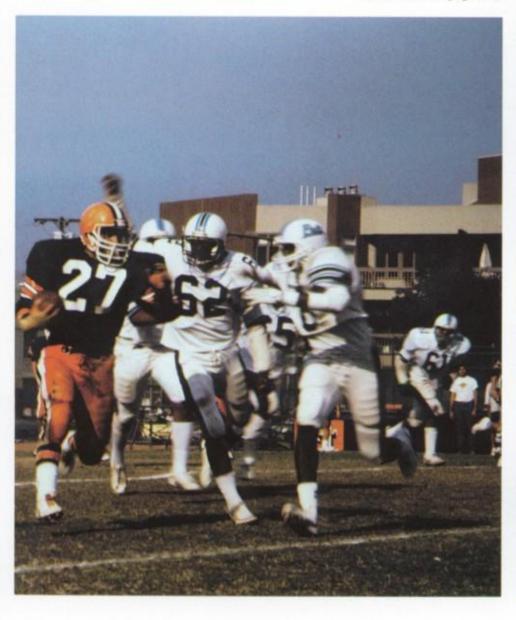

Finishing the season 8-2-1, the Normans could attribute their success to a tenacious defense. Led by linebackers Alan Glazer, Memo Kahan, and Willie Crawford, the Normans allowed their opponents just 11 points a game and put forth three shutouts against Palisades, Inglewood, and arch-rival Culver City. They also received strong play from defensive backs Larry Borlenghi, David Benveniste, and Michael Sutton, Seniors Travis Fine and Chad Nellis rounded out the strong and persistent defensive unit.

The offense revolved around junior Willie Crawford. Crawford rushed for 1,167 yards and 12 touchdowns for the season. He received excellent play from his offensive line. Roni Zolotolow became a key player when starting center Evan Silver was sidelined with a fractured left hand. Assisting Zolotolow up front were seniors Scott Friedman, Jason Gerchicoff, Joe Rosen, and junior Erez Gottlieb.

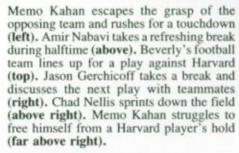

It was important that the running game be consistent as starting quarterback Borlenghi, injured his right

Frosh, soph teams struggle in league

Judging by their overall records, one would think that the sophomore and freshman football teams lacked in ability. In reality, however, both teams had many talented players and lots of heart.

Freshman Coach Len Mitchell said, "Our team had a lot of enthusiasm and they worked hard all season. The team had a lot of depth and because of this only one player was forced to start both ways."

With an overall record of 3-5, the freshman offense was led by receiver John Song, Robby Welles and tailback Danny Edwards. The main offensive lineman were John Hamner, Joshua Cohen, Rob Pehrson and Giovanni Bellasario.

The top defensive players were Shahriyar Shayan, Terry Fahn and John Song.

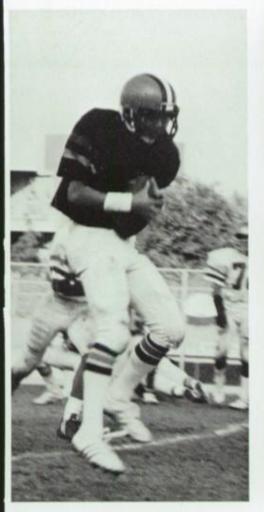

The sophomores finished with an overall record of 2-8. Receiver

Michael Glazer, tailback Nader Mousavi and quarterback Robby Sutton led the offense. The top linemen were Danny Eisenberg and Matt Ellis. Jason Jones, Roy Campanella and Korosh Soltani were the main defensive standouts.

The team was coached by Bill Erickson, Vonzie Paysinger and Donald Paysinger.

By far the most exciting game of the season was against Agoura. With the Normans trailing 15-13, they marched 60 yards in two minutes to set up a final field goal. With 30 seconds remaining, Rafael Fernandez booted a 36-yard field goal to give the Normans a 16-15 victory.

Coach Vonzie Paysinger summed it up, "We were very close in most of the games; we just had some bad luck and couldn't pull them out," he said.

shoulder early in the year. Junior Jason Goldberg was the replacement and went on to call the signals that led the Normans to their co-championship. Beverly also received excellent play from their special teams. Punter Alan Glazer averaged well over 40 yards a boot and Kicker Gary Melnik added nine field goals to help the Norman cause.

The Normans entered league play on a sour note after falling to Agoura 17-14. With a record of 4-1 going into league, Beverly battled from a 14-0 deficit in their league opener against Hawthorne. Crawford rushed for over 170 yards and led Beverly to a 17-14 victory. Hot off the win over the Cougars, Crawford ran for 208 yards and once again showed the way as the Normans defeated Mira Costa 30-24, to move to a record of 6-1 overall and 2-0 in league. After breezing by Inglewood, 28-0, the Normans were ready to battle with Santa Monica, also unbeaten in league. In a tough, hard fought game which was viewed by a large Beverly Homecoming crowd, the Normans trailed 7-0 at the half. Wanting the league championship, the Normans came to play in the second half and the game was tied at 10-10 with just 11 seconds left. When Santa Monica's 37-yard field goal attempt sailed wide to the right Beverly knew that a win over Culver would assure them a share of the league championship. A win over Culver for the fourth straight year was what the Normans cinched the co-championship. Crawford rushed for 142 yards and the Beverly defense shut down the Centaurs for the 19-0 victory. The Normans finished the regular season 8-1-1 overall and 4-0-1 in league.

Unfortunately, the CIF playoffs didn't go as well as the rest of the season had. The Normans were never even in their playoffs opener against Mission Viejo as the Diablos handed Beverly a 33-3 defeat. Frustrated and dejected the Norman players had hoped for a better finish to the season.

Frosh-soph poloers share league title

The Ocean League season ended for the frosh-soph water polo team with a three-way tie for the championship with Mira Costa, Santa Monica. Beverly's overall record was 8-6 and 4-2 in league.

Top performers included captain Arash Parsi, Josh Schechter, Sam Yu, and Alex Tourk. "Ali is a good assist man; Sam is our strongest shooter," commented Parsi.

Parsi also conceded that Asher Provda was a strong offensive player as the hole man.

Coach Ron Crawford affirmed that sophomore Russ Matousavich was an exceptional goalie.

The two most outstanding games were with Mira Costa and Santa Monica. In the Santa Monica game Sam Yu scored three goals in a triple overtime sudden-death situation. At Mira Costa Schechter scored two of three goals in overtime while Parsi scored the third.

"I think we have a great team a good offense and defense. Arash is a great all-around player with very strong shots," commented Schechter.

Crawford concluded on a high note. "For their experience coming into the season, they were very good. They have improved throughout the year."

Varsity poloers led by Scates, Walkow

With the season ending in 2-4 in the Ocean League, the varsity water polo team lost its chance in competing in the CIF playoffs for the first time in several years.

Coach Richard Douglas stated, "It was a disappointment not to make it to CIF. The team played well but in the end they didn't play enough defense. They're talented young people who worked hard and wanted to represent their league in CIF."

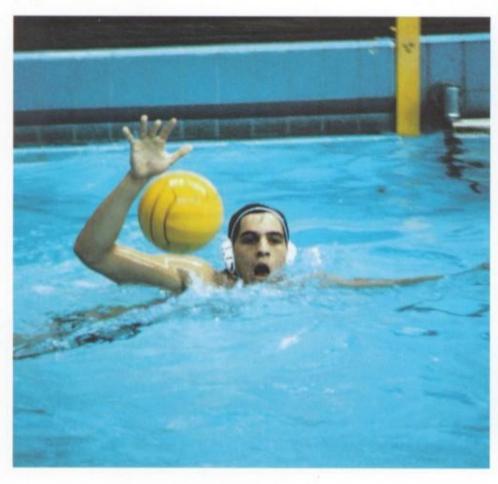

Top players included David Scates, who scored the most goals (20); Todd Walkow (10 goals) and David Lawson (four goals); and Eric Sabre, who made 56 saves out of saves out of 151 attempted shots. Tom Young (who showed the most improvement) participated as a point man, a defensive player, and a "ball feeder."

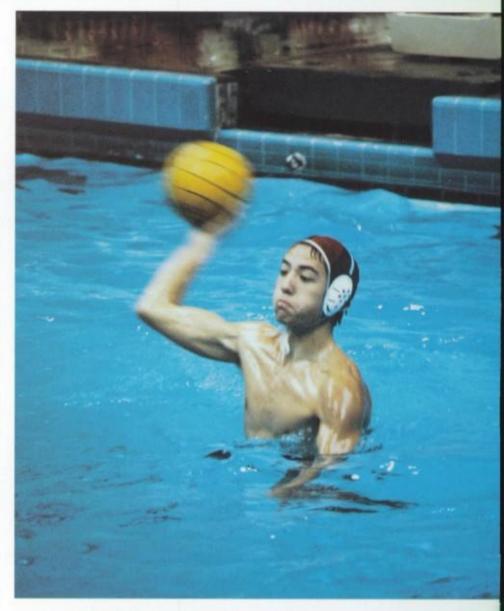

One of the most spectacular games was the first against Mira Costa. Although Beverly lost, 9-8, the loss was in double-overtime.

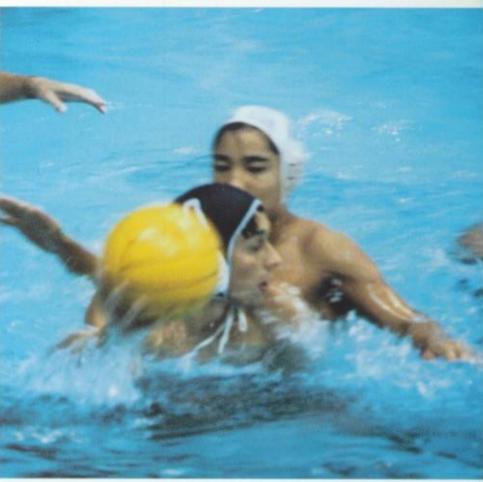

Captain Todd Walkow explained, "We never played better than that. All we needed to do was polish our little mistakes from that game . . . which we didn't."

Walkow said the losses were due to the lack of experience and discipline. "The team has a lot of talent. It's just that we weren't disciplined enough . . . we couldn't get our minds on the game," he stated.

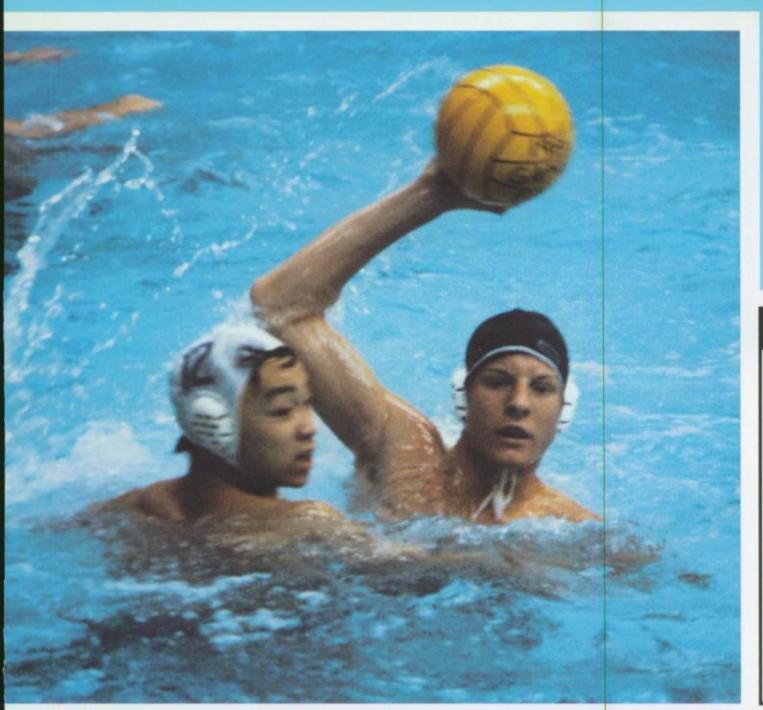

On a higher note, Douglas remarked, "Water polo is a demanding sport. In the end you'd like to think you can go to CIF, but there are obviously other rewards, too."

JV teams run well in league competition

Placing well at the Ocean League finals, the boys' JV, sophomore, and freshman crosscountry teams, and the girls' JV team showed that hard work and dedication was worth it.

The boys' JV team placed third at league finals with Payam Minoofar, David Bronte, Scott Shapiro, Chris Roszak, and Eric Pines as Beverly's top five runners. Their times were 20:55, 21:14, 21:22, 21:24, and 21:43, and placed thirteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth, respectively.

As for the boys' sophomore team, Jose Velazquez (20:29), Steve Wolf (20:32), and Greg Shephard (20:56) were Beverly's top three runners at league finals putting the sophomores at second place. Individually they placed fifth, sixth, and sixteenth, respectively.

Head coach Howard Edelman affirmed, "They did a good job. They pack well; the top five finished close together making them the best at grouping."

The freshman boys were led by Jon Hirshberg (21:16) and Paul Hackner (23:51). Hirshberg was the No. 1 frosh runner and No. 2 sophomore runner.

The JV girls' team fared well, too, at the finals taking second place. The top runners included Wendy Flaum (24:00), Elizabeth Tisherman (26:02), and Moulan Chan-Randel (26:37).

"It was an outstanding job taking second in the league; the loss to Mira Costa was due to a wrong turn our three top girls made on their course," said Edelman.

Pines affirmed, "With more training and some dedication, Beverly should definitely beat Hawthorne and take at least second."

Cross-country runs all the way to CIF

"Running the last race was like finishing the last chapter of a book. The insight gained can only help you understand the peaks and valleys of that which lies ahead," stated senior varsity boys' crosscountry member Mitch Carlin.

Their story ended as the boys' and girls' varsity cross-country teams both placed third in Ocean League with an overall record of 3-2 and qualified to compete in the CIF preliminaries. The hero of the story was senior John Mora who ran above the rest as he seized second place in the CIF individual competitions in the preliminaries. This enabled him to run in the CIF finals. He is the first runner from Beverly capable of competing in the CIF finals since 1969.

But every story must have some sadness as the top three varsity boys' runners will not be returning next year. Coach Howard Edelman admits that this is unfortunate, but it gives the younger boys an opportunity to show their talents. Seniors John Mora, Tom Harp, and Mitch Carlin were the top three runners on the team. Mora captured first place for being the best runner on the team with a record-breaking time for a three-mile course of 15:09. Harp followed close behind in second place with his best time of 15:42. Finishing third was Carlin with his record time of 16:22.

The season's history is not all sadness as the varsity girls' top two runners will be remaining to compete next year. Coach Edelman stressed that the girls have improved greatly over the past years and that he's found a tremendous amount of talent in the underclassmen. He hopes these girls are a good sign for the future. Setting the pace for the varsity girls was sophomore Lisa Harris, with a time of 19:55. The second best time on the squad belonged to freshman Jamie Leeds at 20:40. The third place with a time of 20:08 belonged to senior Catherine Caulfield.

The varsity teams believe that the ending chapter to their season was one of joy as well as sadness.

Girls' volleyball face tough competitors

Determination. This is the solitary word that can describe the girls' varsity volleyball team. Since they were matched up against such highly competitive teams as Mira Costa and Santa Monica, the team had to work particularly hard.

Their realistic goal was to place third in the Ocean League. However, Beverly lost this position to Culver City.

"We haven't been as successful as in the past years. But success cannot be measured by wins and losses. Overall, the girls played to their potential and a lot of improvements were made so I think this was a successful season," said Coach Sue Normand.

The team was led by many returning varsity players. MVP Stephanie Sapper was effective in setting, outside hitting, and blocking. Most Inspirational Player Patti Shin and Most Improved Player Kelly Borris proved to be valuable in their outside hitting and defensive abilities. Senior Lynne Adler showed her talents through efficient outside hitting and powerful setting. And Kathleen Foutz, as middle blocker, played an integral part in Beverly's defense. In addition, many newcomers showed potential. Junior Dana Feinberg displayed good capabilities in backcourt play. And Nannette Furlong contributed to the team's offensive attacks.

With the increasing amount of players joining club teams, Coach Normand predicts a bright future for the volleyball team.

Spikers set and hit their way to victory

With the close of winter and the start of spring, people hit the beaches to play volleyball.

Yet, here at Beverly, this sport is more than just a game; it is a commitment and a display of six players working as one to achieve a common goal — victory.

The team was composed mostly of returning seniors as only four members of the 15-man team were juniors. However, these four proved to be very beneficial to the team.

"I was impressed with the hitting and overall playing ability of the newcomers, especially Brad Ammann," stated varsity Coach Bill Smith.

The team was highlighted by the playing abilities of team captain Rick Redlich (setter), Chris Peppard (setter), and hitters Jeff Mindes and Brad Ammann.

"We've seen a lot of development in the team and all we've got to do now is practice and concentrate on winning," commented Redlich.

The team began their pre-season by losing two of their first three matches, including a 2-3 loss to Brentwood, a 1-3 loss to St. Bernard's, and a 3-1 win over St. Monica's. Yet, Smith had faith in his squad.

Even though the element of competition is always present in a math, the team members still find much enjoyment in the game.

Junior Jed Ricker also negated the possibility of feeling pressured because he was one of the few juniors on the team.

"Everyone gets to play and has a chance to prove himself. It feels great, especially when you get a chance to really contribute something to the team," Ricker explained. He added, "And besides, next year, I'll be a senior and the juniors will look to us for help."

JV girl spikers fall short of success

"The team worked hard all season and I think the record showed more inexperience than how talented the girls actually were," said the girls' JV volleyball coach Marla Weiss. The team got off to a rocky start and ended with an overall record of 3-7.

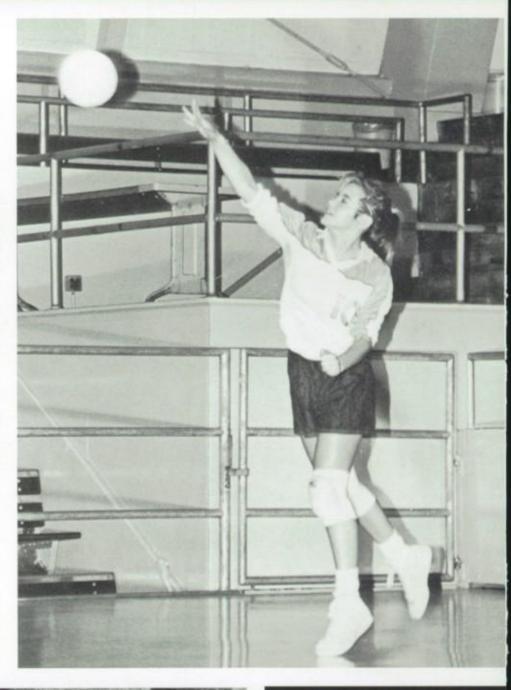

Coach Weiss, a Beverly graduate, explained, "The record isn't exemplary of the team - it does not indicate how much potential there is in these girls. But due to lack of experience, the team couldn't capitalize and win."

Although all the girls participated this year, several players displayed great talent. In particular, setter Susan Rosen acted as the vocal leader on the court. Sophomore Suilan Kantor proved to be the blocking force for the team, as well as a strong offensive player.

Captain Tiffany Harward was the all-around stable player. She remained consistent so the team could rely on her. Evan Bloom displayed exceptional leadership as well. And Cindy Heffley proved to be strong in defensive tactics. According to Weiss, tremendous improvements were made throughout the course of the season. Specifically, freshmen Diana Ferman and Marisol Metcalf continued to excel in sharpening their volleyball skills.

"Many of the girls are ready for varsity," stressed Coach Weiss. "I hope the girls will be mentally stronger because the skill level is very high."

"This year we really worked hard," said sophomore Suilan Kantor, "but we also had a lot of fun. That's important too."

New coach bumps JV volleyball to top

As the varsity volleyball team smashed its way to victory, the junior varsity team was working just as hard to win. Comprised of sophomores and freshmen, the players worked hard to be the best they could be.

The JV spikers worked with a new coach Chris Ellis replaced Bob Craig as head coach and was 'enthusiastic, excited, and challenged by the team which had a lot of potential.'

The team was led by sophomores Evan Brenner, Brad Burstin, and David Karasik as outside hitter, middle hitter, and setter, respectively. Other members of the 14player squad deserving mention were Korosh Soltani, Clark Huang, and freshman Alex Nehorai.

The players immediately accepted Coach Ellis, a student at UCLA, because, as one player stated,

"He's a really cool guy."

Despite a choppy beginning (a 1-2 preseason record). Ellis was optimistic about the seasons.

"We're a new team, and it will take a while before the squad will come together as a unit."

At the beginning of the season the team faced a serious loss. Sophomore Christian Gunn was badly injured in a car accident which kept him from playing during the season.

"We are going to miss him as he was a great hitter and excellent allaround player," remarked Brenner.

Karasik, speaking of the team said, "A lack of enthusiasm and teamwork was a major obstacle that we had to overcome. However, when we got it together, we could challenge any team."

Varsity booters win while JV boys lose

For the past three years Steve Behrendt has coached the boys' varsity soccer team and each year the team moves up one notch closer to qualifying for the CIF playoffs. This year they placed fourth in Ocean League with an overall record of 5-9-2.

Although they lost some top players from last year, seniors Memo Kahan, winner of the Most Valuable Player award, and Stanley Silver, winner of the coach's award, gave the team leadership and led them to develop a very tough defense, according to Coach Behrendt.

Opposing teams found it difficult to score against them. Their defensive line really shone as they shut down their arch-rival, Culver City, 2-1, and they shutout Hawthorne for the first time in four years, 1-0. Along with Kahan and Silver, who played all positions, Anthony Behar, John Hirschberg, Steve Fenton, Yossi Strasser, and Steve Wilheim performed well. Junior Steve Freund, an asset to the team, had the only injury as he hurt his knee. But he did return to compete in the Culver City game and received the Purple Heart Award.

The JV team, on the other hand, did not rank well in their league as they finished the season 0-5. Coach Guilliermo Becerra-Leal believes the team was really devoted but was too young and needed more training.

There were some JV booters who played a good season. Brad Harris, David Kim, Danny Corwin, and Jason Ruben led the team and Jeff Klausner was recognized as the Most Improved Player.

"The guys really put out a tremendous effort; they fought very hard which can attribute to their success," stated Coach Behrendt.

JV booters foul up; Varsity reach CIF

Strength and determination are what characterized the girls' varsity soccer team, coached by Richard Billingsley.

Even though the girls broke even in the Ocean League with a record of 5-4, they still qualified to compete in the CIF Playoffs. Their first CIF game against South Torrance, 2-0, promised success, but they were shutout by Edison 3-0 in round two of the playoffs. They finished the season 9-8-2 overall.

The reason the team advanced that far was due to some key players. Senior Katherine Caulfield and Roxanna McClendon, who played center halfback and left halfback, respectively, were each awarded this season. Caulfield received an honor as first team All-League halfback and Roxanna and her sister, junior Vanessa McClendon, won second team All-League halfback and forward, respectively. Caulfield and Roxanna McClendon were also named as co-Most Valuable Players. Other girls who supplied the strength behind the team were juniors Nicole Lewis, Dori Golod, and Tanya O'Connor, along with sophomores Yael Levy and Tiffany Harward.

The girls JV team was also coached by Billingsley, who was assisted by newcomer Coach Marla Weiss

The JV girls had a rough season finishing 2-7 overall. They showed great skill moving the vball offensively, but their defensive line was not strong and they ended giving up an average of two goals per game. Sophomore Marnie Goldman, defensive halfback, was named the Most Valuable Player while freshman Edana Tisherman, a halfback was recognized as the Most Improved Player. Sophomores Jody Katz, Rachel Nebenzahl, and Jenna Goodman played skillfully as center forward, halfback, and goalie, respectively, while newcomers Diana Ferman and Jennifer Roach performed well as winger and fullback.

Billingsley said, "I thought the girls started as a very good soccer team, but with hard work and determination they turned into an excellent soccer team.

Cagers narrowly miss CIF playoffs

Beverly's varsity basketball team once again narrowly missed the CIF playoffs. With a win against Inglewood in the final game of the season, Beverly would have made the playoffs for the first time since 1983. Unfortunately, they came up just short, losing the game 36-32.

Coach Jack Dyck observed, "It was a great disappointment to miss the playoffs again, but we have a lot of great moments to look back on."

The Normans finished the season with an overall record of 12-11 and 5-5 in the Ocean League play.

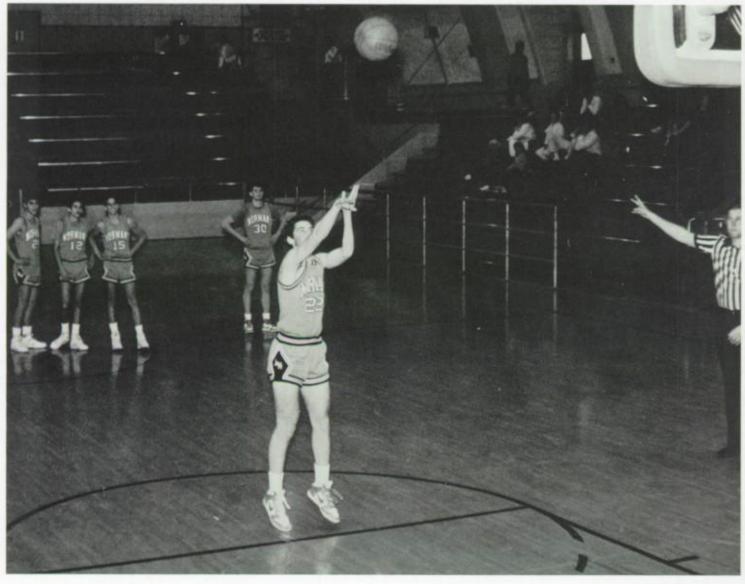

The team seemed to peak in the pre-season when they finished third in the Burbank-Hoover Tournament and second in the Beverly Hills Invitational. During the Beverly tournament, senior Lincoln Sneed led Beverly to an upset, 56-51, over 5-A St. Bernard's. Sneed and Willie Crawford were named to the all-tournament team for their efforts in the invitational. Derek Patton and Sneed also placed alltournament in the Burbank-Hoover Tournament.

The Normans were led through the season by an outstanding group of players. These included: Sneed, the leading scorer, averaging just over 13 points a game and 9 rebounds; Patton, the Norman's point guard who led the team in assists; and Monroe Gordon, on defense and rebounding pulling down 7 boards a game. Other key players were Willie Crawford, James Chen, and Chris Plummer.

One of the team's drawbacks was its size. They consistently had to battle much bigger players from tough teams like Santa Monica, Hawthorne, Inglewood, and Culver

Pre-season games highlight of season

City. "We generally gave away four inches of height for each player, but we won because of hard, good defense," said Coach Dyck.

Another highlight of the season was the Normans' 46-44 win over Santa Monica. Santa Monica later went on to win the CIF. 4-A championship. Junior Crawford sank a 15-foot jumper with just four seconds left to account for the victory.

The team's most improved players were Patton as a guard, who consistently improved throughout the year, and Gordon, as a forward who helped out by scoring about 7 points a game. They will be returning next year along with Chris Plummer, Ryan Karp, and Crawford.

Senior Sneed led the basketballers throughout their season. He was placed on the All-Ocean League second team. "Basketball was a lot of fun, the coaching was great and all in all it was an experience I'll always remember."

Coach Dyck felt the season was very successful. He said that it was "the nicest collection of young men I've worked with in 10 years. Both Coach Schreiber and Dyck noted, "We've never had a group of kids who have been as supportive when not playing of the kids who are playing as David Corwin, Geoff Schafler, Corey Spound, and Mike Rosenmayer were."

Sophs take second, frosh place third

The sophomore basketball season could have been summed up in three words — ups and downs.

The team got off to a quick start winning three of their first four games. Then, the boys were forced to play eight games in nine school days. Without rest or practice, the team lost seven of those eight games. But after winter vacation, the sophomores got hot again. The boys won seven of nine Ocean League games and could have clinched the league title with a win over Inglewood. Unfortunately, the Normans were upset by seven points in a tight game.

Forward Kenny Berger and guard Monty Abramov led the team in league scoring with a 14.7 average and a 12.6 average, respectively. Forward Mohammed Panahpour was the leading rebounder. The sophomores finished with a 12-12 overall record and a 7-3 league record, good enough for second place.

Coach Carter Paysinger observed, "After winter vacation we played great team defense; that was the turning point of the season."

The freshmen basketball team finished with an overall record of 8-12 and with an Ocean League record of 4-4. The record was good enough for third place in league.

Coach Jim Fox's team was led by Payam Poursalami, Scott Leeds, and Peter Micelli. Center Peter Micelli said, "When we played as a team, we played really well."

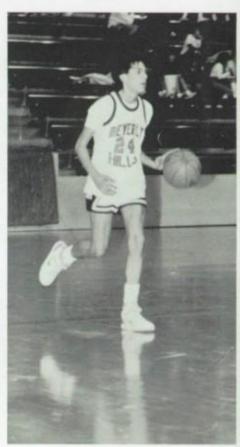

Luckily, the team was able to win three of their final four games, to end the season on a high note.

Both the sophomore and freshman teams had strong benches. The coaches were able to rest the starters with capable reserves.

MVP Tamura leads varsity girl cagers

"This year's team improved in all areas: scoring, defense, and rebounding. Through the leadership of Tina Tamura we were involved in many close games and surprised some teams," observed varsity girls' basketball Coach Len Mitchell.

The girl cagers ended the season with an overall season of 5-16 and fifth in the Ocean League with a record of 3-7.

The exciting games of the season included Beverly's two victories over rival Santa Monica. Jeanette Salazar, Tina Tamura, and Kathleen Foutz scored the most points: 22, 19, and 18, respectively. Mitchell said that the 54-49 victory over Inglewood in the last game of the season was an exciting one in that it prevented Inglewood from getting into the CIF play-offs.

Top team members included team captain and MVP Tamura, sophomore Salazar, and junior Debbie Nazarian. Tamura also made the Ocean League's All-League first team; Salazar made the All-League second team. The most improved player honor was given to Michelle McGinnis and the Coaches Award was given to senior Michelle Thompson.

"I expect us," said Mitchell "to be more competitive next season with the return of starters Salazar and Nazarian along with an improving Michelle McGinnis."

Nazarian affirmed, "Compared to last year, we've done a lot better. We work better as a team because we know each other's stronger points now. But we can't really be compared to other teams, other teams had been involved in organized teams before high school."

JV boys take first, girls cagers struggle

The JV boy's basketball team ended with a 9-2 Ocean League record and the title of league champions. Their overall record was 15-3. As for the female cagers, their season ended in 0-8 in league and 2-16 overall.

Boys' Coach Jason Newman said, "We have a really good team. The fact that we play well together improves them as individuals."

Top members on the boys' team included Fred Dardashti, Jacob Poura, Brett Wood, Mark Gitton, and Scott Chorna.

"Our best game was against Inglewood (59-51)," said Newman, "Every game has been close making them exciting, but coaches like to win by a big point margin."

Despite the zero wins for the girls' team, coach Yvette HardinDuran had some consolation that this was the first season the team lost by fewer points than in previous seasons.

"The team progressed a lot more this season than the past ones because they got it together quicker," stated Hardin-Duran.

Top players on the team included centers Clinette Minnis and Angela Thompson, point guard Dellaram Ghadisha, and forward Lyndy Garber.

The most exciting games were against Inglewood, especially the second one when Beverly lost by only three points (33-30).

"With more new people on the team, the next season will be a promising one. The group was extremely coachable," said Hardin-Duran.

Swimmers prove hard work pays

The varsity boys' and girls' swim team proved that hard and numerous workouts give praiseworthy results.

"I was very pleased with our effort. I felt we did very well for our first meet (South Bay Relays) of the year," affirmed Coach Richard Douglas.

Swimmer G.B. Spitzer said, "Our 6 a.m., after-school, and Saturday workouts show the payoffs at our meets."

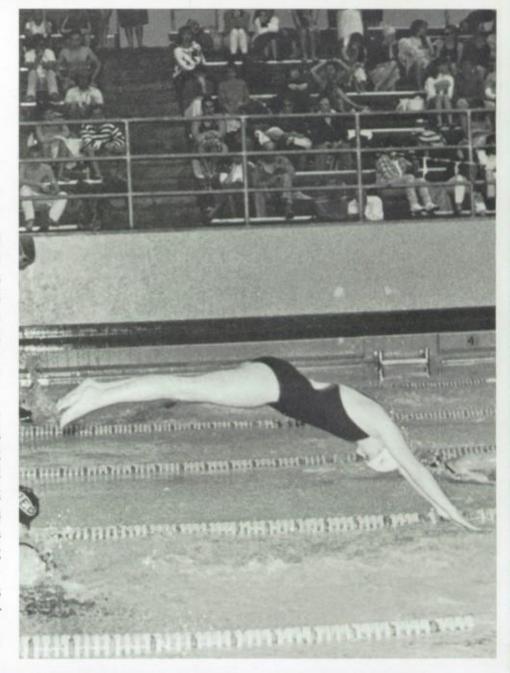

Top males on the team included senior Tony Bryant, who swam the 50-yard freestyle in relays; junior David Lawson, who swam the 100 yard free style and backstroke in relays; and senior Tom Young, who swam butterfly in relays, and the 50-yard freestyle. Young also broke the school record for the 50-yard freestyle (22.2) with 22.1

seconds

Top female swimmers included senior Stephanie Bloomberg in the 50-yard freestyle; junior Lara Letteau, in butterfly relays, and backstroke; junior Jamie Fox, in backstroke; freshman Heidi Rusinek, in the 500-yard freestyle; and senior G.B. Spitzer, in butterfly.

At South Bay the relay team included juniors Fox, Andrea Winyck, and Letteau swimming backstroke, breathstroke, and butterfly, respectively. Bloomberg swam freestyle on the relay team and came within three-tenths of a second from the CIF qualifying time.

Spitzer added, "This season is harder because there are fewer people. But, we'll have a successful season because we work hard."

JV Swimmers start off on right stroke

The JV boys and girls swimming teams entered the Ocean League meets undefeated this season. The girls defeated their opponents by an average of 30 points per competition. Meanwhile, the boys, although they averaged a 10-12 point spread, performed with great skill as well. Coach Dick Douglas was very impressed by the strength of his JV swimmers. His son, Dan Douglas assisted him in coaching the JV teams and his experience in swimming apparently helped both teams reach victory.

Their challenging opponents were Santa Monica and Mira Costa, but the teams competed very well against them. Leading the JV girls were sophomores Nanette Furlong, Jodi Shorr, Laura Levin, Katie Fernandez, Rachel Schneider, and freshman Diana Ferman.

Carrying the boys to victory were sophomores Josh Schecter, John Solnik, Ali Tarkian, and freshmen Tony Wu, Greg Fein, and Mike Douek.

"These girls and boys work early mornings and into the afternoon practicing to improve their performance as swimmers and I'm very pleased with their devotion and success this season," commented Coach Douglas.

Varsity boy netters face rough season

"We have a very strong team this season. We have players who have matured over the years who have been here, but if they want to continue to be at the top, they are going to have to be very committed and work hard during practice," observed Coach Jason Newman.

The first practice match of the year demonstrated the high performance of the varsity netters against Newport Beach.

"Everyone played well. It gave me an opportunity to look at different combinations with double squads," Newman said.

At Corona Del Mar, the netters were victorious 17-1.

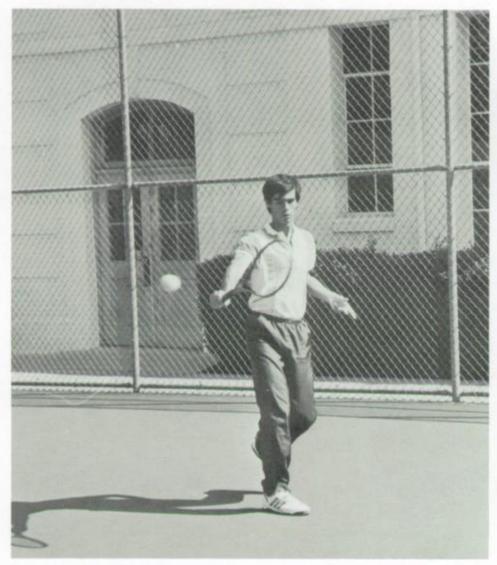

Top team members included

Don Isaac, Michael Roberts, Kent Seton, and Alex Berensen.

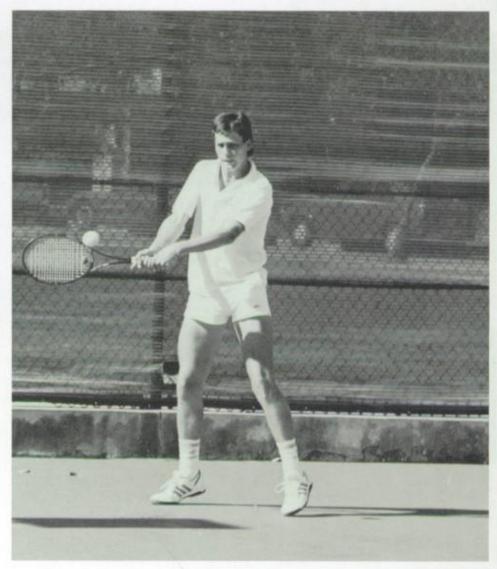

"The team has played very well. However, Michael Roberts just broke a bone in his hand and he'll be out for about two months," said Newman earlier in the season.

"This year we have a lot of ranked players and the experience of playing tournaments will help us in the CIF competition," said team member Scott Pollack.

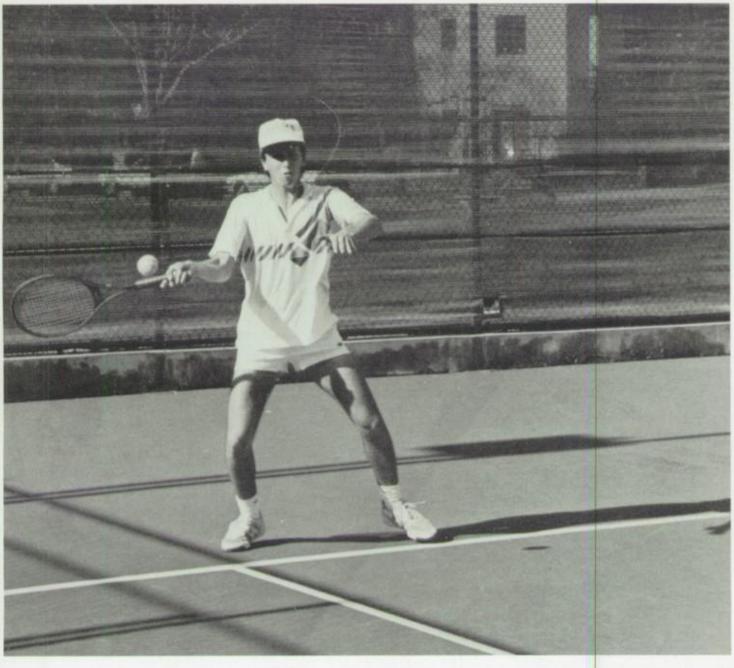

"All of the players will have to just play a little harder and pick up the slack for Michael Roberts," said Newman. "I think we're contending for the CIF championship."

Varsity netters take league hands down

Excellence. Webster defines "excellence" as the quality of being exceptionally good in its kind.

The girls' varsity tennis team can be described by this word. The team finished with an overall record of 16-4, including CIF play. They advanced to the quarter-finals of CIF, losing to Corona del Mar 14-4.

"They ended up being one of the top eight teams in the Southern Section, which includes about 450 high schools," exclaimed a proud Coach Susan Stevens.

Why were the girls so successful? Coach Stevens attributed their success to the fact that four girls played on varsity for four years. Therefore, they were able to maintain a high level of skill. In addition, since all 10 girls were basically equal, they continue to be consistent throughout the season.

Co-captain Jennifer Saginor and co-captain Courtenay Myers led the team. "Not only did we work as a team, but we had fun and played well," stressed Saginor.

The girls' varsity tennis team remains one of the strongest teams at Beverly. This year's performance appears to have gone above and beyond even Coach Stevens' expectations.

The prospect for next year looks promising as four varsity players will be returning. Junior Jill Goldberg stated, "Although six seniors will be leaving, I am confident that we can uphold enough skills to take league again next year."

Boys JV tennis strives for success

"The JV team has been doing well; they're good enough to play varsity at other schools. They just happen to go to a school where there are better players," boasted Coach Jason Newman.

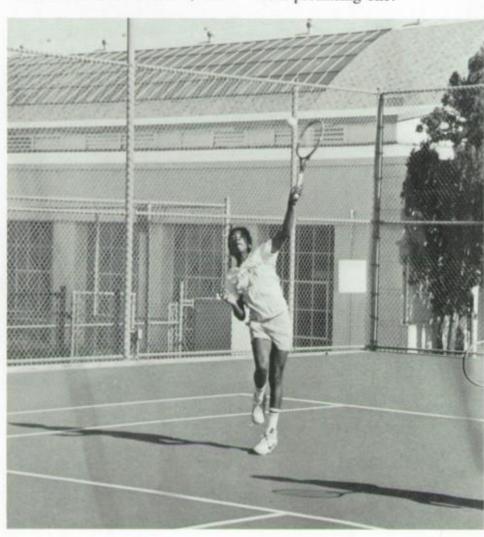

The netters began the season with flying colors against Pacific Palisades with a 9-0 victory. This game showed Newman which members to pair up with whom for the best doubles results.

Following Palisades was an identical score beating Dana Hills. With no time or skill to spare, the team overturned Westlake, 7-0.

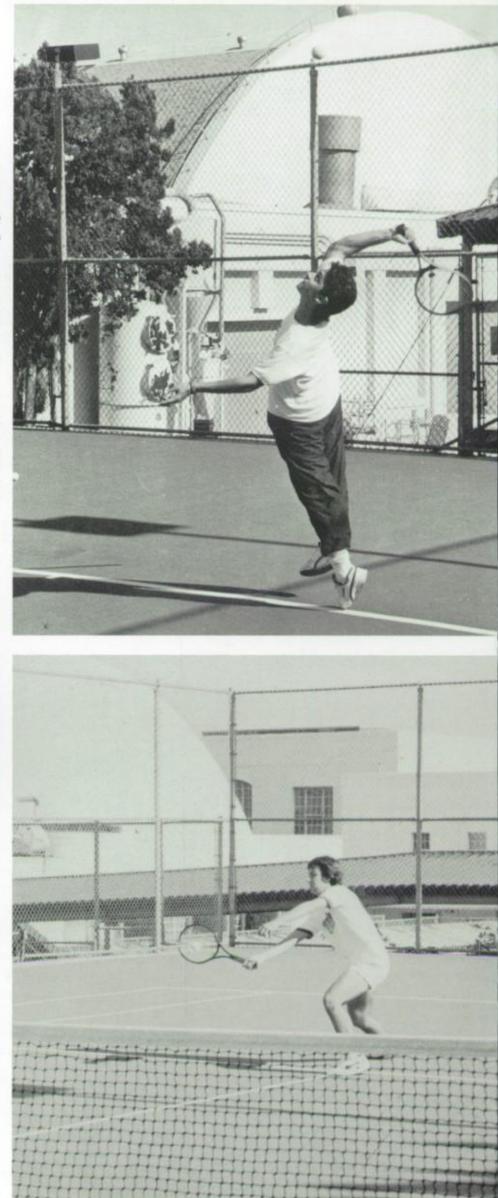

Newman said the top two players on the JV squad were Bob Baravarian and Michael Klein.

"I'm looking for the athletes who have a good work ethic," said Newman. "If they work hard and improve throughout the year, then they have a good shot at going a good distance."

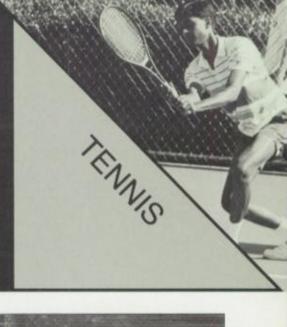

"More experiences in tournaments, commitment, and harder workouts will take the JV netters a long way," said Newman. "With so much excellence on the JV team, next year's varsity team will be a promising one."

Continuing the several year tradition of being the Ocean League champions, the JV girls' tennis team finished in first place again in 1986. The team's overall record was 14-3 with an amazing league record of 8-0.

The team was led by No. 1 singles player Mara Greensweig, No. 2 singles player Robin Treiger, and No. 3 singles player Allison Boxer. The strong doubles players included Nicole Lewis with Arsha Badalian and Jenna Goodman with Dawn Mandel.

Coach Susan Stevens remarked, "The rest of the JV team played with a variety of partners (in doubles) and played well."

In 1987, JV team members chances of making varsity are better than ever. "More JV players will become varsity next year because of the six leaving varsity players," noted Coach Stevens.

Overall the JV team played consistently strong throughout the season. The team was made up of girls that are very dedicated to tennis and work hard at it. Mara Greensweig said, "Our team worked extremely hard this year, in preparation for becoming varsity members next year. We worked well together this year in order to maintain the league championships."

Coach Stevens said, "On the whole, the JV team continued a strong tradition of winning league championship and defeating other strong schools."

Varsity batsmen hit off to good start

The varsity baseball team got off runs batted in. to a great start with a 4-2 record.

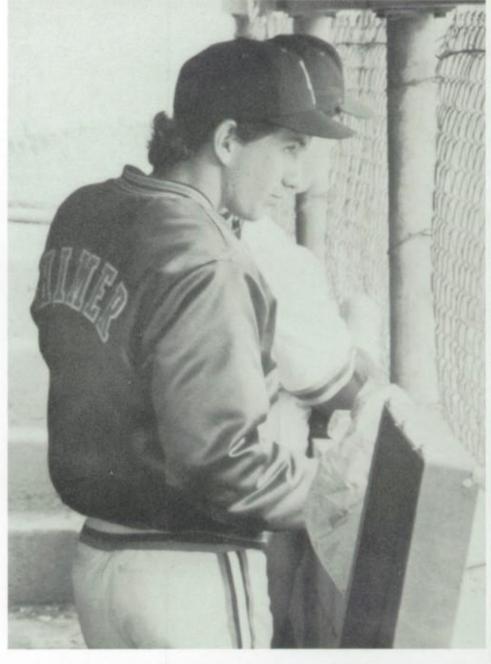

The Normans defeated La Miranda, Crossroads, Daniel Murphy and Franklin. The Normans were able to take second place in the Westside Baseball Tournament. Their only loss came in the championship game when they lost to San Pedro, 9-3.

At the beginning of the season the team was led by catcher Marc Bender, second baseman Billy Koch and shortstop Albert Silvera. Jimmy Robinson contributed in the outfield.

Silvera led all hitters with a .571 batting average and Chad Cohen batted .444. In the home run department, Bender led all hitters with two round-trippers. Senior Scott Freedman paced all others with 10

Injuries also played a key part in the Normans season. Outfielder Danny Comden was forced to miss the pre-season games with a foot injury. Pitcher Larry Borlenghi's shoulder injury weakened the Norman pitching staff to only 2 true starting pitchers. Joe Shimer started well with a 2-0 start. Junior Jason Goldberg also pitched well for the team. Lloyd Avery will act as the stopper in the bullpen.

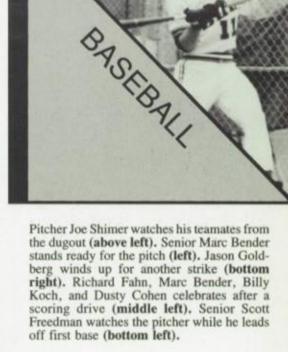

Coach Bill Erickson added, "The key to our season will be our pitching. We will need our starters to carry us to the sixth inning, from there our relievers can take over. With good pitching our defense will improve. Offensively, our hitting must remain consistent all season

JV and frosh-soph batters start well

Both the JV and frosh-soph baseball teams began their seasons well, with records of 4-1 and 3-1, respec-

The JV boys won their games in convincing manner. The Normans defeated Daniel Murphy and San Pedro, 17-1 and 8-0, respectively.

Coach Carter Paysinger, said, "We will need key hitting from Randy Levin and Mike Sutton. Josh Reims and Richard Roger will need to hold the infield together. Steve Fenton will be a leader in the outfield. Pitching will also be a key to our season.

Sophomore Randy Levin added, "We have a lot of team spirit. Together, as one, we play well."

Coached by Art Harris, the frosh-soph boys also trounced their early opponents, including wins over La Salle, 6-0, and Harvard, 9-

"Defensively, we need strong pitching to take the pressure off the infielders. Offensively, we need to make good contact with the ball," said Harris.

The Normans were led by pitcher Steve Belkin, shortstop Michael Glazer, first baseman John Hamner. In the outfield, Jeff Alford and Robby Welles performed well for the frosh-soph team.

Shortstop Glazer, added "We have stuck together well considering that the team is a mix of both ninth and tenth graders. This is a needed ingredient for a winning season."

Coach Harris summed up his team's prospects "The team has talent all around, but it is still a little rough in places. All we need is some hard work and concentration to achieve our goal of a winning season."

New coaches, spirit revive softball team

varsity girls' softball team had an impressive season winning their first four practice games, twice as many as they had in the last year's complete season.

After a depressing 2-18 record the year before, the team made radical changes beating teams by big margins, such as their 28-2 victory over Santa Monica.

Jack Dyck, boys' basketball coach, and Richard Schreiber cocoached the team for the first time. Taking the place of Carol Hofmeister, both Dyck and Schreiber were pleasantly surprised by the enthusiasm the girls had.

"I was impressed with their positive attitude," said Dyck. "They all have incredible athletic ability and high potential."

Another change was new technique. They concentrated on aggressiveness and correction of Contrary to previous years, the careless errors. With the help of assistant coaches, seniors David Corwin and Geoff Schafler, "the team practices and scrimmages proved beneficial for the girls' spirits and skills," said Dyck.

> Returning to the team were several veteran players, but the team also added several new faces, many of them freshmen and sophomores.

> "In the next few years these young players will become great athletes and help make Beverly one of the better teams in the league," Dyck predicted.

> Some of the strongest athletes were Tina Pirzadeh, Tiffany Harward, Jennifer Grenell, and Shawna Nagler.

Dyck concluded that, "A combination of new strategies, younger players, and strong enthusiasm is going to make the softball team at Beverly a great one."

Varsity track starts year on right foot

The varsity track team started off on the right foot this season as both the boys and girls teams entered the Ocean League competitions with a lot of strength.

In Howard Edelman's second year of coaching the track team, he led the team through a victorious season with the help of Coach Bill Stansbury. "There are a lot of strong points to our team and I expect a successful season," said Coach Edelman.

Opening the season against Loyola, the varsity boys defeated them 68-59. They proceeded to shutdown Torrance, 102-25, and continued this success throughout the season.

The team was fortunate to be strong in all areas of competition. Leading the boys in distance running were seniors John Mora and Tom Harp, while junior Erez Gottlieb and senior Evan Silver were the powerhouses behind the shotputters. Senior Joey Hibbitt competed the best in the 200 and 400-meter races while junior Chris Hamner reached new heights in the high jump and junior Chris Roszak excelled in the long jump, triple jump, relays, and sprints.

The varsity girls enjoyed just as much success as they started the season by defeating Burbank and Hoover 76-55-16 and shutting down Mira Costa and Inglewood in their first league meet. The key competitors were senior Katherine Caulfield and sophomore Lisa Harris in distance running. Senior Michelle Thompson stole the limelight as the top girls' shotputter and freshman Jamie Leeds ran well in the 1-mile. Finally, seniors Tina Tamura and Roxanna McClendon added to the team's strength as they competed in many events.

Coach Edelman has seen his team to victory for two consecutive years and hopes to continue this success and strengthen the ability of the team even more in the future.

GIRLS' VARSITY TRACK — Front row: manager Debra Burdorf, manager Danielle LeAnce, manager Karen King, Mulan Chanrandel, Katherine Caulfield, Rochelle Dorn, Rhonda Brown, Susan Rosen, Tina Tamura, Roxanna McClendon, and Coach Bill Stansbury. ## JV runners excel; project good future

The JV boys and girls track teams saw the rise of many individuals who will strengthen the varsity team in the years to come.

Coach Howard Edelkman and Coach Bill Stansbury trained the team to its capacity and were pleased with the results. Both the boys and the girls saw many victories throughout the season. The boys began the season shutting down Torrance, 85-42, and the girls scored a tremendous victory over Westlake, Chaminade, and Marymount, tallying 100 points. The team that captured second place scored under 50 points. Both teams defeated Inglewood and Mira Costa in the first Ocean League meet.

Some of the rising stars on the boys team were newcomer and sophomore Richard Gitahi, sophomore Greg Shephard and freshman Tony Bermudez. They competed in events ranging from the 100-meter dash to the 2-mile run. Leading the shotputters were sophomores Matt Ellis, Niles Kirchner, and Galo Medina. Meanwhile, sophomores Damon Green and Chris Lee scored points for Beverly in the high jump and triple jump.

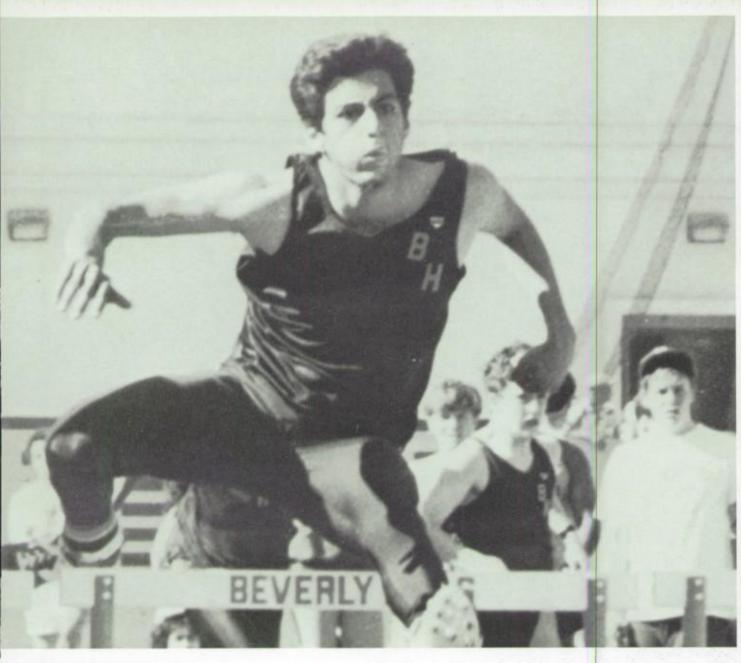

The JV girls' had its strong competitiors as well, as sophomores Tene Carr, Liz Tisherman and junior Gigi Houghton captured the first three positions in sprints and distances. Sophomore Elan Lisker and Freshman Angela Tompson excelle as the girls' shotputters, while sophomore Mona Shenasa claimed recognition as a long jumper.

"I've seen a lot of improvement over the duration of the seson through the JV teams and I believe their skill and enthusiasm will enable the future varsity teams to excel above the rest, stated Coach Edelman.

Swingers drive into CIF Championships

In his eighth year coaching at Beverly, Gerald Carpenter once again guided the varsity golf team to a successful season.

Including last year's undefeated record, the team has a three-year record of 33-3, each season making their mark in the Ocean and Bay League finals.

Though they lost several players, the team managed to pull off an excellent season. Leading the team was senior Michael Roberts, who captured the Most Valuable Player award last year. Other strong players were seniors Enrico Montano, Cary Meadow, Chris Harding, and juniors Paul Solomon, David Weber, and Justin Manacher.

According to Carpenter, "Robby Meyers, a sophomore, is one of the younger players on the team that shows great talent and promise for the future."

In addition to the boys were two girl golfers, Christina Park and Jennifer Choi. "It's the first time I've ever had girls on the team," said Carpenter. "They both worked hard to get on the team and have great potential."

The team played such teams as Palos Verdes and South Torrance, beating both of them. "We went undefeated last year," said sophomore Evan Burns "I wouldn't be surprised if we do it again this year."

Carpenter was very proud of the team. "In the last few years, our golfers have been getting better and better," he said. "The sport is getting so competitive and I'm thoroughly impressed by their great attitude and ability."

Gymnasts undergo rebuilding seasons

The girls' gymnastics competed in the tough 4-A Bay League for the fourth consecutive year. They finished in second place last year over strong teams from Mira Costa, Palos Verdes, and Rolling Hills.

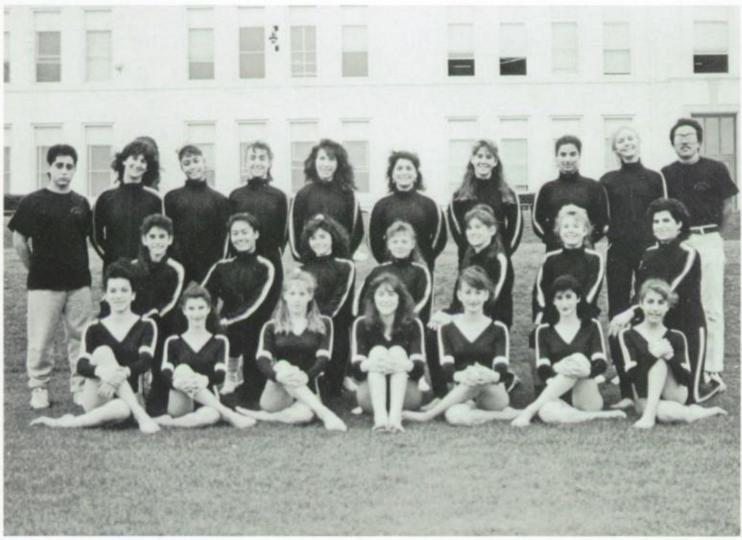

New Coach Tom Masuda was assisted by sponsor Margaret Leeds in preparing the girls for competition. Masuda, a former coach for the KIPS gymnastics team, faced many obstacles when he took over coaching gymnastics at Beverly. One was that "this was the largest number of girls we've fielded on the team, we took in 10 freshman, the most ever," said Leeds.

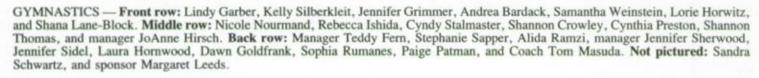

The team competed in floor exercise, vault, balance beam, and the uneven bars. There were three girls who competed all-around. They were senior Laura Hornwood, sophomore Sandra Schwartz, and freshman Alida Ramzi. Strong additions to the team were Paige Patman, Sophia Rumanes, and Stephanie Sapper.

It was a rebuilding year for the gymnastic team. The team lost many strong seniors from last year's team, but there is potential for the future. Coach Masuda noted, "it's a challenge for me to coach a different level than I'm used to, but it's a strong team that I hope will do well in league competition."

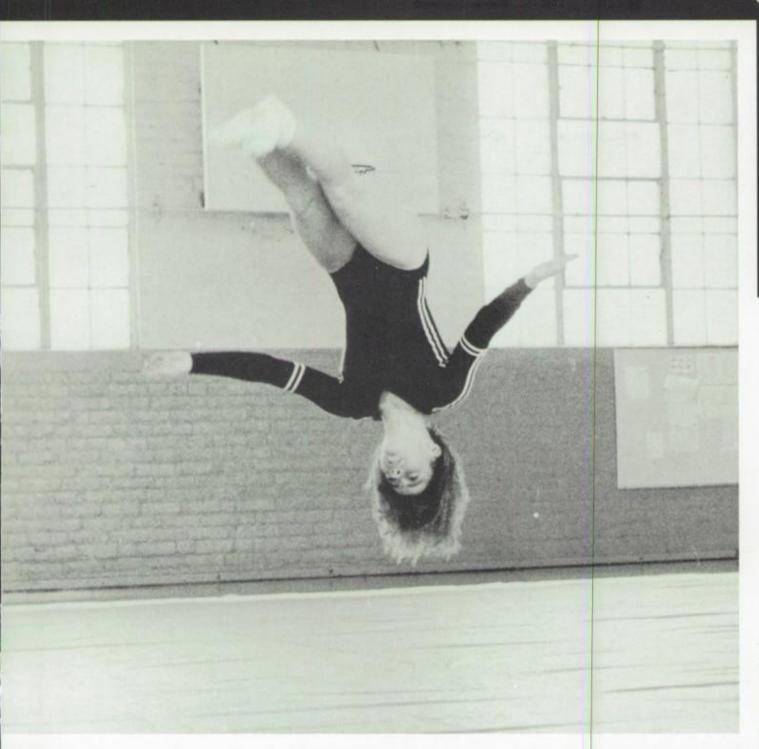

Co-captains Hornwood and Sapper observed, "We've worked hard on the team for four years, put in a lot of team effort, and we hope to have a strong, exciting season."

Band, drill teams spice up half times

Question: What is orange and black, has 200 arms and legs, and entertains the crowd at half time?

Answer: The Beverly Hills High School marching band and drill team.

Leading the 60-member marching band was drum major Chris Dawson. Assistant drum majors were Caitlin O'Neill and Theresa Herron.

Director Richard Farmer was very pleased with the band's performance. "There were many new members this year; they did an excellent job. The entire group was very spirited and I am very happy to work with them," said Farmer.

Throughout the year the band performed many popular pop songs and television themes. During the homecoming game, "How Will I Know" by Whitney Houston, "Tequila" and "High Kick" were played.

To accompany the band was the drill team, under the supervision of Dixie Zovak. This group of 50 enthusiastic girls cheered like gangbusters at the football and basketball games. The captains were Sheilah Hudson, Noelle Kuroko and Mary Mau.

Besides football games, the two groups performed elsewhere. For example, Disneyland, Knotts Berry Farm and the Beverly Hills St. Patrick's Day Parade were among the performing sites.

Assistant drum major Caitlin O'Neill summed it up, "It took a lot of time and work, but it all payed off in the end."

Cheerleaders jump into a spirited year

through football and basketball season again under the leadership of a new coach.

Alix Plum was a drill team coach, but never a spirit coach until coming to Beverly in 1986. She led varsity yell, song, flag, and JV yell through both seasons. "I have never been given as much respect as I've been given here, without having to earn it," commented coach Plum about the spirit team.

The four individual squads were led by Kelly Johnson, varsity yell; Monica Holmes and Jeni Lytton, song; Porshia Turneer, flag; and Alexis Christensen, JV yell.

An added bonus to spirit this year were the many extra activities the girls participated in. Some activities were spirit competitions that

The spirit team of 1987 cheered began in November, where the team competed against other high schools, and went through the spring semester. Another activity was the traditional kidnapping of the football players. Finally, the varsity yell cheerleaders held a special pep rally at the KIIS FM radio station.

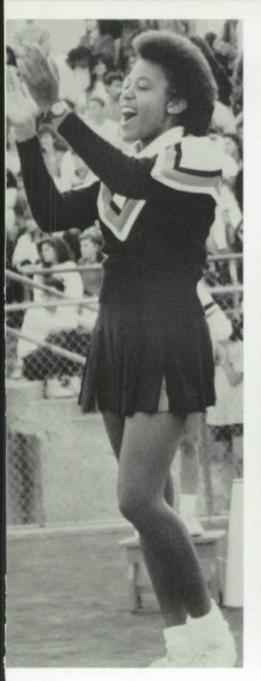

> Co-song leader Lytton said about the overall feeling towards spirit, "This year, we've tried to promote more spirit for the teams because ultimately they're the ones who need it."

> Coach Plum felt that 1987 was very successful and enjoyable for her first year coaching and the seniors last year. She noted, "The girls were very spirited, responsible and talented, they were really a pleasure to work with."

SPIRIT — Front row: Manager Margery Jacobs, Kari Eisaman, Shannon Thomas, Sabrina Kaplan, Alexis Christensen, Michelle Berkowitz, Laura Saul, Heather Kales, and manager Rache Weissman. ## The Company leaps into another year

The Advanced Dance Theater Group, otherwise known as the Company, once again danced through another year. Led by a variety of dancers, The Company held their annual concert April 30, May 1 and 2,

"The Company featured dancers strong in their individual styles of modern and jazz dance," remarked director Janet Roston. Nine seniors led Advanced Dance. They included Edet Belzberg, Monica Doby, Theresa Herron, Monica Holmes, Rochelle Johnson, Sima Mohamadian, Dean Shapiro, Nicole Triplett, and Sarah Vyden. For them the 1987 dance concert was their "finale" for years of hard work on Advanced Dance.

Men also contributed greatly to the Company's concert. They contributed not only as dancers, but also choreographed dances for the show. Dancer/ choreographer Shapiro said, "The Advanced Dance concert is a great experience. The friendships of the Company, the thrill of performing, and the given freedom to create and experiment for choreography are experiences I'll never forget."

The many different pieces performed in the concert were choreographed mainly by students. They were Edet Belzberg, Joel Christensen, Joanna Elliott, Joanna Greenberg, Alexis Holz, Rochelle Johnson, Grace Moon, Dean Shapiro, and Nicole Triplett. There was also a piece done by guest choreographer Larry Hyman; director Roston choreographed the finale

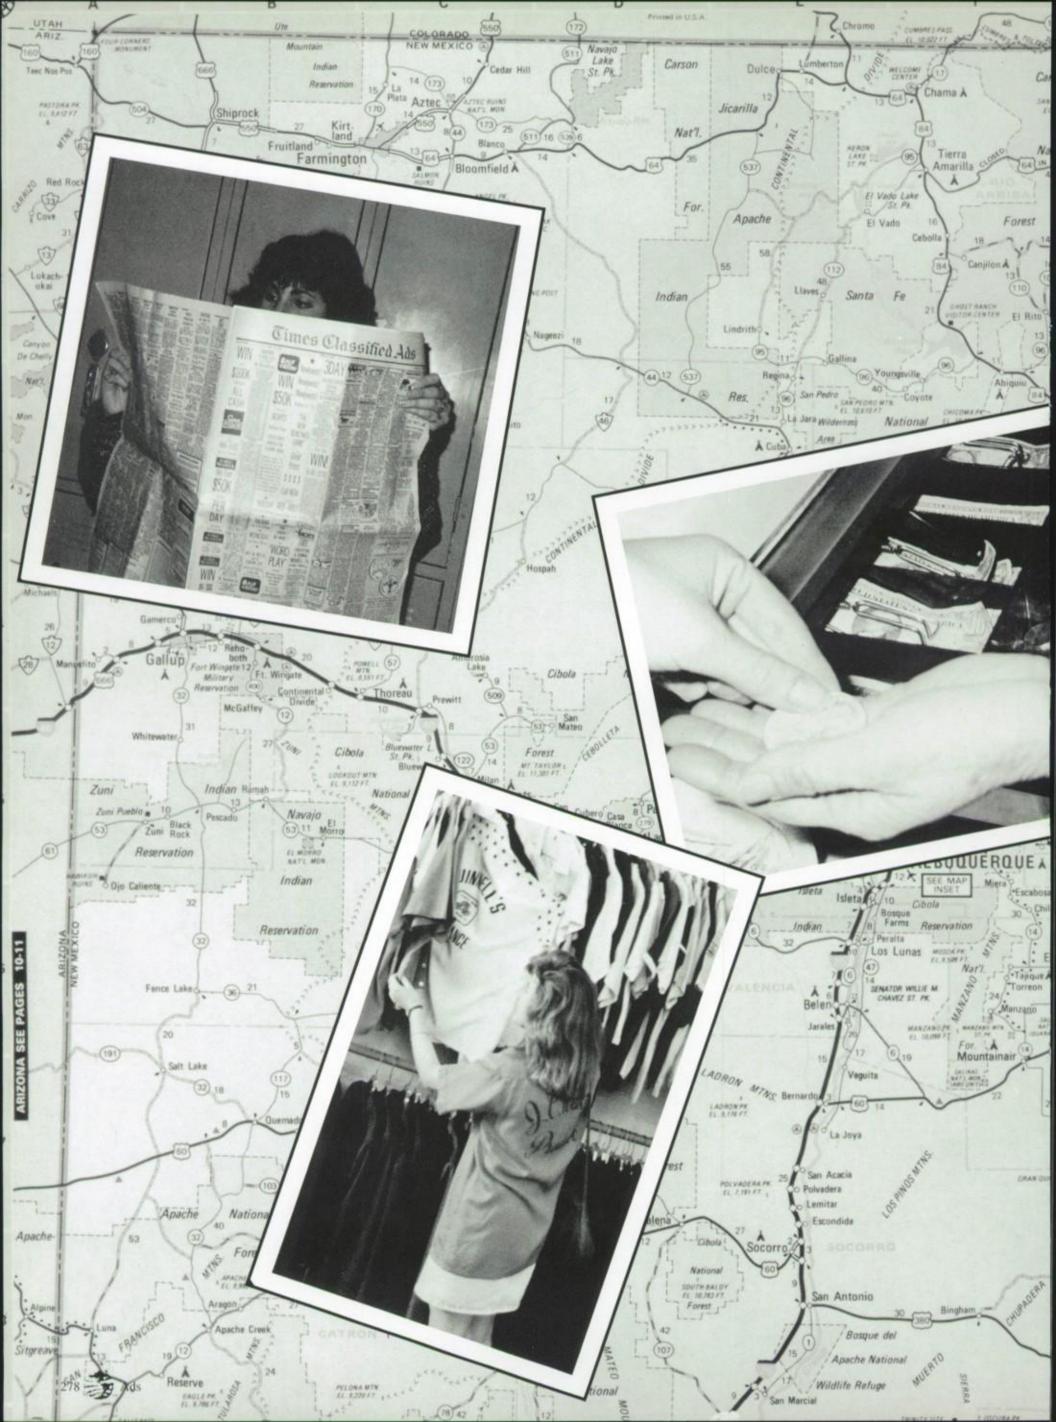

The finale was extra special this year because of the added effect of black light. "The finale, utilizing black light was a cross between a dream-like quality and a late-night rock club," said Roston.

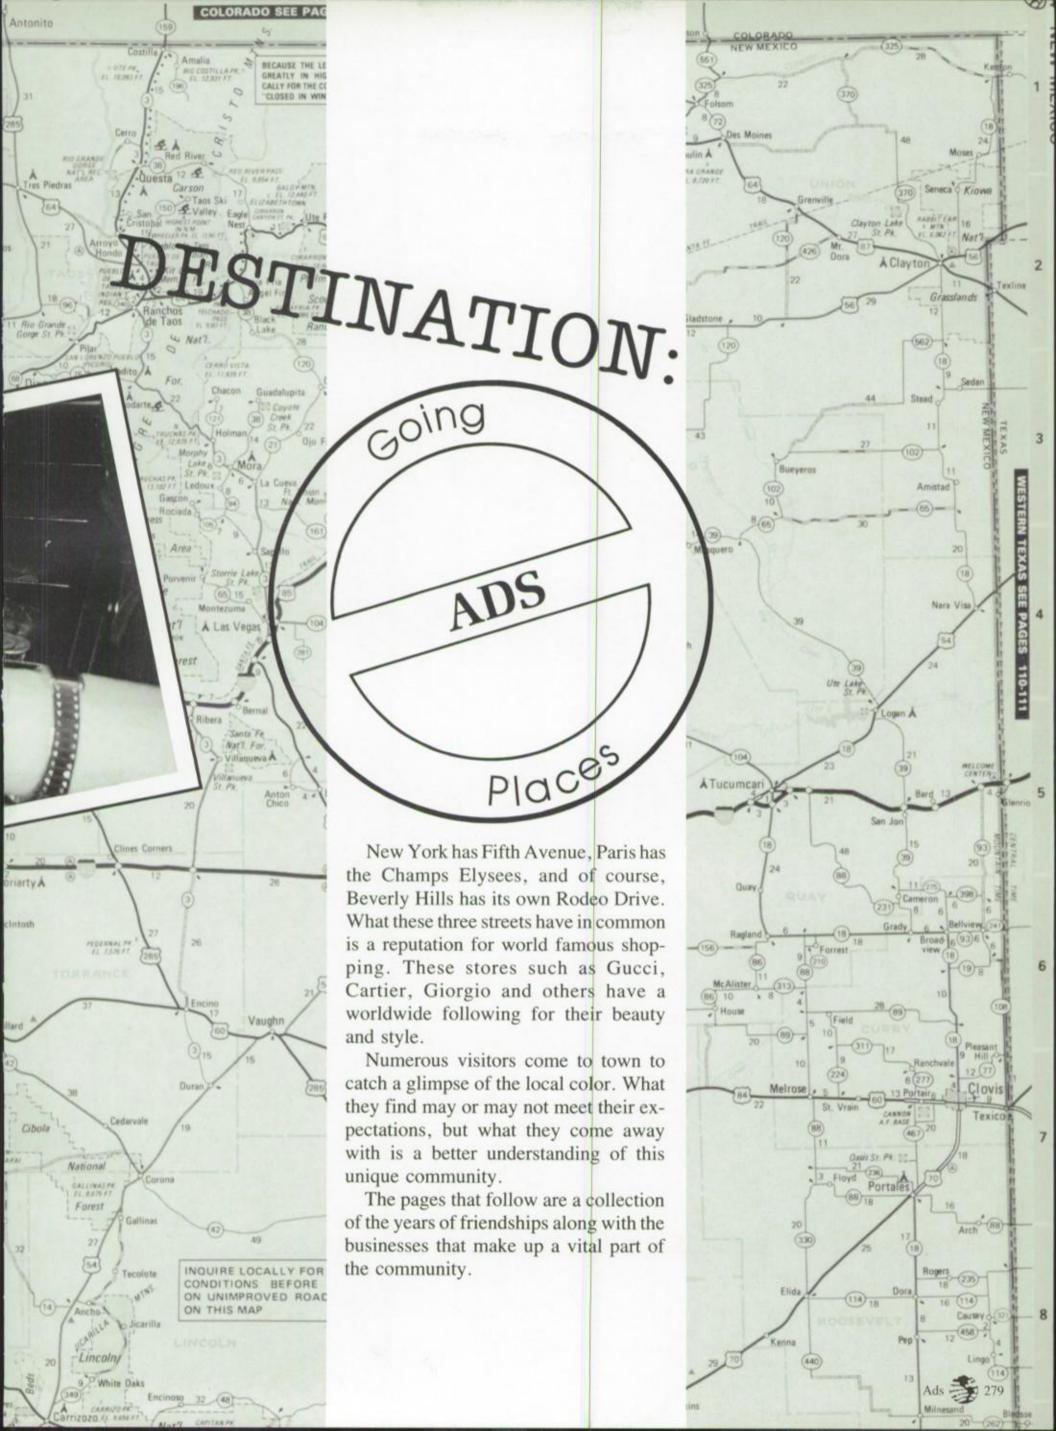

The 1987 Company was a combination of many new members and many returning members. Director Roston noted, "This years Company brought an innovative approach to choreography while the dance were energetic, powerful, and dynamic."

AN ODE TO A PAL By Jode and Kal

The whole thing started one foggy day, When we both met, and our troubles went away. To tell you the truth, they had only begun, But what did we care? We were looking for fun. School started, we did so many things: D(3) and J(3) kept our minds busy. We so dwelled on them, it often made us "dizzy." Summer arrived, and Jodi was off, To Israel and street Dizengoff. Kallen was home, and just as we feared, Our young little friend was getting real weird. School started again, but now we could drive, And our cute little two turned into five. This didn't work out, our troubles were more, So our cute little five turned into a four. But now we were stressed, we needed a break, A Maui vacation is what we would take. "Spimoni," "Zacky," "stoke, rad, dude!" Sick, game about food. Now Kallen was screaming, "Hip, hip, hooray!" She had won her freedom on her birthday. In the red 'Stang, off we would fleet To Mary's, the Dodgers, and the bird streets. We often would talk like giggly airheads, At the park, Nibblers, and in "waterbeds." Our buddy Big Kells was always up for a flick, Movies just ain't the same without this cool chick. The times got hard, pool Kallen would lose, Because of her "pass" and the blues. Jodi cried too, we must confess, Due to A.P.'s and "zestlessness." When school ended we unclipped our wings. We went to parties, the beach, and Palm Springs. This marks the end of our cute little four, Due to a "marriage," and a whole lot more. Those two little seedlings had caused so much trouble, Yet somehow they'd managed to make our fun "double." Bruce, Aryell, Coolers, and S.B. $500, squeal, bizarre, We have stuck through it all, And will continue to stick. Ahat, Shta'im, shalosh, Aaah, goodbye, click.

Built in 1947, Larry Parker's is the essence of the 1950's. The diner, awarded a Five-Star rating from Los Angeles DJs Rick Dees and Charlie Tuna, boasts a full soda fountain, plenty of '50s memorabilia, and a jukebox and phone at each booth. The authentic atmosphere is enhanced by '50s music serenading diners while an upbeat team of waiters and waitresses serve up a delicious array of specialties from a 400-item menu. Fri. and Sat. at midnight, Shalom Sherman, the Jewish Cowboy from Tarzana, sings and plays his accordion.

My friend, I do not wish for you to go, But life will not wait for us, I know. Take me with you when you go, I'll stay forever in your heart. That way we'll never have to say we lost a part of ourselves. And I thank God you're a friend I'll always know. So thank you for growing up with me, my friend. Parting now, we'll reach for the stars and see it's not an end, But the beginning of a life we've dreamt of for so long. Now it's time to show the world we've made each other strong! JAMI & ILAINA

It was a lazy summer day. I was walking along the street, dazed by the afternoon sun. An old woman sat by the grass selling flowers. I noticed a single pink rose laying in a straw basket. Gently I picked it up, bought it, and quickly brought it home. I put my rose in a delicate antique vase and placed it on the window sill. It glowed against the colors of the sunset. Everyday it grew toward the sky, reaching for the stars. My life began to change. There was more love and more happiness. There were more smiles . . . I still have my perfect rose. It will be with me forever. Thanks for your love.

We're outta here Beverly, look out world!

It all started with purple puppies, drug store attacks, quick start plus, Mexico (2), ranch dressing, deep fried donuts, bubba family, rhinoceros, Col, chloraseptic, bulls, Beaux, Sammy, Rodrigo, yoga-man, P.S. I hate you, wilting flowers, running away, dance fever runner ups, Donna Lee, Step-sisters, green vs. grey, ebee jeebies, fun, fun, yip, yip, yip... whoooo! Keije, Madoka or Madonna, ski lessons? Not again! New York studs, Arabian nights, Bo Derek, Beatles, collages, Joe photo, Alice B. Tolkis, does the horizon go on forever, Hi-Ball, coke cans, shots at rancho, 70's trips, grey-haired felines, escapades in cars, odd balls, skateboarding, Jonathon Club, first times, go-go dancer, the analyzer, mosquito bites, sibling crush, jacuzzi parties, Damian, the con-artist, the good one, we miss Tanny, the stream, midnight golfing sessions, shadows in the night.

To all of our dreams, hopes, and promises . . . I love you forever my best friend — D & J e lied. Getting there is all the fun. The satisfaction of achieving one's goals makes even the most difficult of voyages seem painless.

ON TO BIGGER AND BETTER PLACES

Where does the traveler go now? If he is a senior and has graduated, then he continues on the path to higher education or begins a new road on the way to a career. What if the traveler is a freshman, sophomore, or junior and must continue to explore the avenues of Beverly? He finds himself going in the right direction towards the ultimate goal of graduation.

The choices made along the way by students will lead each individual to a different destination. The results of these decisions will prove that Beverly students are going places.

Wait, don't go!

We still have people we'd like to thank for helping us put together the largest yearbook in Beverly's history. The 1987 Watchtower staff deserves thanks for a job well done. Thank you, Mr. Gil Chesterton, for a year of stress, good advice, and Girl Scout cookies. First semester help from Nica Gutman, Lynda Miller, Patti Shin and Cameron Silver. Contributing photographers included Alexis Christensen, Sherry Cohen, Whitey Dusang, Eric Grossman, Carl Levin, Shizuko Morishita, Lara Pepp, Mr. Joel Pressman, Valerie Sobel, Cyndy Stalmaster, Michelle Stern, Azita Zendehdel, and David Zimmerman. Senior portraits by White Studios, underclass portraits done by Jim Walton Portrait World, and sports team photos by Yary Photo. Thanks to Hunter Publishing representative. Tom Imming for his guidance; Jessica Schneider for the title page artwork; Beth Braun for being an efficient business manager; Eileen Colin for financial expertise; Margery Jacobs for completing the index; Alyssa "Tiffy" Tabora, David Zimmerman and the Highlights staff for use of facts, photos, and the radio. To the future editors of Watchtower 1988 - we wish you good luck. (You'll
